Marines Hunt for Enemy

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Several thousand U.S. Marines opened a new search operation today in the rice paddies overlooking the South China Sea, while Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs caught a dozen trucks near the entrance to North Viet Nam's landslide-clogged Mu Gia Pass.

The Leathernecks killed 14 Viet Cong, captured five and took 67 suspects in tow at the outset of a multibattalion search and destroy operation 23 miles south of Chu Lai. The area has been in Viet Cong hands for years.

Ten Marines stripped to the waist and moved with pistols and flashlights through a network of tunnels where they seized 15 Vietnamese suspected of being Viet Cong. Some pajama-clad fighters were seen fleeing the maze beneath the hamlet of An Hai a short time before.

The Air Force jets returned Wednesday to the strategic pass on the Laotian frontier, 230 miles south of Hanoi, where B52s dropped 1.4 million pounds of bombs on Tuesday in the first raid by the stratofortresses on North Viet Nam. Military sources in Washington said some of the big bombs were rigged with delayed-action devices to explode days later, thereby discouraging Communist road clearing work.

The Thunderchiefs spotted 12 trucks on Route 15 at the entrance to the bottled-up pass. At least four were destroyed, an Air Force spokesman said. He also said aerial photographs confirmed that the pass was completely blocked by landslides.

The mountain roadway links up with the Ho Chi Minh Trail in neighboring Laos, the major infiltration route to South Viet Nam.

Bell City Board Shields Fund Vote

By DAN WHITTLE

BELL CITY -- No one will divulge who voted what way in Monday night's R-2 board of education's rejection of $80,107 in federal funds.

The board vote was split three to three. It requires a majority, consequently, the board could not accept federal funds for the coming year.

John T. Lawrence, coordinator of public law 89-10, Jefferson City, said that the Bell City district has compiled with the regulations of the program.

There are petitions circulating through the community asking people to sign their name in favor of acceptance of the funds.

Bennie Hesselrode, route one, said that he had 60 signatures and that several more petitions are being circulated in an attempt to get the board to change it's vote.

The petition reads:

"We do not feel that the vote of the school board on this issue represents the majority of the people."

Forrest Jackson, superintendent of schools, said that the decision must be made by the board of education.

The petitions will be presented to the board in an effort to obtain a straw vote of the people on the issue if the board does not change its vote. This vote would not be official.

Ronnie Weeks, board member, said yesterday that he favored accepting the funds since "our district, like all other districts, needs the services made available to our students by use of the federal funds."

Gene Wheeler, president of the school board, said:

"You aren't going to get any information out of me."

John Johnson, board member, said he favored accepting the federal money.

Shelby Dong, board member, said it wasn't anyone's business how he voted.

The other board members, Herman Vetter and Bill Watkins, could not be contacted.

Time Bill Signed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. AP -- President Johnson has signed into law the bill establishing a uniform Daylight Saving Time system for the nation extending from April to October each year.

The vacation White House announced the signing today.

Starting next year, the measure puts the whole nation on the faster time from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October except that a state can decide by action of its legislature to remain on standard time. But such a decision must apply to the entire state.

For this year, the bill provides that any state, city or other unit wishing to observe Daylight Saving Time must do it for the full period between April 24 and Oct. 30.

A uniform system of daylight time for the late spring, summer and early fall months has been sought for years by airlines, railroads, bus companies, radio and television networks and other businesses.

$100,000 Water System Loan for Anniston Okayed

Special to Daily Standard

WASHINGTON -- A $100,000 loan has been approved for Anniston in Mississippi county it was announced by Senators Symington and Edward V. Long, and Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett Democrat.

The funds will be used to improve the water system and to extend the water lines to accommodate 122 more homes. The lines also will be connected with a fire fighting system.

The town has a population of about 600.

Mayor Ray Davis applied for the loan under a program to bring better facilities to small towns and rural areas.

Elks Lodge Installs

Installation ceremonies were held last night for the new officers of the Elks lodge.

Bobby Ralph was installed as exalted ruler.

Others installed were Marshall "Windy" Blackman, esteemed leading knight; Allen Blanton, esteemed loyal knight; Charles David Springs, secretary, Bennie Walker, Jr., treasurer and Mike Blacker, titler.

Ray Hart was installed as a director for five years and Dwight Crader, a director for four years.

The Chaffee Elks Lodge performed the installation.

Three Shetland Ponies Struck by Truck, Killed

DEXTER -- Three Shetland ponies, belonging to the Churchill Nursery, were killed last night by a truck at 9:45 p.m., the junction of highway 60 and the business route, the highway patrol reports.

The ponies darted across the highway in front of a 1966 Mack trailer-tractor, driven by Donald Phillips, 34, St. Clair.

The driver of the truck was not injured.

Legislature Quits Until Wednesday

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House went through the formalities of opening a morning session, but quickly adjourned with no business to conduct.

The Senate cleared its calendar Wednesday.

Both will return next Wednesday.

Only one bill has passed the legislature — an emergency appropriations bill. Only two weeks will remain in the special session when the legislature returns.

Sen. J. F. Pat Patterson, D-Caruthersville, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said he would work his committee day and night in an effort to get the budget ready for floor action next week.

Wednesday night, the House Roads and Highways Committee completed hearings on the controversial bills to regulate billboards and junkyards along major traffic arteries. But no action was taken.

Another meeting is scheduled next week to take up a third bill in the highway beautification package—one to authorize the State Highway Department to buy scenic spots for rest areas.

Representatives of the outdoor advertising industry and tourist business offered amendments to the Senate version of the billboard bill. There were indications some changes would be made.

The beautification bills are necessary if Missouri is to qualify for about $23 million in federal road funds, proponents argue.

The House Education Committee Wednesday night approved a bill to give school districts state aid for part time students.

The vote sending it to the floor for action was 17-5.

Rep. James I. Spainhower, D-Saline County, said his bill is intended as a companion measure to a so-called "shared time" bill that is stuck in a Senate committee.

The shared time measure would allow parochial and private school students to attend special courses at public schools. It has been opposed by those who charge it would violate the traditional separation of church and state.

Spainhower estimated the additional state aid cost of his bill would amount to only about $75.000.

Also approved by a House committee Wednesday was a Senate passed bill to let the state pay the first $40 hospitalization cost for old age assistance recipients after the Medicare program goes into effect July 1.

The state also could pay $10 a day for the 60th to 90th day of hospitalization. The net saving to the state as compared with the present medical aid program is estimated at $863,000.

The Senate is in recess until next Wednesday while its appriations committee completes work on the billion dollar budget bills.

A bill to set up a state and regional planning system passed the Senate yesterday 23-6, despite an outburst of opposition.

The bill was recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes as a means of getting federal planning funds for local improvements such as sewer systems, water districts, educational and health facilities, recreational areas and so on.

It now goes to the House where further opposition is expected.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, expressed the fear that if the state does not have a central planning agency, the federal government will bypass the state and go directly to the cities and counties.

Also passed and sent to the House were bills to:

Give Missouri its first law to regulate the drilling of oil and gas wells.

Nine Injured in Car Collisions in Region

Six persons were injured in a two-car collision last night at 8:30 p.m. three miles north of Fruitland, on highway 61.

A 1963 Mercury, driven by Michael Haley, 17, Crystal City, passed another car on a yellow line, the highway patrol charged.

The Haley car struck a 1963 Oldsmobile, driven by Leon Tuschhoff, 27, Jackson, headon, injuring Tuschhoff, and the five occupants of the Haley car.

Haley, according to the patrol, will be arrested on a charge of careless and reckless driving.

The injured: Haley, cuts and bruises; Wanda Loesch, 15, Festus, cut on head and bruises; Mark Hayden, 16, Festus, back injury; Sharon Hayden, Festus, fractured jaw, legs and a chest injury, and John Portell, 19, Cape Girardeau, head cuts. They were taken to the Southeast Missouri Hospital, Cape Girardeau. Tuschhoff was treated by a Jackson physician.

Two persons were injured yesterday at 11:30 a.m. 10 miles east of Dexter on highway 153, when a 1965 Ford, driven by Don Zeller, 19, Jefferson City, pulled into the path of a 1960 two-ton truck, driven by Douglas Wilson, 21, route two, Boaz, Ky.

He was arrested for failure to yield the right of way.

Injured were two passengers in the Zeller car, Dorothy Dyson, 15, Doniphan, bruises and scratches; and Donna Zeller, 21, Jefferson City, pelvis injury. They were taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

A 1962 Rambler, driven by Judith McGee, 23, Dexter, was driven into the path of a 1964 Pontiac, driven by Riley Hester, 56, Bloomfield, yesterday at 4:30 p.m. causing a collision at the intersection of highways 25 and 114 in Dexter.

The driver of the Rambler was taken to the Lucy Lee Hospital, Poplar Bluff for treatment of minor injuries, and will be cited for failing to yield the right-of-way, the patrol said.

Hays to Run in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)— Former Congressman Brooks Hays today resigned as an adviser to President Johnson and announced as a Democratic candidate for governor of Arkansas.

Hays, 67, said he can carry the Democratic banner against Republican Winthrop Rockefeller better than any other candidate.

"I've never wavered in my loyalty to the Democratic party," he told a news conference.

Gov. Orval Faubus has announced that he will not seek re-election unless the Democratic party fails to find formidable opposition for Rockefeller, the GOP candidate.

Jim Johnson, who resigned earlier this month from the Arkansas Supreme Court, and State Rep. Kenneth Sulcer also have filed for the Democratic primary.

Hays' 16-year congressional career ended in 1958 when he lost to Dr. Dale Alford of Little Rock who ran on a segregationist platform during the Central High School racial troubles.

Maher Tells Of Progress

CHARLESTON -- Phillip V. Maher, head of the office of urban affairs and coordinator of Economic Opportunity, Jefferson City, speaker at a chamber of commerce dinner told of progress made to improve communities.

In a meeting held at the Charlestonian last night he pointed out how the Economic Development Act could be used to improve city streets and sewers, as well as the program of the Office of Economic Opportunity, which trains persons for services which would tie in with an industrial plan for the community.

Charles L. Brink Jr., membership chairman, announced 30 new members on a goal of 50 have been added to bring the total membership to 116.

Frank Bihr, chairman of merchants committee, reported a sidewalk sale will be held April 29-30, during regular store hours from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Friday and 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday.

Funds Pledged For New Church

Trinity Baptist church members last night pledged funds sufficient to complete the first phase of their church building program.

A. J. Day is chairman of the finance committee. He reported the cost of the first building would be $260,000, and would be erected north of the Joel Montgomery property on a 20-acre tract of land.

Construction will begin June 15.

Buddhists Plea Heeded

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP-- Thousands of jubilant Buddhist demonstrators marched peacefully through Saigon today in a victory celebration after the military regime decreed elections for a civilian government in three to five months.

A ranking Buddhist leader said the junta's formal pledge "satisfies our main demands."

The willingness of the Buddhist hierarchy to accept the election pledge may mean the survival of the U. S. supported military government until the nationwide elections. On Sunday, the Buddhists had demanded the immediate resignation of the junta.

Lady Bird Tours Beauty Spots

WASHINGTON AP -- In a rainstorm, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson conducted a bus tour of beauty spots and eyesores in the nation's capital.

During the tour Wednesday, attended by scores of officials and prominent philanthropists, she planted a cherry tree while shielding herself with an umbrella.

She praised what she called "this tremendous desire of Americans to make their land more beautiful."

Car Insurance Premiums To Increase More Than $10

KANSAS CITY (AP)—An average increase of more than $10 a year on insurance premiums for Missouri motorists was announced by the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters and the National Automobile Underwriters Association.

The changes were approved by the Missouri insurance commissioner, an industry spokesman said.

In typical increases, fire and theft coverage is up about 14 per cent over the state, 16 per cent in Kansas City and 9 per cent in its Missouri suburbs. Collision premiums are up 15 per cent over the state and in Kansas City, 14 per cent in the Missouri suburbs of Kansas City.

The spokesman for major insurers in Kansas City said the new schedules provide broader protection under Missouri's financial responsibility law. The new minimums are $10,000 liability coverage for each person injured in an accident, $20,000 for any one such accident and $5,000 property damage. The old limits were $5,000, $10,000 and $5,000.

A good-risk driver with no violations who uses his car to drive to and from work and for limited personal use will pay about $109 for minimum coverage under the law, about $11.50 more than previously.

The base rate for automobile liability insurance for private passenger cars was reduced an average of 1.6 per cent on a statewide basis, according to the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters.

Three Injured In Headon Crash Near Wyatt

A two car accident today at 9:25 a.m, two and one-half miles east of Wyatt on highway 60, sent three persons to the St. Marys Hospital, Cairo, Ill.

A 1963 Ford going west and driven by Roy Jacob Graber, 73, Paducah, attempted to pass a tractor-trailer, when he struck a 1965 Buick, traveling east, and driven by Clarence Carter, 69, East Prairie, head-on.

Injured were Carter, who received cuts on the face, right knee and possible chest injury, and his wife, Mamie Carter, 63, who received cuts on her scalp and right knee. Graber received cuts on his left hand.

Graber was arrested by the highway patrol for careless and reckless driving.

'Spun-Fiber' Soybean Diet May Prevent Heart Attacks

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Promising results were reported today with a "spun-fiber" diet designed to reduce blood fats under suspicion as contributors to heart attacks.

The diet — made up of predissolved soybean protein spun into fibers to give the product a meat-like texture —is designed to give Americans deemed needing it the low-fat properties of the average oriental diet, but one having "the appearance of Western food." The wispy fibers are compacted into tiny morsels, and flavored and colored for serving.

Dr. Robert Hodges of the University of Iowa, who described it at a scientific meeting here, said people in the Orient have long been known to have much lower rates of atherosclerosis-a form of hardening-of-the-arteries believed by many doctors to be the forerunner of heart attacks -- than Americans.

And he said that while other actors in addition to dietary ones may aid the Orientals in that respect, their low-fat diet is believed to play a signficant role.

Hodges indicated at a news conference at the annual convention of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology that the Orientals' dietary staple-- rice-might serve the same purpose as the new diet. But he said the latter "is far more acceptable.

Beds in Hall Every Third Day at Delta Hospital

Every third day at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital during the past year, according to Harold Jones, administrater, patients were admitted to the corridors because of the lack of space in patient rooms.

He said every available space has been utilized to house patients.

Jones said that there were several occasions when no corridor space was available.

"At one time, there were 15 patient beds in the corridors," he said.

"This factor alone, is sufficient to express the tremendous need which exists for additional hospital facilities," he said.

He said the hospital continues to be operated at a lower average cost per patient day than the national average.

Nationally the median cost per patient day was $38.24. The Sikeston hospital is reported to have an average operating expense per patient day of $29.02.

Jones said that the hospital staff and administration is "doing all within their power" to keep costs at a minimum.

"This is a most important factor," Jones commented, "in continuing to make our hospital services available to the majority of the citizens of this area."

The hospital has 180 full-time employes with an annual payroll of $675,000.

The hospital has received federal grants of $923,499.55 to construct a new 55-bed wing.

These funds must be matched locally.

Local funds pledged now total $574,000 approximately $350,000 short of the amount required to match the allocation.

Iraq President Killed in Crash

BEIRUT, Lebanon AP -- President Abdel Salam Aref of Iraq, who survived repeated violent political upheavals in the past eight years, has been killed in a plane crash, Baghdad Radio announced today.

The Iraqi Radio said Interior Minister Maj. Gen. Abdel Latif Daraji and Industry Minister Mustafa Abdullah also were killed in the crash near the Persian Gulf port of Basra.

Premier Abdel Rahman Bazzaz will be acting president until Council of Ministers and the National Defense Council elect Aref's successor within a week, the broadcast said.

Six Admitted To Hospital

Six persons were admitted to the emergency room of the Missouri Delta Community Hospital Wednesday:

Rule Bars 4 Teachers

CHARLESTON -- Four teachers, who did not comply with a R-1 board of education ruling that all teachers must have a degree by the 1966-67 school year, will not receive contracts for the coming year.

This decision was made yesterday by the board.

The teachers are Bertha Harvey, Norma Powers, Easter Mae Hughes and Albertine Ennis.

The board approved purchasing three acres of land from Hunter Raffety for $1,000 per acre. The land adjoins the Wyatt Washington school.

The board approved accepting resignations from seven teachers: Maxine Loving, Dorothy Gibson, Murphy McKinney, Bessie McKinney, Curtiss Bingham, Golda Rhodes and Sandra Struwe.

A request made by Stephen T. Lewis for the use of the Lincoln school grounds for religious purposes for two months this summer was denied.

Diplomat Dies

BOSTON AP -- Reginald Davidson, 91, former British vice consul in Kansas City, Mo., died Wednesday.

Senators Flunk Vote Tests

WASHINGTON -- Senator Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long have flunked the voting test set up for members of congress by the conservative Americans for Constitutional Action.

Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett Democrat, has a passing score on the test.

Senator Symington was given the non-passing grade of 33 per cent for the past session and Senator Long the grade of 13 per cent.

Senator Symington has the average grade of 10 per cent on the votes since 1955 and Senator Long the average of four per cent since he has been in the Senator, according to the ACA report.

ACA claims that the votes on which they used to grade the members "were on issues which tend to safeguard or strengthen the rights and guarantees" of the constitution. Members of their board include such persons as actor John Wayne, Edgar Eisenhower, brother to the former president, and former Governor Charles Edison of New Jersey, son of the late inventor.

Both senators got plus credit for voting against foreign subsidies. Senator Long got the plus credit for voting against repeal of the poll tax. Senator Symington got one for voting against rent subsidies.

Jones is credited with a grade of 80 during the last session and an average of 60 during his term in the House.

"Plus" grades were given in the House for votes against the following: changing the rules to speed up legislation, reducing the gold backing of paper money, foreign subsidies, medicare, federal school aid programs, federal arts programs, debt limit hikes, new cabinet post voting rights bill, diluting the half dollar, quarter, and dime, the federal poverty program, public works for prosperity, agricultural subsidies, home rule for the District of Columbia, and aid to North Viet Nam.

Plus grades also were given for a vote to let the governor veto state poverty projects, to let the states pass right to work laws, and for bills that halt communism.

The ACA claims that their plus votes were for sound money, private competitive markets, local self government, private ownership, individual liberty, or for national sovereignty.

Germany's 'Sea Devil' Dies

MALMOE, Sweden (AP) — Count Felix Von Luckner, who sank 14 Allied ships in World War I without taking a life, is dead at 84.

Von Luckner's death Wednesday of an undisclosed illness ended a life of daring that earned him fame as the "Sea Devil."

During the World War I he commanded an innocent-looking windjammer which carried concealed guns and a powerful motor. Masquerading as a Norwegian freighter, Von Luckner's Sea Eagle scuttled $25 million worth of Allied ships, but he took their crews -- and even their pets -- off first and looked after them until he could put them ashore.

"I broke the British blockade with a clear conscience," he said. "No mother, wife, child or father lost a tear."

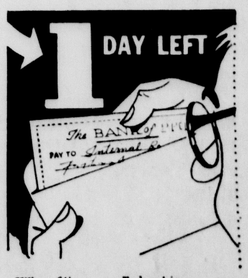

His ship roamed the Atlantic and Pacific with a 64-man crew, 27 of whom spoke Norwegian.

After sailing 35,000 miles, the Seeadler was wrecked on a South Sea coral reef in August 1917. Von Luckner and five of his crew sailed a lifeboat loaded with ammunition for 48 days to the Fiji Islands, where they hoped to seize another ship. Instead a British police officer and several native policemen captured them.

The British sent him to New Zealand, but he escaped in a motorboat and during six weeks of freedom seized a small sailing vessel. A British cruiser recaptured him and he spent the rest of the war in New Zealand.

Between the world wars he conducted cruises and lectured in several countries, including the United States. Lowell Thomas wrote two books about him: "Count Luckner, The Sea Devil" and "The Sea Devil's Fo'c's'le."

Von Luckner was married in 1924 to Ingeborg Vonengstroem, a wealthy owner of Swedish woolen mills.

THE GREEN TIDE

Toward the end of April there comes a day when one suddenly realizes the bleached gray and drab brown have disappeared and the land is green again. The green tide comes slowly some years. It arrives almost overnight if a period of warm days and steady rain blesses the land.

One morning, crossing the farmyard to the barn, the green fields shine in the slanting rays. It may have been nearly a month ago when one noticed the first ripples of the tide. Along the south side of the woodlot a tinge of new color was mixed with the brown. Then the first thin strands were woven along the brook banks.

Now, suddenly, the countryside is green. The upland pasture has new color and the meadow mowings are glowing with a soft sheen. Lawns are green carpets and a man knows he has a summer's work ahead. The Master Planner has waved His wand and a new season is here.

Each has favorite signs to tell him when true spring has arrived. The heart is hungry for the resurrection and glad of the affirmation of a promise that has never failed. There is the music of birds at dawn and the opening of buds on the bough.

In a world of seething tension, ruthlessness and greed, it is sometimes difficult to anchor one's belief to the verities. But as year moves toward the fifth month and the green tide sweeps over the countryside, a man knows that the certainties still prevail.

The late Sen. Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi carried with him an impressive wardrobe.

When he reported a burglary, which was frequent, he gave reporters an itemized list, which invariably included two dozen silk shirts, as many striped silk shorts and an impressive array of other expensive, gaudy men's clothing.

In theft at least Bilbo ranked as one of the nation's best dressed men.

He needed to dress up because he was small of stature and his features bore no classical lines. His frame was lumpy and undistinguished.

Perhaps the reason that he was difficult to beat at the polls was because the average Mississippian envied that wardrobe and thought that it was exactly what he wanted if he had the money to pay for it.

This brings up the subject of burglaries and the aged.

They really should keep some non-depressing items around the house in plain view so that burglars wouldn't miss them.

Dancing pumps are an excellent choice.

If the oldster gets careless he is apt to read an itemized list of stolen goods such as:

One hearing aid, set of false teeth, bottle of denture cleaner, tube of sure grip denture paste, two way stretch girdle, wig, two pair of bifocals, three bottles of vitamins, 16 bottles of prescription pills, and pair of crutches and two canes.

Depressing isn't it?

The publication Oil Facts reports that U.S. oilmen have drilled more than 2 million holes searching for oil and gas in this country since the nation's first successful well was completed in 1859. In the industry's first year, the total U. S. production was only 2,000 barrels of crude oil, all from Pennsylvania. Estimated production for 1965 will exceed 2.9 billion barrels of crude oil along with 440 million barrels of natural gas liquids.

HE WAS BOUND TO BE A SUCCESS

Those of us who observed the vigor and intelligence of D. W. Gilmore back in the middle '30s at the University of Missouri knew that he would almost for a certainty become a genuine success in life.

He became an attorney, a prosecuting attorney, a circuit judge, a state senator and now he is senior vice president of the Kansas City Life Insurance Company.

Then this week Gov. Warren E. Hearnes tapped Gilmore to be a member of the Kansas City police board, an especially important post these days. It was unquestionably an appointment of merit and Gov. Hearnes, in choosing this Kansas Citian, again demonstrated that he wants men with ability, integrity and dependability. The Governor is to be commended for making this selection.

We are among the many who are happy to be aware that the new appointee is, as he puts it: ". . .I'm wha' you might call conservative by nature."

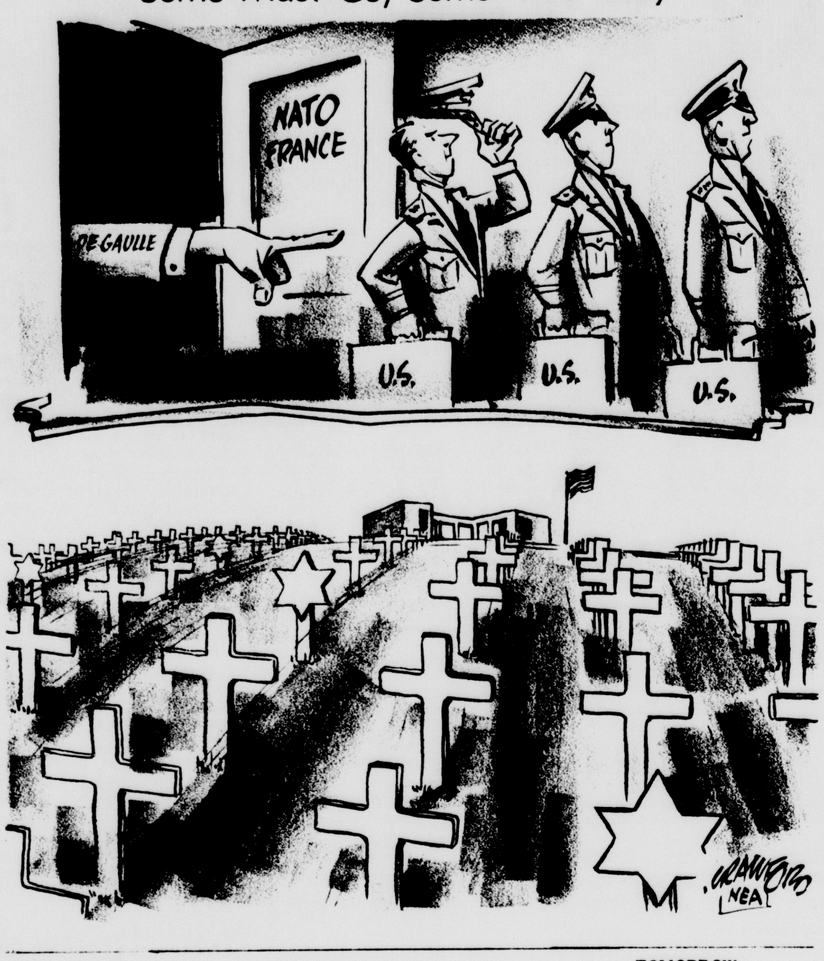

When we last saw D. W. Gilmore several months ago in the halls of the Missouri capitol, he had his unfailing drive, his affable personality and keen mind--just as we recall him as a young student 30 years ago. He's made good all right. And he will continue up the ladder of success.

Some Must Go; Some Must Stay

Individuals and small business firms place some 350 million classified ads in newspapers in the United States each year. Cost of the want ads exceed a billion dollars annually.

These small advertisements are used in such astounding quantity for one reason only. They bring results. Often the results are constant and keep a steady flow of customers coming to a small shop. Often they are dramatic, resulting in profits a thousand times the cost of the advertisement.

It would be impossible to calculate the economic importance of the classified sections of newspapers. They help to stabilize employment. They salvage billions of dollars for owners and used goods by placing the goods where they are wanted and needed. Classified advertising has become the major real estate directory. It is the broker for the repairman, the babysitter, the gardener, and others with individual services to perform.

Significant from a long-range standpoint, the classified section is the best guarantee of a free and responsible press. The newspaper with a strong want ad section is never in danger of undue pressure from a few interests which might wish to control the press. For, a strong classified advertising section is more important to a newspaper than the business of any single large advertiser.

The classified section has been called "Democracy in action," because the users of the section are as diverse as the whole public.

These diverse advertisers are interested only in readership and results. The indirect effect is a good newspaper which serves the whole public.

NEW YORK (AP)—"Him? I didn't think you even knew he existed, Ellen."

"Really, Jason, I don't think you even know what love means."

These are a couple of remarks I heard my daughter, Tracy Ann, make recently over the telephone, an instrument which has become so firmly attached to her ear that I am thinking of having it removed by surgical means.

I am not a parent who believes in eavesdropping but kids today bellow their secrets into a phone so loud you can hear them all over the house.

What do 12-year-old kids talk about? Well, believe it or not, they talk about each other.

Does Judy like Rodger? What does Susie see in Spencer? And how about Dick and Christine?

The other night, with both a radio and television set turned on, my daughter sat and talked over the phone with a chum about the antics of a seventh-grade Romeo for exactly an hour and 15 minutes. Finally, I went into her room and broke up the conversation.

"What on earth are you doing?" I demanded.

Tracy Ann pointed at an American history book open on her lap.

"Studying the Monroe Doctrine," she replied.

"While listening to the radio, watching television, and talking on the phone?"

"Yup."

I noticed six boys' name written on her small blackboard, and asked who they were.

"My boy friends."

"Only six?" I inquired with heavy sarcasm.

"Oh, I've got lots more," she said airily. "But those are the ones I like best—now."

I went out and grumbled to my wife.

"Oh, dry up, Rover," said Frances. "Let her alone. She's still in the puppy love stage."

Puppy love? Oh, no. No, indeed. Whatever this jabberwocky over the telephone between small fry amounts to, it isn't puppy love.

Not real puppy love, anyway. Real puppy love isn't noisy and carefree and gossipy. Real puppy love is solidary, silent, soulful suffering—the spirit laid bare and shuddering and helpless to cure its own agony.

I remembered then my own case of puppy love in the seventh grade. I wrote not six names on a blackboard, but one in my heart.

She was a girl half a head taller than I, and I sold newspapers on the streets for days to save up enough to buy her a box of Valentine candy, and she promptly gave a piece to the tallest boy in the class.

This boy was my best friend and I sat in the row between him and her, and I had to pass back and forth the notes they wrote each other and I never read one. I have had to do some bitter chores in my life since then, but none that ever degraded me more or left me more forlorn.

Well, he grew up and died, and she grew up and married, and I grew up and moved away. And I never really told her that I loved her, and I never will.

All this happened back in 1918, and so far as I know puppy love has been going downhill ever since. They don't have men in the seventh grade anymore who can stand up to its torture.

Six names on a blackboard—Hal Child's play. But I guess it's better that way.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

SCIONS OF THE TIMES

Rockefeller and Scranton Building Labor Machines

Washington, D. C.: -- The wheel has turned.

Republican scions of legendary, wealthy families are wooing the new class -- the politically influential labor leaders.

For months now, Nelson Rockefeller and William Scranton, each in his own bailiwick, have met or have had their colleagues meet privately with local union chiefs.

So successful have been these "dialogues" that National Republican Chairman Ray Bliss has been insisting that confidential reports of those off-the-record sessions become part of every Republican "big city leaders" teach-in.

Ray Bliss' labor specialist--who appears to be doing quite well in Pennsylvania -- is the comparatively unknown "Pat" Jiuliano, deputy Secretary of Labor and Industry (for Labor) under Gov. Scranton.

There are those who will disagree with Jiuliano's politics, but who dare deny he had courage when for years he was an active Republican though an official of militant Mike Quill's Transport Workers Union. For four years Jiuliano sat on the TWU International Executive Board under "Mike's" chairmanship.

Jiuliano believes he has the formula -- and Ray Bliss agrees with him -- for cracking the Democrats' hold on the labor movement's political machinery. In synthesis, it adds up to wooing the local labor leaders, who in many areas rarely share the limelight with the national labor officials, nor have they ridden the televised campaign trains, nor sat on the much-photographed daises at the great fund-raising banquets.

During his off-the-record talk to the big city Republican leaders' conference here early in March, Jiuliano reported that there had been three friendly meetings between Pennsylvania labor leaders -- mostly from Pittsburgh and Philadelphia--and Governor Scranton, State Chairman Truax and other state GOP leaders.

The Governor attended the first such gathering with 19 union officials in the Harrisburger Hotel in Harrisburg, Pa. in February. Other Pennsylvania Republicans met with another 39 union men two weeks after that first session.

When Jiuliano reported on these meetings to Bliss' early March teach-in, he was buoyant:

"We Republicans in Pennsylvania have been making great strides in working with local labor leaders. And we will go much further. . .you can bet on that!

"There are thousands of labor union people like me. . . already registered Republican . . .or who are thinking seriously about joining our Republican Party. Many of them are right in your own backyard.

"For the past 30 years some labor leaders have been bragging that all labor union people are Democrats. Take it from me. . .that is a lot of bunk. . ."

Jiuliano told the big city leaders that the Harrisburg meetings were the first such sessions in 40 years. And there would be more right through the election campaign.

North of the border, up Albany way, Gov. Rockefeller has been building a labor "machine" of his own. His political mechanic is his old college companion and long-time labor adviser, the truly anonymous Victor Borella.

Soft-spoken Borella, a connoisseur of good cigars, wine and whimsical political stories, is so popular in some labor circles -- especially the construction trade -- he could probably get an honorary membership card and win an election in some union. There are few national labor leaders he does not know.

It is Borella who is heading up the Rockefeller labor "section." But much of the upstate traveling and door knocking will be done by Bob Gormley, who once worked closely with Pat Jiuliano as the labor team for Dwight Eisenhower.

Gormley ran the labor desk at the Republican National Committee until Senator Goldwater's people suggested he leave, since there was as much chance of getting labor leader support for Mr. Goldwater as for selling ice in the Arctic.

But Nelson Rockefeller himself is a pretty good business agent when it comes to getting labor backing now. He is a do-it-yourself man on this front these days. He meets regularly in the Rockefeller Center dining rooms with the labor people.

He calls them by their first names, corresponds faithfully with them and briefs himself intensely on the most complex industrial problems so he can sit with them during discussions of new laws, manpower problems and automation forums.

These little-reported efforts of Rockefeller and Scranton to build up cadres of labor leaders are not meant to stop at the state borders.

The Hudson and Susquehanna are great rivers, but there's something about the Potomac which still fascinates both liberal Republicans.

"Thirty Years That Shook Physics" by George Gamow. George Gamow is one of our wittiest science writers. In this chatty account of the development of quantum theory he demonstrates once again his ability to entertain the layman. Gamow was originally a student of paleontology in Russia (he learned "to tell a dinosaur from a cat by the shape of the little toes"). He went on to become a mathematical physicist celebrated for numerous esoteric theories including his development of the Big Bang idea of cosmic creation. His background is a cosmopolitan one and he worked closely with most of the big European names in quantum theory: Planck, Bohr, Pauli, De Broglie, Heisenberg, Dirac, Fermi, etc. Consequently he can expatiate on working habits and idiosyncrasies as well as theories. There's a hilarious version of "Faust" at the end, closely imitating the meters of the original but geared to the interests of the theoretical physicist. This is for those (and this includes most of us) who do not know what your younger educated elite is studying today.

WHAT TAXES WON'T BUY

You and 75 million other U.S. taxpayers this year are paying more taxes than any other people ever paid in any other land.

These taxes are used as the means to almost any end--from the ridiculous to the sublime.

Taxes pay for space capsules and relief checks, for the CIA and HEW, for hydrogen bombs and national parks and many more questionable goods and services, all of which will add up to more than $140 billion in the next fiscal year.

Yes, taxes can buy just about anything. Anything, that is, except integrity, self-reliance, morality, industry, ingenuity, vision and the courage to take risks--all the things that have built the great private enterprise civilization that is the United States of America.

MANGLED MASTERPIECES

One of the best remedies for world-weariness is to look at things through the eyes of kids.

In an issue of the Journal of the National Education Association, Ronald N. Wood, an author and former biology teacher in a Vermont high school, submits a few reasons why people keep on having children.

One of his pupils wrote on a test:

"When man eats, his food goes from his stomach into his small intentions."

Others endowed man with a "gaul blotter," "lunks" (for breathing) and "red constables" in his blood.

Some of his favorite definitions:

Asphyxiation - "When you indulge in too much carbon monoxide."

Mammal - "An animal that feeds its babies with mammy glands."

Smallpox - "A disease that was perfected by Edward Jenner."

Finally one that comes uncomfortably close to the truth:

Degeneration - "When you resemble your parents."

H. L. Hunt Says

WHERE THE MAIN TAX BURDEN FALLS

Many Americans still nourish the illsuion that a large part of the tax revenue which finances our federal government comes from the wealthy. They like to think that the "free federal money" they hear so much about mostly comes from the rich.

Beyond question the men and women of wealth should pay their fair share of the tax burden, but the incentive to produce must not be destroyed. The simple fact is that there are not nearly enough unusually wealthy people in the United States to supply the money for spending at its present rate, even if all their wealth has to be confiscated.

By far the largest elements in federal revenue is the personal income and social security taxes paid by wage earners and middle-income families. It is on these families, making too little money to be called wealthy and too much to be called poor, that the main tax burden falls. The tragic fact is that most of these families do not know it. They think that the greater part of the burden is being borne by somebody else.

If this great group of people know that they are the major support of a gigantic institution like the Federal Government, they are likely to take much more interest in just how their money is collected, transferred and expanded.

When they learn it is their earnings, not somebody else's, which constitutes more than 80% of the personal income and social security taxes paid, they will find that no "federal money" is "free" and soon become wiser and better citizens.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The FBI has leaked out word that it intends to wind up its quickie probe of Sen. Tom Dodd and his unethical conduct by this weekend -- with a whitewash.

Members of the Senate Ethics committee, after much hand-wringing, has confided to friends that the protective club spirit will be maintained and that they will have a report out within 30 days upholding their colleague, the democratic senator from Connecticut.

Despite these reports, we can state that the surface has only been scratched regarding the financial manipulations and lobbying of the statuesque senator from Connecticut.

This column has already reported on the money raised by Dodd's 1961 campaign dinner and traced where the money went to. That dinner was supposed to pay off a 1958 campaign debt and raise money for his 1964 campaign -- even though it was three years before he would be up for election. Instead, all of the money went into Dodd's personal account.

Here is the inside story of another dinner, on Oct. 26, 1963, called "Dodd Day," and how the proceeds from the dinner were used, among other things, to repair the senator's summer home and pay liquor bill and the vacation expenses to his family.

LYNDON CAME TO DINNER

Actually three different meals were held on 1963 Dodd day, breakfast in Hartford, luncheon in Woodridge, and dinner in Bridgeport, with the Democratic faithful, including Lyndon B. Johnson, then vice president, leading the tribute. There could have been no doubt about the purpose of Dodd day. It was to raise funds for the senator's 1964 campaign, not pay his personal expenses. Dodd made this clear in a "Dear Lyndon" letter dated August 5, 1963.

"First of all," wrote the senator, "allow me to thank you again for your generous offer to come to Connecticut to assist me in my forthcoming campaign. I wish I could convey to you how enthusiastic everyone is about your visit and how much it will assist me in getting my campaign drive underway. . Your visit means more to me than I can say, Lyndon, and I shall never forget it."

The senator neglected to tell the vice president that most of the money he helped to raise would pay Dodd's personal bills. He also neglected to report this use of political contributions on his income tax returns, though the law clearly states that campaign funds diverted to personal use are taxable.

Dodd assigned several staff members, whose salaries are paid by the taxpayers, to sell tables for the Dodd day testimonials. One senate employee, Joe Flynn, was instructed to go through all the senator's case work files and list everyone whom Dodd had helped in Washington. More than 1,000 names were sent to Ed Sullivan, another senate employee, who directed the solicitation in Connecticut.

The senator later complained to friends that Dodd day had been "no howling financial success." He collected $22,000 in Hartford, $15,000 in Bridgeport, and $10,000 in Woodridge -- total $47,000.

Most of the money was deposited in Hartford's Connecticut Bank and Trust in a special account labeled "testimonial for U.S. Senator Thomas J. Dodd."

A check for $8,000, covering the net receipts from Woodridge, was mailed directly to Dodd in Washington. Somehow the check was misplaced and became the object of an intensive search. There is no trace of what finally happened to the $8,000.

LIQUOR BILLS PAID

After Dodd day, the senator suddenly began sending all his office bills to Hartford to be paid out of the testimonial account. These were mostly personal items, including his liquor and country club bills, which came to his office for payment.

They had amounted to $14,974.28 in 1961 and $11,075.12 in 1962. In 1963, all but $742.04 were paid out of political contributions.

The bills had been allowed to accumulate until after Dodd day. Then the senator's accountant, Michael O'Hare, began mailing the bills to Ed Sullivan in Hartford to be paid out of the testimonial dinner account.

"Enclosed are some of the bills," wrote O'Hare, "which the senator would like you to pay out of the Hartford account . . . The American Airlines bill ($3,018.43) is quite a bit overdue, so that should be paid as soon as possible."

This bill included a number of personal flights by Dodd and his family. Among them was the return fare from a Miami vacation on February 13, 1963 -- $78.12 for the senator's ticket, $56.39 for Mrs. Dodd's ticket, and $32.10 for excess baggage.

The senator's son, Tom, Jr., made a number of flights that were paid out of political contributions. These included trips from Washington to Akron on April 18 ($59.43). Washington to Chicago on June 24 ($91.77) and Washington to Asheville on June 26 ($68.36).

Dodd often collected from the taxpayers for his trips, then collected again from his political campaign fund. Sometimes he actually collected triple airline fare by charging private groups that had invited him to speak.

As we previously reported, Dodd paid $8,000 out of his Dodd day collections to ghost-writer Ed Lockett to write a book for him. Yet the senator put the $1,800 advance in his own pocket. The book still hasn't been published.

The senator also began extensive repairs on his North Stonington, Conn., country home after Dodd day.

It will be interesting to see whether the Senate Ethics committee considers Dodd's personal use of campaign funds and failure to pay taxes on them to be ethical.

SEN. DODD EDITORIALS

ST. LOUIS POST DISPATCH -- "The Senate committee on standards and conduct ought to be encouraged to get to the bottom of what it has termed 'charges of misconduct' against Senator Dodd of Connecticut. . .

"What is disturbing about the case is that the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Attorney General Katzenbach apparently are questioning some of Mr. Pearson's sources to determine how they obtained the information used by Mr. Pearson in his columns.

"Since Mr. Dodd has powerful friends in the White House and federal agencies there is bound to be the ugly suspicion that someone is trying to discredit Mr. Pearson's case by showing he obtained the evidence in an irregular manner. The point here is not how Mr. Pearson obtained his information, but whether his charges stand up. That is what the Senate committee is honor bound to determine. Any other inquiry is out of order at this time."

THE LOS ANGELES TIMES--"Grave charges of misconduct in office have been levelled against Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) by columnist Drew Pearson. Some of these accusations go far beyond alleged unethical practices. They involve charges that Dodd siphoned political campaign funds into his private bank account.

"With obvious reluctance, the senate's permanent select committee on standards and conduct, established in the wake of the Bobby Baker scandals, has undertaken a probe of these accusations.

"Their problem, say Washington observers, is compounded by the fact that the committee as yet hasn't even drawn up a yardstick for measuring misconduct.

"This strikes us as a weak alibi, in the Dodd case, for not pressing vigorously ahead with their investigation. If true, Pearon's charges against the senator go beyond any borderline aspects of unethical behavior. If false, they constitute a serious breach of journalistic conduct on the part of Pearson himself.

"Newspapers throughout the country, including the times, have reported the bulk of Pearson's charges. His sharp attack against Dodd is too widely known, and too detailed, for the ethics committee to sweep the matter under the rug of a closed hearing room.

"The Bobby Baker case gives melancholy proof that the senate has no stomach for policing itself. Aside from election frauds, it has acted to censure only two senators in the last 100 years.

". . . The senate must resolve this present situation, promptly, cleanly, and without equivocation. Unless it does, a shameful shadow will fall across a great legislative institution, which no amount of pious double-talk can drive away."

THE MILWAUKEE JOURNAL -- "Between Jan. 24 and Mar. 1 columnist Drew Pearson published some 13 documented reports on alleged activities of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) and his relations with Gen. Julius Klein, lobbyist and a registered agent for West German interests.

"Surely this is a matter for serious attention and some action. Dodd himself deserves the opportunity to clear his name if the charges are untrue. The senate itself should want to know whether they are true.

"Two facts, however, indicate how little the congress likes to look into such matters. Rep. Resnick (D-N.Y.) took the house floor to discuss the charges against Dodd and was gavelled down by speaker McCormack. One does not criticize a member of the opposite house. The ethics committee did not even meet until Dodd's statement that he would show it his files. By tradition it doesn't meet unless a senator asks that it investigate him -- perhaps the major reason it meets so seldom. Yet the ethics committee is empowered to meet and act on its own and reportedly one formal request for action on Dodd was filed.

"Dodd is an important senator. His reputation and that of the senate itself require that these serious charges by fully investigated.

THE HARTFORD COURANT -- ". . . There is a larger question raised by the series of claims made against the senator: That is, the senate itself, and its unwillingness either to establish ethical standards or to enforce them.

"The Bobby Baker inquiry was a shameful whitewash, and there was a general feeling that many senators were afraid that the waters of the inquiry were lapping at their own feet. Mr. Baker has since been indicted on a series of alleged criminal acts. The consensus is that his case will not go to trial before the next election.

"Not only is the senate unwilling to establish a code of ethics, or even to inquire fully into alleged misconduct, but it has not moved to renovate the election laws.

"The Senate Ethics committee has thus far displayed more interest in how the documents on which the accusations are based fell into the hand of these two columnists. But the criticism having been made, Mr. Dodd certainly should be given the chance to put the public record in order. Summary judgment would be most unfair."

Miss Judy Deal Is Bride Of Carl Marvin Lynch

CHARLESTON -- Miss Judy Deal, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Loran Deal and Carl Marvin Lynch of Bertrand, son of Mrs. Helen Dale of Bertrand, were married at her parents' home, 1204 Charleston Ave., Thursday at 8 p.m. The brides father married the young couple using the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a two piece navy blue linen suit with matching accessories and a corsage of white mums with blue ribbon. Miss Gail Hurley of Bertrand served as maid of honor. She wore a white lace dress and a corsage of white mums. Max Bannister of Bertrand served as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held for the friends and relatives that attended the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white lace tablecloth and centered with the wedding cake. Light blue candles were used in decorating the table. Coffee and punch were poured by Mrs. Paul Graham and her daughter, Carla, served the cake.

The bride is a senior at Charleston high school where she will continue until her graduation in May. The groom is employed as a construction worker for Parker and McTigue in East Prairie. They are making their home at 1105 S. Main St.

Girl Scout Leaders Meet

The Junior, Cadette and Senior Girl Scout Neighborhood leaders met Wednesday morning, April 6, at the home of Mrs. Loomis Mayfield, Jr., with Mrs. Joe Dye, neighborhood chairman, presiding.

Appreciation was expressed to the troops for their cooperation during Girl Scout Week and for participation in the Safety Daisy Campaign. It was decided that this campaign was worthwhile and that it should be continued in some form next year. The cookie sale was determined to have been highly successful in securing funds for the winterized camping quarters at Latonka.

Parents consent forms to be used for any Scout trip were distributed as was information on Day Camps and troop bridging schedules.

The group discussed troop arrangements for the coming year and ceremonies for this spring, which will include fly-up from Brownie to Junior; rededication, Junior to Cadette and capping, Cadette to Senior.

A reminder for application for camperships was given and regulations for registration were repeated. For Camp Latonka, they are to be made through May 10. A partial fee must accompany the registration with the balance due June 1 in the Girl Scout Office.

Day camp registration begun April 1 and will continue through May 15. Registration for the Cotton Boll Roundup was to be completed by Monday, April 11.

For new members who prefer summer basic training sessions to those regularly held in the fall, a tentative program has been set up. Those interested should contact Mrs. Dye.

Troop No. 13 reported a successful hamburger day and Troop No. 141 a successful bake sale. This money will be used toward their Promise in Action projects.

Announcement was made of a Memorial Fund set up by the Cotton Boll Council to which contributions can be made toward the operating expenses of Camp Latonka.

Mrs. Galemore Is President of Study Club

CHARLESTON -- The 20th Century Study Club held its regular monthly meeting at the County Library Monday. A panel discussion was held by the members on the problems of mental health. Those participating were the president, Mrs. Press Berry, Jr.; Mrs. Ronnie Knight, Mrs. Ralph Carr, Jr., Mrs. Larry Hine and Mrs. Albert Goodin IV. One of the most interesting facts brought up during the discussion was that there are more mentally ill than there are persons with cancer, heart disease and the other major illnesses combined.

The following slate of officers were presented to the members and approved for the 1966-67 year: Mrs. Jerry Galemore, president; Mrs. Chuck Jordan, vice president; Mrs. Andy French, Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Bud Jones, recording secretary; and Mrs. Paul Hill, corresponding secretary.

Plans were made for the banquet, which is to be the last meeting of the year, to be held at the Charcoal House in Sikeston, on May 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Harrison Is Hostess to Class Meeting

The Kings Daughter Class of the First Baptist church met at 2 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Gerda Harrison with 10 members present.

Mrs. E. T. Freeman, president, was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Jim Nickell led the opening prayer.

Mrs. Waid Moore gave the devotion from Psalms 23. Mrs. Moore read a poem, "Don't Find Fault." Mrs. Thomas Mathis gave the secretary's report and Mrs. Moore gave the treasurer's report.

The group captains reported and all were approved.

Old and new business was discussed by members. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Mathis.

The hostess served refreshments and the class enjoyed a fellowship hour.

O fill me with Thy fullness, Lord,
Until my very heart o'erflow
In kindling thought and glowing word,
Thy love to tell, Thy praise to show.

Housewives Can Bring Home Bacon Again

NEW YORK (AP) -- Housewives can start bringing home the bacon again.

Meat prices are leveling off at many of the nation's food stores.

Bacon climbed to $1.19 a pound in some areas in January, but now has dropped 10 to 30 per cent.

Hams are down 2 to 4 cents a pound this week in San Francisco, and beef ribs are down 3 to 4 cents in Southern California.

Choice grade steer beef chucks, trimmed loins and cured hams are headed lower in the Pacific Northwest.

A major New York area supermarket chain has dropped fryer prices 16 cents a pound to the lowest levels since December.

Wholesale food prices, which were 15 per cent higher than a year ago during the winter, now are running 10.3 per cent higher.

Fresh strawberries are beginning to move to market, and warm weather has pushed the asparagus crop along rapidly in California.

Artichokes, green beans, cabbage, corn and lettuce also are plentiful in most areas.

In canned foods, stocks of peas, okra, mixed vegetables, succotash, peas and carrots, snap beans, chili sauce, apples, applesauce, apricot, grapegruit segments, grapefruit juice, orange juice and blended juices are greater than last year.

Mrs. H. H. Harper and Glenn and Cleber Harper visited recently with their daughters and sisters, Mrs. R. L. Johnson and family in Belleville, Ill., and Mrs. J. A. Johnson and family of Collinsville, Ill.

Eastern Star Has Meeting

Sikeston Chapter No. 137, Order of the Eastern Star, met March 10 in the Masonic Temple at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. Floyd Reed, worthy matron, presiding.

After the opening of the chapter, the flag of the United States was presented by the associate patron, C. E. Sadler, and the pledge of allegiance was repeated under the leadership of the worthy patron, August Butler. All present joined in singing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The chapter had out-of-town visitors from Morley, Charleston, Advance, Lilbourn and New Madrid.

The worthy matron and worthy patron welcomed the visitors.

The next order of business was the initiation of Mrs. Bernice D. DuSablon and Mrs. Dessie Allen into the order.

The committees gave reports of their work. The report of sickness was given.

The charter was draped in memory of Sister Lisa Davis who served the chapter as worthy matron in 1937 and Brother I. G. Lewis who served the chapter as worthy patron in 1935, 1940, 1941 and 1942 and was a faithful member as long as his health would permit.

The worthy matron expressed words of sympathy for their passing.

The worthy matron thanked her secret pal or pals for the gift of a cup and saucer of her china and for the corsage from her flower friend. She also thanked her protems for the evening.

She invited all to the dining room for refreshments. The tables were decorated in green and white in carrying out the St. Patrick's Day theme. The hosts and hostesses were Chairman Mrs. Emma Butler, August Butler, Mrs. Ila Underhill, Mrs. Naomi Davis, Mrs. Vivian Harris, Mrs. Byrdine Mills, Joe Milis and Mrs. Myrtle Carrington.

THAT TIME OF YEAR

"Make out my income tax return
It won't be any trouble"
My spouse blighely says to me
And leaves me with that rubble!

My head begins to whirl around
As I itemize deductions
I can't believe how dense I am
About "Page 2" instructions.

The dividends and interest rates
Leave me quite befuddled
With credits and adjustments
I'm really getting muddled.

Now I've reached the computation
I'm so very much annoyed,
I almost wish . . . I really wish. . . .
That man was unemployed!

Braves Ordered Back to Milwaukee

By KEN HARTNETT
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The National League faced the threat today of a forced uprooting from its potentially rich new territory in Atlanta unless it bowed to a Wisconsin court order and restored baseball to Milwaukee.

The ruling by Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller Wednesday night struck at the protective coating that has shielded baseball from antitrust laws since 1922 and left the young 1966 season under long legal shadows.

Roller, 64, found the Atlanta Braves and the National League in violation of Wisconsin antitrust law for pulling the Braves out of Milwaukee while refusing to grant the city a replacement team.

The judge said the Braves must return to Milwaukee, their home from 1953 through 1965, if the league fails to submit by noon May 16 a 1967 expansion plan that would include Milwaukee.

Baseball's reaction to the ruling, which climaxed a 38-day trial, was cautious.

A spokesman for Commissioner William Eckert issued a statement saying baseball intended t o file an immediate appeal to the Wisconsin Supreme Court.

Later, Eckert telephoned The Associated Press and asked that the statement be withdrawn.

"I have no comment now," Eckert said. "I will take it under advisement."

Walter O'Malley, president of the Los Angeles Dodgers, said, "It seems to be utterly impossible to comply with the court's decision, but we'll be guided by the attorneys who have represented us in the litigation."

Wisconsin officials were delighted by Roller's decision, which gave the state precisely what it had sought.

Not only did Roller order the Braves' return in the absence of expansion agreement, but he assessed the National League and its 10 members fines of $5,000 each.

The judge also ruled that the state is entitled to "costs and disbursments." State costs in the case could run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Atty. Gen. Bronson La Follette hailed the decision and said Wisconsin "will have the benefit of a major league franchise operating in full compliance with the laws of this state."

LaFollette did not say how this would be done, nor did Willard S. Stafford, chief counsel for the state in the case.

But Wisconsin is expected to seek contempt citations against the defendants should baseball ignore the May 16th deadline.

Contempt machinery would allow Wisconsin to seek support of states with National League teams in enforcing Roller's order.

Should even one of eight such states agree to comply, the National League schedule could be in shambles.

"The next move is up to baseball," said Stafford, who stalked the courthouse corridors through a nerve-wracking day of waiting Wednesday. "If they can live with it, so can we," he said.

Roller, who worked 37 consecutive hours to put the final judgement in shape, said the delay in completing the 176-page document Wednesday was significant.

The judge would not elaborate on what he meant by significant but said settlement offers had been received both "before and during" the trial which ended April 6.

"All I can say is that there was discussion but no consummation," Roller said.

The judge said no baseball officials had contacted him recently to discuss a possible solution to the legal tangle.

Hawks Blast Lakers 131-127 Even Series

By MIKE RECHT
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If there were any disappointed St. Louis Hawks after Wednesday night's rousing 131-127 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers, it probably was Bill Bridges. He kept moaning about the rebound shortage.

"I can't believe I got only 11," he said.

But the way the Western Division playoffs of the National Basketball Association heated up the reason was clear. Almost everything that went up, went in.

To prolong the best - of - seven series to a seventh game, the Hawks had to overcome the Lakers' 50.5 per cent shooting from the field with 52.5 per cent of their own. Their shooting forced the teams' return to Los Angeles for the deciding game Friday night. The winner will meet the Boston Celtics for the NBA title.

"There weren't many baskets given away," said Hawks' Coach Richie Guerin, who hit eight of 16 himself, "although you wouldn't think so from the score."

Laker Coach Fred Schaus agreed.

"I was disgusted after we lost Sunday," he said, "but I thought we played well in this game. We made the Hawks take the shots we wanted them to take, but they hit them. They're not usually an outcourt shooting team."

"I told my boys at the quarter and again at the half that the Lakers are shooting the heck out of the basket, but couldn't keep that up," Guerin said. His club managed a 36-36 first quarter tie and a 69-68 halftime lead, although the Lakers shot better than 60 per cent and the Hawks "only" 56 per cent.

The torrid pace continued in the third period with the Hawks still ahead by one, but Guerin proved a prophet in the final period. The Lakers cooled off enough for the Hawks to go on a 17-2 spree behind Zelmo Beaty and Joe Caldwell that gave them a 126-114 lead. The Lakers couldn't catch up in spite of Jerry West's efforts.

Bridges himself hit 13 of 22 shots for 29 points, only outdone by West's 14 of 25 for 38 markers.

Koufax Hit for Five Hits And Five Runs in 7-6 Loss

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax must have had stage fright.

What else could account for his fumbling performance in his first start of the 1966 baseball season?

Koufax, who ended his 32-day holdout and his movie career at the same time two weeks ago, was battered from the mound in the fourth inning Wednesday night in Houston's 7-6 victory over Los Angeles.

The brilliant left-hander glittered in the first inning, but there was nothing award-winning about his performance after that. He gave up five runs on five hits and two walks and was around long enough only to pitch to one batter in the fourth inning.

Although Koufax encountered such games last season — however rare — he never made an error. He did against the Astros, though, and that's what led him off the stage.

After Sonny Jackson beat out an infield single with one out in the third inning, Jim Wynn grounded to the mound. Koufax fumbled the ball for an error, and the Astros had two runners on.

Dave Nicholson struck out for what would have been the third out, but Bob Aspromonte singled for one run and Joe Morgan clouted a homer for three more.

Koufax finally retired the side only to have John Bateman lead off the next inning with a triple and retire Koufax.

The Dodger ace, who last year won his first start plus 25 more, thus departed with a fielding average of .000, a mere 1,000 points below his showing in 1965 when he accepted 46 chances flawlessly.

The Dodgers will settle for a little more flawless pitching.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh whipped Atlanta 6-0, and San Francisco defeated Chicago 4-0. Rain washed out New York at Cincinnati for the third straight day.

After Morgan's homer gave the Astros a 5-3 lead, John Roseboro tied it with a two-run homer. The Astros finally won it in the ninth when Chuck Harrison signled, was sacrificed to second and raced home as Rusty Staub singled.

Vernon Law and Bob Bolin each pitched four-hitters and didn't walk anyone in the Pirates' and Giants' victories.

Law stopped Atlanta while Willie Stargell and Donn Clendenon each hit two-run homers. Stargell added two other hits and drove in another run.

Bolin allowed the Cubs to get more than one man on base only once. The Giants, meanwhile, put the game away with three runs in the third inning, two on Tito Fuentes' single that got through left fielder George Altman's legs.

John Herrnstein's pinch-hit, run-scoring single in the 12th inning carried Philadelphia past St. Louis. Rich Allen singled with two out and stole second before Herrnstein signled. Allen also figured in the Phillies' other two runs with a single and a double.

PITTSBURG, Kan. AP - Roy Oldperson of Haskell Institute set a meet record of 4:20.2 in the mile and won the two-mile in 9:41.3 Tuesday as his school finished third in the junior college division of the Pittsburg State Relays.

Competition in the high school division will be held Friday.

Pittsburg State's freshmen won Tuesday with 71 1/2 points. Hutchinson Junior College finished second with 66 points, followed by Haskell 26, Arkanses City 20, Parsons 19, Coffeyville 18, Joplin 17, Fort Scott 16, Chanute 6, Miami, Okla., 4 and Ozark Bible 3.

MILWAUKEE AP - A Milwaukee judge who missed his opening day deadline for a verdict in Wisconsin's antitrust battle against the Braves and baseball struggled again today to complete the decision and set 9 a.m. for the announcement.

There was no assurance, however, that this timetable would be met either as the courtroom crew pressed past midnight, still trying to put the finishing touches on a document that ran an estimated 200 pages.

Wisconsin has asked Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller to order the Braves returned to Milwaukee unless the city is given an expansion team. The Braves opened in Atlanta Tuesday night with a 3-2 loss in 14 innings to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Atlanta Braves' drew an opening day high of 50,671 for their Dixie debut Tuesday, pushing major league baseball's opening day attendance to a total of 272,844.

The attendance figured to be higher but was held down by rain that forced the postponement of two National League openers, New York at Cincinnati and Philadelphia at St. Louis.

With the Braves showing the way, three National League openers attracted 126,151. Both the Cleveland at Washington and Detroit at New York openers drew more than 40,000, giving the American League a total of 146,693 for five games.

WEST POINT, N.Y. AP - Bobby Dobbs, 43-year-old head football coach at Texas Western College, may decide today whether to become the new Army coach or remain in his present post at the El Paso Tex. school.

The only thing definite, however, is that Dobbs came here Tuesday to confer with Col. Raymond P. Murphy, director of athletics at Army.

"I talked with him Tuesday and will talk with him again today," said Col. Murphy who first conferred with Dobbs in El Paso Saturday after Army had received permission from Texas Western officials to negotiate with him.

Col. Murphy admitted that Dobbs is a leading candidate to succeed Paul Dietzel who resigned as Army coach last week to become coach and athletic director at South Carolina.

Cards Lose In Twelfth 3-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The name of the game is frustration for the St. Louis Cardinals and the Kansas City Athletics.

The Cardinals tied the Philadelphia Phillies 2-2 in the eighth inning Wednesday night when speedy Lou Brock singled, stole second and sprinted home on a sharp single from Curt Flood. Then, the Cardinals hung around until the 12th inning when a pinch hitter named John Herrnstein singled Rich Allen home and Philadelphia won 3-2.

Things were just as bad for the A's who were playing the American League champion twins at Minneapolis - St. Paul. Kansas City relief pitcher Paul Lindblad, a rookie, had stopped the muscled twins for four innings and the aJs were tied 3-3. Zoilo Versalles and Sandy Valdespino led off the eighth with two straight singles. Tony Oliva then stepped to the plate and taught the rookie his manners by ripping the ball into the right centerfield bullpin to give the Twins a 5-3 victory.

Maybe Redbird manager Red Schoendienst had a point when he objected before the game to playing night baseball in the first week of the baseball season.

"By April 18th or so, they could play night games," Schoendienst said. "But, they should forget about them the first week."

The excuse wouldn't work for Kansas City though. They played in the daytime.

Valdespino's two-run homer in the first for Minnesota was erased when Kansas City scored two unearned runs in the fourth. The Athletics got their other run in the third.

Larry Jaster, 3-0 last year, faces Jim Bunning, 19-9 as Jaster tries to put the Cardinals on the winning side of the ledger for the first time tonight at St. Louis.

Fred Talbot, 10-12, will start for Kansas City against the Twins' Jim Kaat, 18-11, at Minnesota today.

Athletics Fall To Twins 5-3

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore is doing the Robinson Rock, a swinging new step that could make a lot of American League pitchers look like monkeys before this season is over.

It's really a simple step. First Frank Robinson works over an opposing pitcher. If the hurler still shows any signs of fight, Brooks Robinson steps in and finishes the job.

The Robinson boys continued their steady tattoo against the Boston Red Sox Wednesday as the Orioles completed a two-game sweep 8-1. In the only other American League game played, Minnesota used an eighth inning home run by Tony Oliva to get past Kansas City 5-3.

Rain and cold weather postponed Cleveland's game at Washington and Detroit's date at New York.

The Robinsons practiced their thunder and lightning routine on Dave Morehead after the Red Sox starter had struck out the first two batters he faced. Then Frank pounded his second homer of the season and Brooks followed with his No. 2.

That was enough for Jim Palmer, who limited the Red Sox to five hits and walloped a two-run homer of his own in the second. Paul Blair ripped a bases-loaded double for three more runs in the eighth.

The homers brought the Robinsons' two-day haul in Fenway Park to a combined 7-for-18 including four homers and six runs batted in.

Minnesota was trailing Kansas City 3-2 with Athletics' rookie Paul Lindblad working on four shutout innings of relief in the eighth when the Twins rallied.

With two out, Zoilo Versalles singled and moved up on Sandy Valdespino's hit. Then Oliva walloped his first homer into the bullpen in right center field, 420 feet away.

Valdespino had connected with a mate aboard for Minnesota's first two runs in the first inning.

Kansas City had taken advantage of some shoddy Minnesota fielding for two runs against starter Camilo Pascual in the fourth. Ken Harrelson singled and came all the way around on Ed Charles' hit when Harmon Killebrew let a throw from the outfield skip past him. Charles then stole third and scored when Earl Battey's throw went into left field.

Wife Seeks To Have Clay Held In Contempt

MIAMI (AP) -- Cassius Clay's divorced wife, Sonji, petitioned Wednesday to have the boxer held in contempt for failing to post a $25,000 bond to guarantee alimony payments.

Counsel for Mrs. Clay said the divorce decree signed in January stipulated the posting of the bond. Circuit Court Judge Harold Spaet set April 26 for hearing on the contempt request.

Clay escaped being jailed last week when he paid up back alimony. By the terms of the divorce, he is to pay Sonji $1250 a month for 121 months.

Oran to Host Sub-State Baseball Tourney

ORAN -- Oran high school will host the State Sub-District baseball tournament starting Monday, April 18th.

Oran and Bell City will get things started at 1 p.m. in what should prove to be a very good ball game, as each team is well matched for the game, with Bell City having good pitching, and Oran good hitting behind All-State Basketball guard Don Metz.

Sikeston's mighty Bulldogs meet Bloomfield following the Oran-Bell City clash. The Bulldogs will be in top shape for this tournament and have a very good chance of taking first place honors.

Tuesday's schedule will pit Richland against Scott County Central in a 1 p.m. game and Advance and Matthews will round out first round play at 3:30 p.m.

The winners of Mondays games will advance to Semi-Finals Wednesday and play at 1 p.m. and the winners of the Tuesday's games will meet in the second game of the semi-finals at 3:30.

In the event of inclement weather the games will be moved forward one day.

Clay May Meet Cooper Next Month in London

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) -- Negotiations are in progress for Cassius Clay to defend his heavyweight title against British champion Henry Cooper next month in London.

The likely date for the fight is May 21, said Gordon B. Davidson, an attorney for Clay's Louisville sponsoring group.

Davidson said Wednesday arrangements for the bout might be completed within 10 days.

"Assuming that we can get a contract --and permission from the draft board-- it seems likely that Clay will fight at least one more time before he goes into the Army," Davidson said.

Clay, who has appealed his 1-A draft classification, is expected to be called to active duty in late May if the appeal is rejected, Davidson said.

Mays One Shy of Magic 1000 Extra-Base Club

CINCINNATI AP -- The home run Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants hit Tuesday against the Chicago Cubs was the 999th extra-base hit of his career.

National League statisticians said it moved Mays into eleventh place in the all-time major-league list for extra-base hits. He figures soon to move into the ninth spot ahead of Honus Wagner, who had 1004, and Rogers Hornsby, who had 1011.

By the season's end he also could be ahead of Mel Ott, who had 1071.

Mays also needs only two more runs scored to have a career record of 1500.

Why did Colonel Taylor make his Bourbon in a castle?

In 1887, Col. Edmund H. Taylor, Jr., set out to find a special kind of water to make Bourbon with: limestone spring water.

This water has an incredibly tantalizing flavor that it acquires naturally by bubbling up through the limestone ground-rock.

He found a spring near Frankfort, Kentucky. The water here ran forth so pure, so plentiful that he knew he would never want to make Bourbon anywhere else.

So, next to his spring, he built his distillery. And since he was there to stay, he built it to last. Built it in the form of a castle made of the same limestone that was to give his water its intriguing flavor.

Does the Colonel's castle make a better Bourbon?

FISHING FACTS

COMMON -- BUT UNCOMMON --FISHING

Bass, brim and trout get all the angling headlines, but there are a lot of lesser known species that attract a loyal following among members of the angling fraternity.

Take the common sucker, for instance.

Here's a lowly breed of fish that is frequently disdained as fertilizer in some circles. Yet, during his spring spawning runs, you may have trouble finding elbow room around many streams. Why? Because smoked sucker is a delicacy that rivals expensive salmon.

If you're partial towards big fish, then rig up a heavy salt-water outfit with a treble hook that appears more suitable for grappling than fishing, and go after the huge spoonbills that are migrating in many areas right now.

Hook one of these 50 or 60-pound brutes, and you'll not only appreciate a healthy application of liniment that night, but you'll also be able to feed the whole neighborhood.

If fast action appeals, and you're in the right part of the country at the time, try fly-rodding for ciscoes. Ordinarily, a commercial species that gets little notice in sportsfishing annals, ciscoes move inshore for the May fly season on the Great Lakes. During a hatch, you'll be kept so busy catching these small "lake herring" torpedos you'll forget they're not considered sporting.

Keep your ears tuned to reports on the "off-beat" species, and broaden your angling horizons.

At the very least, you'll discover new sport and acquire new tastes in the process.

Fishing boats now travel thousands of miles at sea because they are equipped to process and freeze the catch without returning to the home base.

After the first 60 days of hospital confinement under medicare, the patient will pay $10 a day up to a limit of 90 days.

Charles Pardon To Be Richland High Coach

Charles Pardon, present coach at Scott County Central high school has accepted the head coaching job at Richland high school for the coming year, it was announced today.

Pardon had a very successful year at Scott Central this past season as he coached his basketball team to second place in the state regional tournament and led his track team to second place in the state class S indoor track meet.

Pardon will replace Bob Cradic who has resigned to take over the head coaching job at Salem high school.

Football Cards To Meet Chicago In Final Pre-Season Game

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- The Football Cardinals will round out their pre-season schedule when they oppose the Chicago Bears in the annual Armed Forces Classic on Friday, September 2,

Game time is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Soldier Field in Chicago.

The Big Red won three previous Armed Forces clashes, defeating the Bears 17-14 in 1963 and edging the Chicagoans 7-3 in 1964. They whipped the Bears 25-3 in last year's contest.

In other pre-season competition, the Cardinals will host the Atlanta Falcons on Saturday night, August 6, in the annual Glennon Hospital benefit game. They will also face the Lions at Detroit on Thursday night, August 11; the Colts in the St. Louis Symphony benefit game on Friday evening, August 19, and the Rams at Los Angeles on Saturday night, August 27.

Malden Leaders To Conference

MALDEN -- Members of the Malden Chamber of Commerce will attend the Eighth Annual Missouri Industrial Development Conference in Jefferson City on April 20 and 21.

Those planning to attend the clinic are Veryl L. Riddle, chairman of the Chamber's industrial committee; Dr. Fred G. Davis, member of the industrial committee; Joe Brasher, president of the Chamber; and Ronnie Borders, president of the Jaycees and member of the Chamber's board of directors.

Landowners to Beautify I-55

JACKSON -- Six landowners along Highway I-55 in Cape County have signed agreements with the Cape County ASC office to participate in a highway beautification program here.

Norman Weiss, ASC office manager, said the program is a special project under the Agricultural Conservation Program and at this time is very limited. Cape County is one of three in southeast Missouri participating in the program, he said.

Weiss said the ASC County Committee met with landowners along the interstate highway last week to explain provisions of the project and so far six have signed their intent to participate.

The program provides funds up to 80 per cent of cost for brush eradication, but not clearing, and for pasture seeding. Landowners must maintain the improvement for five years.

Weiss said only landowners adjacent to Highway I-55 are eligible under the special project. He added that he expects the principal benefit will be to small plots of ground isolated by the interstate from the rest of a farm, which because of their small size would not be economical to keep up by the landowners alone.

Pre-School Roundup Set

PORTAGEVILLE -- The pre-school roundup for the North Pemiscot school district will be held according to the following schedule:

April 21, Concord, 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.

April 21, Hayward, 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

April 26, Wardell Elem. 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.

April 26, Hodgen, 1:00 to 2:30 p.m.

April 29, Ross Central 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.

If a child will have reached the age of six (6) on or before Sept. 30, 1966, he should be brought in for the roundup.

The Pemiscot County Health Department will have a staff present to test children's vision, hearing, and to take their height and weight.

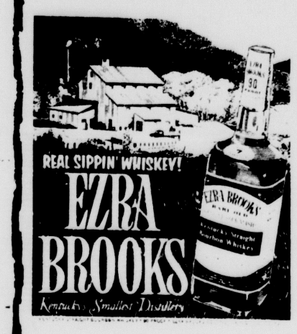

A child's birth certificate and immunization record must be brought.

When I Was A Boy

B.F. "Pappy" Blanton

As compiled by Ralph Gregory, Curator of the Mark Twain Shrine, Florida, from the writings of the founder of the Appeal, B. F. "Pappy" Blanton, in 1919-20. A contemporary of Mark Twain, "Pappy" Blanton wrote of the times and customs that were so dear to Twain, and about which Twain wrote so many interesting and humorous anecdotes.
(Verbatim copy, with some questions and guesses as to missing words)

August 27, 1920

When I was a boy there was no such thing as a prolonged drought such as we have just had in northeast Missouri. If there was I have no recollection of it. The land in cultivation was new and very fertile and when a farmer planted his seed he had no doubt of reaping a bountiful harvest. It is true and farming was done on a much smaller scale than it is at present, but the yield was greater per acre.

I am of the opinion that there has been as much improvement in farming since I was a boy as there has been in arts and science or mechanical engineering, and there is a wonderful difference in the farmer of ful difference in the farmer of today and the tiller of the soil of 70 years ago. Then the farmer did not know very much of what was going on in the world but now the farmer is well informed on all questions of the day and as well read and as well posted as his city brother, and as a general thing is a much more far seeing and better man than most men in the large cities.

When I was a boy whiskey could be bought for 25 cents a gallon anywhere and by the barrel it could be bought for 18 cents a gallon. Most of the stores in country sold whiskey as they had no license to pay and their customers all liked a dram when in town. That one dram cost only 5 cents and often nothing. There were two distilleries in our neighborhood but for all that there was very little drunkenness. We knew of one old soak who often got drunk and raised the devil at home, and caused his wife to shed a bushel of tears, but she broke him finally. He came home one time so drunk that he just fell on the floor and went to sleep. His wife tied him head and foot to a great tall bedpost and kept him there until he got sober. In the meantime she had all the neighbors to come in and when he sobered up and saw the house full of people he swore he would never drink again - and he kept his word.

When I was a boy about all the diseases we had were chills and fever, stone bruises and colic. Then no one had ever heard of adernolds, tonsils, appendicitis, neuritis or any of the diseases that are now so fashionable with the doctors and the hospitals all over the country. If baby got ill the good old ladies gave it some catnip tea and maybe a drop or two of paragoric. These remedies generally got good results. Children in those days were not only lousy but wormy. There were none in the country that were exempt. They all had e'm. The great remedy for worms was Fahnestock's Vermifrize, the vilest stuff that ever children had rammed down their throats. But it got results. Gosh, I can almost taste that stuff now! It was awful and if any of my readers ever took any of it they know that I am telling the truth.

When I was a boy it was a rare thing to find a farmer who took a newspaper. The only paper that I can remember seeing when I was ten years old was the old St. Louis Republican, a great nine column paper and a strong Democratic paper. It was taken by my grandfather McCrary, who hated the Whigs worse than the devil hates holy water. You see, away back there two political parties were the Whig and Democrat and feeling ran high during campaign. Now look at the farmers. They take hundreds of daily papers in every county in the state and thousands of county papers. He is well posted and not the greenhorn he was when I was a boy. And the time is coming when the farmer will be looked up to more than men in other callings. He is the coming man.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

RACE RELATIONS

Several of the Court members, although ardent foes of racial discrimination, began to reflect growing misgivings in the 1964 term about the methods used by militant "civil rights" workers. Mr. Justice Black reiterated his opposition to "sit ins" expressed the previous year in Bell v. Maryland. Long as adamantly in favor of freedom of speech and as against racial discrimination as any member of the Court, he was not prepared to concede that the end justifies any means used to obtain it. He wrote:

"I do not understand from what the Court says that it interprets those provisions of the Civil Rights Act which give a right to be served without discrimination in an establishment which the Act covers as also authorizing persons who are unlawfully refused service a "right" to take the law into their own hands by sitting down and occupying the premises for as long as they choose to stay."

Mr. Justice White's impatience with the asserted right of anyone to break the law to put across his particular point of view was even more evident. He said:

"Finally, had Congress intended to ratify massive disobedience to the law, so often attended by violence, I feel sure it would have said so in unmistakable language. The truth is that it is only judical rhetoric to blame this result on Congress . . . Whether persons or groups should engage in nonviolent disobedience to laws with which they disagree perhaps defies any categorical answer for the guidance of every individual in every circumstance. But whether a court should give it wholesale sanction is a wholly different question which calls for only one answer."

In spite of the paucity of Congressional authorization and the dangers inherent in allowing uninhibited "sit-in" demonstrations, five members of the Court demonstrated that racial nondiscrimination was such a summa bona as to blot out all other considerations, and to warrant stretching the law as well. If ever there were total commitment, the Court demonstrated it on this issue.

The Court also was not above stretching the facts, in race relations cases, where necessary to save some overzealous demonstrator from the penalty for his own excesses, as shown by two companion cases where the Court freed a picket line leader whom the Louisiana courts had convicted of disturbing the peace, obstructing public passages, and picketing a courthouse while a court was in session. The defendant in this case, a minister named Cox, was the leader of 2,000 angry demonstrators who converged on the Baton Rouge courthouse to protest the arrest of several of their members the previous day. Mr. Cox's army filled an entire sidewalk for a block, and refused to move when their leader had finished speaking at the request of the police to clear the sidewalk.

Hope Not So Funny

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope is such a fine generous man and associated with such good causes that it almost seems ungrateful to be less than enchanted with any of his television programs.

But the truth is that sometimes — and Wednesday night was one of them — the "Bob Hope Comedy Specials" on NBC are not terribly amusing and seem to have been tossed together as casually as a salad.

The program Wednesday night was taped for broadcast four weeks ago but that was the night when the TV networks devoted the entire evening to covering the Gemini 8 splashdown and the recovery of the astronauts.

Hope's opening monologue, usually the brightest part of the show, is so current and topical that the original one was discarded and a new one substituted.

Favorite subject of Hope sketches over the years seems to be a burlesque of a current movie or television show. Wednesday night there was a comedy sequence based on a movie, "The Magnificent Seven" and called "The Putrid Six." This involved a lot of slapstick gun play between Hope, playing a Mexican bandit, and Lee Marvin as a bounty hunter. This may have been mighty funny to those who have seen the movie but it was pretty well lost on those of us who had not.

"I Spy," NBC's jaunty secret agent series, has been renewed for another season, which it certainly deserves for it is one of the seasons better entertainment efforts. It concerned itself with brainwashing and hypnosis Wednesday night, and the opening portion of the show contained a long and most unpleasant sequence in which good agent Robert Culp was tortured and beaten by a bad enemy scientist. For the rest of the show he staggered around like a drugged man trying to kill his fellow agent, Bill Cosby.

Despite the sophisticated dialogue and the slick production of the show, the big climax came in a very familiar television setting — the deserted warehouse.

HAM BAKE

RONCO recipe of the month

1 10 oz. pkg. frozen broccoli
4 oz. Ronco Elbow Macaroni
1 10 oz. can cream of mushroom soup
1 6 oz. can evaporated milk
¼ cup grated American cheese
2 cups diced cooked ham
3 tbsp. melted butter or margarine
½ cup fine bread crumbs

Cook broccoli according to package directions until barely tender. Cook macaroni according to directions on package. Combine mushroom soup, milk, cheese, ham and macaroni. Spoon half of mixture into 2½ qt. casserole. Arrange broccoli over layer, reserving one stalk. Cover with remaining macaroni mixture. Combine butter or margarine and crumbs. Border edge with crumbs. Bake in 350° oven 30 minutes. Garnish top with broccoli. Serves 4.

Plural Wives Lead To Plural Problems

LOBAMBA, Swaziland AP -- This British protectorate adjoining South Africa is getting its independence in 1969, and its tribal monarch, King Sobhuza, faces a king-size problem.

Which one of his uncountable tribal wives gets the title of Swaziland's First Lady?

Down at the mud-hutted royal kraal-village-of Lobamba a lot of wifely bickering is going on. Some of the king's elder spouses maintain that tribal seniority gives them first choice for the coveted title. But few of the wives can agree on who is the senior.

King Sobhuza, like most African chiefs, has been practicing the age-old tribal custom of polygamy for nearly 40 years. That adds up to a lot of wives.

And, according to tribal law, the senior wife doesn't necessarily have to be the oldest.

During the years of traditional tribal rule it hasn't seemed to matter much which wife was singled out for priority rating. But as Swaziland moves into independence, with social functions coming up that will require the presence of a woman at the king's side, choice of a First Lady assumes importance.

In Swazi tribal life polygamy is a status symbol. The more wives a Swazi can boast the higher his social standing.

Sobhuza at 67 ranks about tops on the political and social ladder. Swaziland's 270,000 tribespeople refer to him as the "ngwenyama" -- Lion.

"He has scores of wives and hundreds of children," ventured one royal courtier. "The king certainly doesn't remember many of their names -- who would with a family of that size?"

The final choice of First Lady will probably be left to the elderly queen mother and the country's top political advisers.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Three months ago my husband brought a trampy-looking girl to the house, introduced her as the woman he wanted to marry and asked for a divorce. I managed to keep my composure although I thought I would die right then and there. I agreed to a divorce and they left.

The next day my husband came for his clothes, kissed the children goodbye and said I'd be hearing from his lawyer. I received no call.

In a week my husband was back -- furious. He said I had let him down. He was shocked that I agreed to the divorce. He insists he gave me all sorts of signals to say "No" in front of the girl. Now he is begging to come home. He promises never to fail me again.

The children love their dad and need him, but I can't get over the hurt and humiliation. If he could do such a terrible thing once, why couldn't he do it again? I need your counsel. --NOT RECOVERED

Dear Not: Your husband sounds like a four-door, brass-plated heel, but give another chance.

And let this be a lesson to you, students. Men, like children, don't want everything they ask for.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a high school junior who thinks there must be something drastically wrong with me. I am so envious of everyone I can hardly stand it. Although I get good grades and have won many honors I still get green when something good happens to my friends.

Yesterday my best friend won an essay contest. I couldn't have won it because I didn't even enter but when I heard she had won I was awfully unhappy. Naturally, I put on a false face and told her I was thrilled.

Why can't I be gracious and really rejoice when other people get honors?--HATE MYSELF

Dear Friend: Maybe you hate yourself, but I like you -- because you are honest.

Each of us is our own first choice for everything good that happens. This is normal but it's not realistic -- because life doesn't work that way. Nobody can win everything all the time.

It will help you feel less guilty if you tone down the compliments when you are congratulating others. Be pleasant but don't go into ecstasy about how "thrilled" you are.

Dear Ann Landers: I have seen several letters in your column over the years from people who want to know how to get rid of pesty relatives. It is amazing that this problem is so widespread because it means the gutty folks are taking over and the meek and the mild are trapped simply because they ARE meek and mild.

Why don't you tell people who are imposed on to use the Irvin S. Cobb approach? He said, "The best way to get rid of spongers is to say, 'You are getting on my nerves. Please get the hell out of here.' "

You'll probably be amused by this letter, but I'll bet you won't print it. -- DR. W. G. R.

Dear Doc: I'm not amused and I hope you didn't bet your stethoscope.

Mr. Cobb's approach is one I recommend only if you want to get rid of the visitors permanently.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents. . .if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

To the Editor:
Dear Sir

I prefer to advertise in the Standard because I feel more people read the Standard than any other paper in this vicinity. Need I say more?

Mrs. M. H. Davis

To the Editor:

Do you remember those wonderful days of a "do - nothing" Congress? Or even a President who spent most of his time in a golf course instead of dreaming up more fantastic give-away bills to satisfy his "Fairy Godfather" complex?

Since it seems impossible to become rich, we've decided to quit work. Then we'll get some of the government handouts. We know someone has to pay, but we're tired of being on the paying end.

Know Your Newspaper Better

News from Every Community . . .

. . . that's what you get every day in the Daily Standard. . . . . Our correspondents send in a news letter every week, telling you in detail what's going on in the section where they live. Some of the news may at times seem trivial . . .

But Isn't It Interesting?

. . . of course it is. What our friends and neighbors do is always interesting. Who gets married, who is born, who dies, who goes where . . . who made the school honor roll—don't you like to know? Sure you do . . . good people make the best news!

Our Paper Brings You That Information

. . . . day after day . . . reliably reported by correspondents who are your neighbors . . . who are best fitted to report the news of you and your activities . . . they "cover" you for this newspaper from birth to death . . . correctly, sensitively. That's the way we like it—and we think you like it that way, too.

The Prayer
For Today From The Upper Room

Thursday, April 14, 1966

Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life. (John 4:14)

PRAYER: Our Father, we praise Thee for giving us Thy Son, our Lord. We thank Thee that Thou dost offer us eternal life. Help us to accept Thy gift and thereby drink of the water which satisfied the soul. In His name. Amen.

Looking Back Over the Years

50 Years Ago
April 14, 1916

W. T. Jones sold his cattle to a man in North Missouri last week, about half of them for $7.60 per hundred and the balance for $8. This shows that the Sikeston district is making pretty good cattle to get such prices at home.

G. S. Ball and family and C. H. Ball family left Monday for Gideon to make their home.

40 Years Ago
April 14, 1926

Bill Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Baker, was most pleasantly surprised by 26 of his friends, last Monday night, the occasion being that of his 16th birthday.

Roy V. Ellise, superintendent of Sikeston schools, will deliver an address to the graduating class at Eminence, Mo., on May 14.

Building in Sikeston. The Gerhardt Construction Co., of Cape Girardeau was on the grounds Tuesday morning to start excavating preparatory to the erection of the large store buildings and oil station on the Matthews Estate property on the corner of Malone avenue and Kingshighway.

Marion Duncan is building a home on the corner of Daniel and Scott streets. John Husher also has a home on Daniel, almost ready to move into. Loomis Mayfield has purchased the Joe Parker home on Center street and after some remodeling will move into his future home. W. E. Derris and Orlando Arthur are to build homes in the near future.

30 Years Ago
April 14, 1936

Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Blanton announce the engagement of their daughter, Emily Ann, to Larry Hatfield of St. Louis, a son of Mr. and Mrs. L. F. Hatfield of Sikeston. The wedding will take place at the home of the prospective bride's parents Sunday afternoon, May 31.

Nine children were baptized at a service in the Methodist Church Sunday morning. They were: William Lewis, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Harper; Anna Lee, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. M. Hollenbeck; Edwin Joseph, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Malone; Elizabeth Louise, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl Ross; James Harlan and Betty Louise, children of Mr. and Mrs. William E. Mahew; Margaret Alice, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ray Marshall; Samuel Harrison, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harrison Tanner; and Jerry McMullin, son of Mr. and Mrs. L. L. Conatser.

C. L. Blanton, Jr., announced Monday that he has received notice of presidential approval on one unit of Sikeston's $205,000 WPA storm sewer project. The approved unit project provides for the manufacture and installation of 1,138 feet of sewer main in the north part of town.

Mr. and Mrs. O. E. Latham left Saturday morning for Princeton, Ind., to attend the funeral services Sunday afternoon for J. R. Brown, Mr. Lathom's brother-in-law.

20 Years Ago
April 14, 1946

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Brightwell have recently moved into the apartment at 319 Ruth street.

A daughter was born to Mr. and Mrs. Carroll Marchbanks on April 7 at the Lutheran Hospital in St. Louis. Mr. and Mrs. Marchbanks are former residents of Sikeston.

John Barnhart, 87 years old, died at the home of his daughter, Mrs. Sam Dillender, 703 West Gladys street on April 9.

Lacy O. Lewis, 35 years old, well-known Sikeston young man, died at the Sikeston General Hospital Monday night, the victim of pneumonia.

Bob Hope, who was starring at the Canadian Exhibition in Toronto, got a standing ovation when he arrived onstage opening night. "Don't scare me like that," he told the audience. "I thought you were leaving!"

Israel in the Fashion Swim

by Helen Hennessy

Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

TEL AVIV—(NEA)—It is difficult to think of this land of sun, citrus groves, blue sea and desert in terms of silk, mohair, Dacron, Acrilan and handsome fashions.

But the recent second annual Israel Fashion Week held here in Tel Aviv proved that the land of milk and honey is fast emerging as an important export fashion center. Nearly 400 buyers from 14 nations attended the event, led by a delegation of 75 from leading American stores.

The fashions ran the gamut —formals and furs, rainwear, knitwear, leather and beachwear—all beautifully cut, sewn and designed. There is news in Israeli fashions, but it can't be covered in one fell swoop.

Beachwear seems a good place to start. It's so natural a product to originate in this country where the Mediterranean sparkles and the sun shines.

There are all kinds of clever wrap-ups, multipiece beach suits and bikinis. But the best looking beachwear I've seen in a long time is the handiwork of Lea Goldberg, a woman who came to Israel 16 years ago and today, with her husband, is co-owner and designer for the Gottex firm, fast becoming a name to be reckoned with in swimwear.

Israel boasts beautiful beaches and a sunny clime and so it is no surprise that this country also produces handsome swimwear. From the firm of Gottex in Tel Aviv come the black cotton lace one-piece suit (left) over pale shantung and gaily printed Helanca knit bikini (right) with scoop-necked, sleeved top.

Her color range and combinations of fabrics are almost as varied as her designs. Smocking, pleats, ruffles and crocheted touches add eye-catching appeal to even the simplest suits. And speaking of eye-appeal the cut and fit of her bikinis make others I've seen look like school uniforms.

There were exciting sarong skirts and pants and halter teams as well in gay, colorful cotton prints.

As an aside, so you'll know what is being worn across the Atlantic this season in the sun, Mrs. Goldberg reports that pink and turquoise are color favorites for swimwear in Europe. The United States favors white.

There is much more to report about other types of fashion hailing from Israel. But with summer approaching it seemed best to begin at the beach.

Buddhist Story Not Disclosed

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the full story behind the Buddhists' maneuvering in South Viet Nam comes out it may prove to be one of the slickest pieces of Machiavellianism in our time.

The Buddhists are trying to overthrow their government. The U.S. government doesn't seem well-informed on what's going on among the Buddhists and what's driving them or, if it is, it's keeping the information to itself.

For that reason no one seems able to say whether the Buddhist leaders are in a deal with the North Vietnamese Communists to seize the South Vietnamese government, ask the Americans to leave, and let the Reds take over.

It might appear at first, if this is what the Buddhists have in mind, that they are operating on sheer gall since this country is backing the government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and has enormous forces in Viet Nam.

But they might be banking on something else to help them carry the day: divided American opinion.

When the history of these days is written the effect of what has happened here in the field of one of America's most prized possessions--freedom of speech — may appear as a strong factor in the Buddhists' thinking.

President Johnson's policy on Viet Nam has been under attack from many quarters in this country — particularly in the Senate and the academic world — and perhaps he can't gauge its full effect on him.

For instance: Would he have pursued the war harder, been less reluctant to bomb North Viet Nam more extensively if the critics weren't on his back? But any effect on Johnson is only part of the total possible effect of the criticism.

For example: What has been the effect of Americans' criticism of their own government on the thinking of the North Vietnamese Communists about continuing to fight?

Or on the South Vietnamese Buddhists about their chances of overturning their American-backed government and getting away with it?

Johnson apparently has felt confident, despite the criticism, that he had the support of a majority of Americans for his Viet Nam policy.

But the criticism here at home could leave no doubt in the minds of the Vietnamese, North and South, that American thinking was divided not only about how to wage the war but even about continuing it at all.

For instance, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said the American people are going to "repudiate this administration and they should. You just can't justify our being in war over there."

He called the U.S. position in Viet Nam "shockingly immoral" and said that if the South Vietnamese were ever to choose freely a Communist government, the United States should support it.

If you were a Vietnamese and heard that — and much more — you wouldn't be under any illusion the Americans were 100 per cent behind Johnson in trying to crush the Communists or at least force them to seek peace.

And if you were a Vietnamese, American division might seem to you a symbol of uncertainty and hesitation and therefore an inducement to action which otherwise might have seemed hopeless to you.

The hydroelectric potential of Africa exceeds that of any other continent, even if estimates of future developments are taken reservedly. One estimate puts the potential water power at 190 million horse power, that is three times the estimated potential of Europe. Another estimate credits Africa with 2 5ths of the world's potential or four times that of North America; one-quarter of this is stated to be in the Congo basin alone. As yet, only 0.1 per cent is used.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of concrete curb and gutters on each side of Helen Street from Kingshighway to Main Street in accordance with plans & specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: SECTION 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. SECTION 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. SECTION 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $1.75 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. SECTION 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. SECTION 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. SECTION 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 6th day of April, 1966. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk. 169 inc 175

Guideposts also Have Escalated

By JOHN T. CUNNIFF

NEW YORK AP -- The war in Viet Nam is not the only thing that has escalated dramatically in the past few years. The administration's voluntary guideposts have also.

The guideposts, first proposed in 1962 as "aids to public understanding," now sometimes have the practical power of laws.

Voluntary restraints are asked on a variety of economic endeavors. But the best known and most specifically stated restraints are the age - price guideposts, whose aim is avoidance of inflation.

In the name of guideposts, industry has been forced to rescind price increases, unions have been urged to lower wage demands and both companies and unions have been chastised publicly.

The guideposts tie wage and prices to the average gain in output per man hour - estimated at 3.2 per cent in recent years. Wage increases above that figure are considered inflationary. And industries with good profits and a productivity gain in excess of that figure aren't expected to raise prices.

When the President's Council of Economic Advisers introduced guideposts it described them as a "guide rather than a rule," a "contribution" to public discussion.

By 1964, however, they were referred to as a "standard."

Aluminum allegedly crossed the standard in October 1965 by raising the price of primary aluminum ½ cent a pound to 25 cents, bringing on another stage in the escalation; enforcement by government stockpile.

Stockpiles were designed to assure an adequate supply of materials in case of war. There are some 98 materials stockpiled, a reserve valued at more than $8 billion.

Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara announced Nov. 6 that the administration would sell 200,000 tons of aluminum from its stockpile in the next year, a move which could undercut the increase.

Leon Hickman, an executive of Aluminum Co. of America, replied that Alcoa had "no intention" of rescinding.

The next day, Nov. 8, the administration strengthened its hand: 100,000 tons of aluminum would be sold immediately and another 200,000 tons in 1966.

Aluminum had little choice.

John Harper, Alcoa president, went to Washington, spoke with McNamara and gave in on the evening of Nov. 9. McNamara made the announcement; Alcoa's came five minutes later. The stockpile threat was retracted. The guideposts had escalated.

Copper then met a similar confrontation. But copper was in short supply, the industry welcomed the stockpile and gave up its increase.

The power of the guideposts still was not clear, however. On New Year's Day Bethlehem Steel Co., apparently without consulting the administration, raised the price of structural steel $5 a ton.

Company officials were invited to Washington, the increase was rolled back and then compromised at a much smaller figure. The industry acted differently the next time it sought an increase.

U.S. Steel did not await a summons to Washington. An executive rode down and discussed a proposed increase in advance of its announcement, a recognition once more of the increasing power of the guideposts.

The U.S. Steel executive told the administration the company wished to raise prices on some products $2.92 a ton and decrease them on others. The arrangement seemed within the guideposts and was cleared. Gardner Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, applauded the move.

In submitting to administration pressure, some businessmen felt private industry had tossed away a basic right. Business was permitting government management of its affairs, they said.

Others wonder, however, if business had submitted at all—or whether it merely had learned to win its way within the escalated guidelines.

Johnson Avoids Shooting Matches

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has a simple technique for staying out of a shouting match.

He stays out, unless getting in is necessary. Otherwise, he keeps quiet until the noise goes away or has someone else, with his blessing, do the talking.

He has demonstrated the technique on some very crucial problems.

Earlier this year when Sens. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., and Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and others rather loudly assailed Johnson's Viet Nam policy, the President played mum.

The storm blew harder. He let it blow, confident he had the support of most Americans. In time the storm pretty well blew itself out. But if Johnson had gone after Morse and Fulbright they would have obtained far more publicity for their views than they could hope to get by themselves.

Meanwhile, he kept right on with his Viet Nam policy.

He did the same thing last September when Fulbright made a Senate speech attacking the extent of Johnson's use of troops in the Dominican Republic when he, the President, considered Communists there a danger.

Johnson kept quiet and Fulbright's attack was a one-day wonder, soon forgotten.

Johnson ran into a different problem with French President Charles de Gaulle who had been a pain to other presidents with his arrogance and his endless theme of French nationalism and independence.

NATO, the Western military alliance set up in 1949, has 15 members, including the United States and France. It was the great shield which stopped Stalin's Soviet Union from any ideas it might have had about taking over Europe.

Last September De Gaulle first hinted he didn't see much reason for NATO any more. At that time, faced with the fear that French withdrawal from NATO might wreck it, Johnson made a mild speech about the need for it.

He couldn't have said less, since the NATO members look to this country for leadership, which is one of the facts irking De Gaulle. Last March De Gaulle made good on his September hint.

He said France was withdrawing its remaining forces from NATO's command — he suggested that to be under NATO command was like being a vassal — and warned NATO bases and forces in France, mostly American, must be withdrawn no later than April 1, 1967.

But, just as in September, Johnson avoided a head-on clash with the Frenchman. He hardly said more than that the United States and the other NATO allies were determined to keep the organization alive.

Tuesday the United States finally rammed headon into De Gaulle but Johnson still stayed in the background, letting Secretary of State Dean Rusk and the State Department do the talking.

Said Rusk: "Fourteen nations, comprising 450 million people and possessing massive military power, will not be paralyzed by the attitude of France."

And the American government rejected De Gaulle's April 1, 1967 deadline for getting U.S. NATO forces out of France. It set a two-year time for the pullout.

Further, this country warned France that French NATO units in West Germany stood to lose quickly their access to American nuclear arms. This was about the toughest treatment De Gaulle ever got from this country.

Still, Johnson himself was nowhere to be seen although De Gaulle knew that what Rusk and the State Department said had to be cleared with Johnson and could never have been said without his approval.

This has been the Johnson style for years.

Teacher to Take Part in Institute

PORTAGEVILLE -- Raymond E. Hart, mathematics teacher in the public school system, has been accepted as a participant in the Summer Mathematics Institute at Kirksville.

This institute for mathematics teachers is being sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the Northeast Missouri State Teachers college.

The mathematics teacher's grant provides for a stipend and additional expenses involved with the summer's program. Hart will be taking courses in algebra, geometry, probability, and a seminar for mathematics teachers.

In addition to the regular staff of the College, there will be a series of special lectures by outstanding mathematicians and mathematics educators.

Hart graduated in 1951 from University of Arkansas at Fayetteville with a major in mathematics. He has since done graduate work at University of Arkansas.

Today In U. S. History

Today is Thursday, April 14, the 104th day of 1966. There are 261 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was shot as he sat in a box at Ford's Theater in Washington.

On this date

In 1828, the first edition of Noah Webster's American Dictionary of the English Language was published.

In 1890, delegates to the Washington Conference of American States created what was to become the Pan American Union.

In 1912, the liner Titanic, on its maiden voyage from Liverpool to New York, struck an iceberg and sank and 1,300 of those aboard were lost.

In 1931, King Alfonso of Spain went into exile and the Spanish Republic was proclaimed.

In 1945, funeral rites for President Franklin D. Roosevelt were held at the White House.

Ten years ago -- A new aircraft carrier, the Saratoga, then the world's largest and mightiest warship, was commissioned at the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Five years ago -- A mammoth demonstration was staged in Red Square in Moscow for the first man to go into space, Maj. Yuri Gagarin.

One year ago - An airliner crashed in a fog in the Channel Islands, killing 26 of 27 aboard.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS from The Bible

There is no power but of God.—(Rom. 1:1)

Jesus told us that if we have faith we can move mountains. But we must never let the desire to do the greater works and mighty miracles obscure the everyday opportunities around us. Speak a kind word to replace fear with confidence. Be understanding and move mountains of despair. Offer words of praise to help make miracles happen.

Malden Girl Dies From Crash Hurts

MALDEN -- A nine-year-old Malden girl died Wednesday of internal injuries received in an automobile collision Monday morning near Piggott, Ark.

She is Kim Massie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Massie.

The child died about 3 a.m. Wednesday on the operating table of a Memphis hospital after undergoing surgery for an injury to her small intestine.

She had been treated at the Piggott hospital on Monday for shock and possible broken ribs.

Her condition worsened Tuesday and the internal injury was discovered. She developed pneumonia and it was decided to remove her to Memphis for surgery.

Her body is at the Landess Funeral Home. Her death was the 29th this year in Southeast Missouri and was the fifth this month.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Mrs. Betty Miles of Malden which was involved in a head-on collision about 9:50 a.m. on highway 51 one-half mile north of the Missouri-Arkansas state line.

Four other persons were injured. They were Mrs. Miles; her daughter, Nancy Lee Miles, 8; her mother, Mrs. Maxine Tiley, 63, all of Malden and Mrs. Ellen Wells, 46, of Piggott, driver of the other car.

Mrs. Miles suffered a broken rib and other possible chest injuries, as well as cuts and bruises.

She was knocked unconscious.

Nancy Lee Miles suffered a broken rib, cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Tiley reportedly suffered a broken jaw, cuts and bruises.

They were admitted to the hospital at Piggott for treatment and Mrs. Tiley was transferred to a hospital at Memphis.

Their condition is reported as satisfactory and they are expected to be released in a few days.

Mrs. Wells sustained face cuts and is undergoing treatment at a Poplar Bluff hospital. A passenger in the Wells car was not injured.

According to the state highway patrol, Mrs. Miles was driving a 1966 Dodge south and Mrs. Wells was traveling north in a 1960 Ford.

According to the investigating officer Mrs. Miles said she saw a car parked on the highway, applied her brakes and skidded into the path of the other car.

Surviving are his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Mason Handy Sr., and one sister, Mrs. Area Lee Burton, all of Earle, Ark.

The body is at the Sparks Funeral Home.

More Jobs in Government

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — More than a seventh of Missouri's non-farm employment is in government, the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey reported today.

The report noted 225,381 persons are employed by local, state or federal governments. State and local government employment increased five times faster than the population in recent years.

"Governments," the survey said, "are attempting to provide more and more social services and facilities for individuals, but government itself often lags behind the rest of the economy in efficiency of organization, improving productivity and effective utilization of personnel."

The survey recommended a central personnel agency for state government and more competitive examinations for employment. It also recommended reorganization of local government to do away with some of the 3,000 political subdivisions in Missouri.

Pressman Hurt In Collision

POPLAR BLUFF -- Charles Harris, a pressman for the Daily American Republic, suffered head and back injuries in a three-car collision at 5:20 p.m. Tuesday at D. and East Pine.

He was taken to Doctors Hospital and was reported doing well.

According to city police, Harris who was in a 1966 Plymouth, was following Ted Fuller in a 1965 Mustang. Fuller stopped for a left turn and Harris stopped behind him. The third car, a 1963 Ford, driven by Jonathan Haney, 605 Cynthia, struck the rear of Harris' car.

All three vehicles were damaged.

Shell Blast Hurts Soldier

POPLAR BLUFF -- Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Zoll of Rombauer have been notified by the Red Cross that their son, Spec. 4 Ronald Zoll, 23, who is serving with the U.S. Army in Germany was injured when a 155mm howitzer shell fell short of the target and exploded.

Zoll and three others were injured when a German gun crew miscalculated their firing by about one mile and the shell fell about 36 yards behind the forward observer's post manned by Zoll and three other soldiers. They are all serving with the 8th Infantry Division, Headquarters Company, First Battalion, 13th Infantry.

Fragments of the shell struck Zoll in the right elbow and right thigh. Also injured were Sgt. Gerald Massengill, Spec. 4. Albert Fuentes and Pfc. Jimmy R. Arnold.

Zoll, the grandson of Mrs. Maude Zoll of Rombauer, is expected to be hospitalized in Germany for about two months.

He is married and he and his wife, Shirlene, have a six-month-old son named Kevin.

Employe of Hospital Hangs Self

POPLAR BLUFF -- Carl Vieth, 47-year-old resident and an employe of the Poplar Bluff hospital, was found hanged in the Madison County jail at Fredericktown Wednesday morning.

According to the state patrol, trooper R. C. Caldwel arrested Vieth at 6:30 Tuesday night for driving while intoxicated and peace disturbance. He was placed in the Madison County jail and was in a cell block alone.

His body was discovered by Sheriff N. F. Whitener at 6:30 Wednesday morning. He had used his belt to hang himself. Coroner Roy Wilson stated that he had been dead several hours.

He had been employed at the hospital several months and was described by hospital officials as being an excellent worker.

The body was taken to the Wilson Funeral Home at Fredericktown.

A sister, Mrs. Ted Adams of Poplar Bluff, survives.

Bernie Rejects Cotton Vacation

MALDEN -- The annual cotton vacation in the Bernie school district will be discontinued.

The decision was made by the board of education Thursday.

Bernie schools will open August 29, and will close May 29.

Holidays include two days at Thanksgiving, a week at Christmas, Good Friday, Monday after Easter, and Washington's Birthday.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. AP -- The National League Braves faced the possibility today of being the only major league baseball team in history to be welcomed in two cities in the same season.

"If the Braves return to Milwaukee they will be mobbed," said Willard Stafford, the attorney who had let Wisconsin's forces in successful prosecution of the state's antitrust suit against baseball.

"I don't mean it will be an angry mob," the silver-haired lawyer said. "It would be more of a second honeymoon.

Stafford said, "I think this trial has purged the ill feeling of the average fan -- and one thing is sure -- we can do better than 10,000 attendance on the second night."

The remark referred to the 12,721 fans the Braves drew at their second game in Atlanta Wednesday night.

Meat Plus Fruit Gives Elegance To Short Ribs

Sugar and spice and all things nice go with one of the meat cuts favored strongly by men. These are beef short ribs which, in this instance, are carefully spiced and fruited.

Plentiful prunes along with dried apricots give high style to these "ends" of the famous beef standing rib roasts. Beef short ribs are rectangular cuts, explains Reba Staggs, meat authority, composed of alternating layers of fat and lean. They're best cooked by braising.

Rich in flavor and well-browned in color when cooked in this way, short ribs are highly compatible with the light spicing and fruit which goes with them.

Spiced Short Ribs

- 3 pounds beef short ribs
- ¼ cup flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
- 1 cup water
- 1 cup dried prunes
- 1 cup dried apricots
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon allspice
- ¼ teaspoon ground cloves
- 3 tablespoons vinegar

Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dredge meat with seasoned flour. Brown meat on all sides in lard or drippings. Cover tightly and simmer 1½ hours. Pour off drippings. Add water, prunes, apricots, sugar, cinnamon, allspice, cloves and vinegar. Cover tightly and continue simmering 1 hour or until tender. Serve fruit over short ribs. Thicken cooking liquid, with remaining seasoned flour, for gravy, if desired. 6 servings.

"Saboteurs at Work"

FROM "THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

To the majority of Americans who uncomplainingly work day in and day out, the antics of strike-happy union leaders must seem an aggravated case of adult delinquency. So much so that perhaps it is time to re-examine the right to strike in the context of mid-Twentieth Century America.

The Newspaper Guild strike against the New York Times, entailing the closing down of practically all the other local newspapers, is only one in a series of senseless acts of sabotage. The beleaguered maritime industry is just pulling out of a long ordeal and last week was threatened with yet another walkout. In the midst of the Vietnam war the Machinists Union slashes out at a leading defense producer.

Like other disputes, the attack on the Times has elements that would be almost funny in other circumstances. Thus the Guild demands the right to veto any automation developments it thinks might affect its jurisdiction. Yet, according to the Times, the equipment for one of the devices the union is worrying about hasn't even been invented.

Not at all amusing is the fact that, again as in many similar troubles, the Times strike involves a power struggle between two unions, the locals of the Guild and of the International Typographical Union. Since New York newspapers are saddled with some seven additional labor organizations, the opportunities for that sort of mischief are manifold.

Plainly then, in the newspaper and certain other industries there are too many unions too obsessed with petty jurisdictional jealousies and led by men of the narrowest possible interests, men to whom their own power apparently is the paramount consideration. It is little over a couple of years' ago that New York City emerged from a 114-day news blackout by means of which unions succeeded in killing one newspaper and maiming others and consequently causing unemployment -- quite a testament to the leaders' concern for their members.

Various possibilities for limiting the abuse of union power have been suggested over the years, notably ending the special privileges and legal exemptions that give unions a status enjoyed by no other segment of the population. But what, in the light of repeated and flagrant union disregard of the public's convenience and the members' welfare, is to be said of the right to strike itself?

To begin with the individual employee, his right to quit a job is undisputed in a free society, although the unions take the Neanderthal position that, in organized industries, a worker must join a union to keep his job. When individuals long ago banded together to put collective pressure on managements, the strike was often the only effective weapon, albeit a weapon of last resort.

Anything resembling those conditions simply does not exist today. Thanks largely to capital investment and the advancing technology the unions continually fight, the contemporary American workingman has a high income -- wages are not even an issue in the Times conflict -- a lot of leisure and a generally comfortable job environment.

That being so, it is hard to discern an ethical justification for a right to strike on whim, over niggling or non-existent issues or as a means of interunion battling. There is no more inherent right to such behavior, it seems to us, than there is a right to steal from an employer or anyone else. As a dispute-settling vehicle in a complex, competitive modern economy, the strike, except in extreme circumstances, is hopelessly archaic.

For our part, we have upheld the right to strike when no other course seems possible. We do not see, though, how Congress and the public can indefinitely countenance it as an unlimited right, as a heavy bludgeon to smash against the public any time a union official feels like it.

If union leaders are incapable of demonstrating a greater degree of maturity, it may be necessary to consider legal redefinition and limitation of the right to strike. Certainly no society is required to have its interest, its well-being and even its safety constantly menaced by heedless wreckers.

CANTON, Mo. AP -- William H. Trumbo, whose team compiled a 23-5 record last season at a high school in Garden Grove, Calif., has been named head basketball coach at Culver-Stockton College. He also will serve as baseball coach.

Trumbo, a native Californian, attended Chapman College and was freshman coach there in the 1961-62 season.

Hunters in Hawaii seek wild boar as a major sport. Some are as big as 300 pounds.

The oddest boat ride ever taken was a 37-mile voyage to the center of New York City through a water pipe. It was no ordinary pipe, admittedly. When completed in 1842, the Croton Aqueduct was the world's biggest conduit: seven feet wide and eight and one-half feet high in horseshoe-arched cross-section. Built of cemented masonry, it started from Westchester's dammed-up Croton River, ran at ground level beneath mounded earth, and sloped gently -- 1.1 feet per mile--to the city, where parched New Yorkers had only smelly wells to drink from. One June morning at 5 a.m., a dam gate was opened and water flowed into the dry aqueduct 18 inches deep. Immediately four men in a specially built small boat, the Croton Maid, lit torches and floated on the current into the dark tube. It was an eerie trip, monotonously unscenic, and slow. Thirty-three miles away, a welcoming crowd waited all day and into the night. At 3 a.m. -- after 22 hours, at 1 1/2 mph -- the tumbling crest of water emerged and, right behind, the tired but triumphant boatmen. A few days later, they portaged across and re-embarked in the final four miles of aqueduct through upper Manhattan. At a newly dug reservior, the tunnel spewed out the Croton Maid on a spreading pool as thousands cheered, bands played and guns saluted. New Yorkers at last had plenty of good water -- a whole navigable river of it, as the Maid had proved by her unique voyage.

The Japanese consume 140 million U.S. gallons of sake, their national beverage, annually. This is 40 per cent of the total yearly consumption of alcoholic beverages in Japan. Sake is rice beer. Its brewing dates back to antiquity. It is sometimes mistakenly called wine because of its high alcoholic content, which is usually 17 per cent to 18 per cent. Sake is served warm in tiny porcelain bowls holding little more than an ounce.

Marines Hunt for Enemy

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Several thousand U.S. Marines opened a new search operation today in the rice paddies overlooking the South China Sea, while Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs caught a dozen trucks near the entrance to North Viet Nam's landslide-clogged Mu Gia Pass.

The Leathernecks killed 14 Viet Cong, captured five and took 67 suspects in tow at the outset of a multibattalion search and destroy operation 23 miles south of Chu Lai. The area has been in Viet Cong hands for years.

Ten Marines stripped to the waist and moved with pistols and flashlights through a network of tunnels where they seized 15 Vietnamese suspected of being Viet Cong. Some pajama-clad fighters were seen fleeing the maze beneath the hamlet of An Hai a short time before.

The Air Force jets returned Wednesday to the strategic pass on the Laotian frontier, 230 miles south of Hanoi, where B52s dropped 1.4 million pounds of bombs on Tuesday in the first raid by the stratofortresses on North Viet Nam. Military sources in Washington said some of the big bombs were rigged with delayed-action devices to explode days later, thereby discouraging Communist road clearing work.

The Thunderchiefs spotted 12 trucks on Route 15 at the entrance to the bottled-up pass. At least four were destroyed, an Air Force spokesman said. He also said aerial photographs confirmed that the pass was completely blocked by landslides.

The mountain roadway links up with the Ho Chi Minh Trail in neighboring Laos, the major infiltration route to South Viet Nam.

Bell City Board Shields Fund Vote

By DAN WHITTLE

BELL CITY -- No one will divulge who voted what way in Monday night's R-2 board of education's rejection of $80,107 in federal funds.

The board vote was split three to three. It requires a majority, consequently, the board could not accept federal funds for the coming year.

John T. Lawrence, coordinator of public law 89-10, Jefferson City, said that the Bell City district has compiled with the regulations of the program.

There are petitions circulating through the community asking people to sign their name in favor of acceptance of the funds.

Bennie Hesselrode, route one, said that he had 60 signatures and that several more petitions are being circulated in an attempt to get the board to change it's vote.

The petition reads:

"We do not feel that the vote of the school board on this issue represents the majority of the people."

Forrest Jackson, superintendent of schools, said that the decision must be made by the board of education.

The petitions will be presented to the board in an effort to obtain a straw vote of the people on the issue if the board does not change its vote. This vote would not be official.

Ronnie Weeks, board member, said yesterday that he favored accepting the funds since "our district, like all other districts, needs the services made available to our students by use of the federal funds."

Gene Wheeler, president of the school board, said:

"You aren't going to get any information out of me."

John Johnson, board member, said he favored accepting the federal money.

Shelby Dong, board member, said it wasn't anyone's business how he voted.

The other board members, Herman Vetter and Bill Watkins, could not be contacted.

Time Bill Signed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. AP -- President Johnson has signed into law the bill establishing a uniform Daylight Saving Time system for the nation extending from April to October each year.

The vacation White House announced the signing today.

Starting next year, the measure puts the whole nation on the faster time from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October except that a state can decide by action of its legislature to remain on standard time. But such a decision must apply to the entire state.

For this year, the bill provides that any state, city or other unit wishing to observe Daylight Saving Time must do it for the full period between April 24 and Oct. 30.

A uniform system of daylight time for the late spring, summer and early fall months has been sought for years by airlines, railroads, bus companies, radio and television networks and other businesses.

$100,000 Water System Loan for Anniston Okayed

Special to Daily Standard

WASHINGTON -- A $100,000 loan has been approved for Anniston in Mississippi county it was announced by Senators Symington and Edward V. Long, and Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett Democrat.

The funds will be used to improve the water system and to extend the water lines to accommodate 122 more homes. The lines also will be connected with a fire fighting system.

The town has a population of about 600.

Mayor Ray Davis applied for the loan under a program to bring better facilities to small towns and rural areas.

Elks Lodge Installs

Installation ceremonies were held last night for the new officers of the Elks lodge.

Bobby Ralph was installed as exalted ruler.

Others installed were Marshall "Windy" Blackman, esteemed leading knight; Allen Blanton, esteemed loyal knight; Charles David Springs, secretary, Bennie Walker, Jr., treasurer and Mike Blacker, titler.

Ray Hart was installed as a director for five years and Dwight Crader, a director for four years.

The Chaffee Elks Lodge performed the installation.

Three Shetland Ponies Struck by Truck, Killed

DEXTER -- Three Shetland ponies, belonging to the Churchill Nursery, were killed last night by a truck at 9:45 p.m., the junction of highway 60 and the business route, the highway patrol reports.

The ponies darted across the highway in front of a 1966 Mack trailer-tractor, driven by Donald Phillips, 34, St. Clair.

The driver of the truck was not injured.

Legislature Quits Until Wednesday

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House went through the formalities of opening a morning session, but quickly adjourned with no business to conduct.

The Senate cleared its calendar Wednesday.

Both will return next Wednesday.

Only one bill has passed the legislature— an emergency appropriations bill. Only two weeks will remain in the special session when the legislature returns.

Sen. J. F. Pat Patterson, D-Caruthersville, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said he would work his committee day and night in an effort to get the budget ready for floor action next week.

Wednesday night, the House Roads and Highways Committee completed hearings on the controversial bills to regulate billboards and junkyards along major traffic arteries. But no action was taken.

Another meeting is scheduled next week to take up a third bill in the highway beautification package—one to authorize the State Highway Department to buy scenic spots for rest areas.

Representatives of the outdoor advertising industry and tourist business offered amendments to the Senate version of the billboard bill. There were indications some changes would be made.

The beautification bills are necessary if Missouri is to qualify for about $23 million in federal road funds, proponents argue.

The House Education Committee Wednesday night approved a bill to give school districts state aid for part time students.

The vote sending it to the floor for action was 17-5.

Rep. James I. Spainhower, D-Saline County, said his bill is intended as a companion measure to a so-called "shared time" bill that is stuck in a Senate committee.

The shared time measure would allow parochial and private school students to attend special courses at public schools. It has been opposed by those who charge it would violate the traditional separation of church and state.

Spainhower estimated the additional state aid cost of his bill would amount to only about $75.000.

Also approved by a House committee Wednesday was a Senate passed bill to let the state pay the first $40 hospitalization cost for old age assistance recipients after the Medicare program goes into effect July 1.

The state also could pay $10 a day for the 60th to 90th day of hospitalization. The net saving to the state as compared with the present medical aid program is estimated at $863,000.

The Senate is in recess until next Wednesday while its appriations committee completes work on the billion dollar budget bills.

A bill to set up a state and regional planning system passed the Senate yesterday 23-6, despite an outburst of opposition.

The bill was recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes as a means of getting federal planning funds for local improvements such as sewer systems, water districts, educational and health facilities, recreational areas and so on.

It now goes to the House where further opposition is expected.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, expressed the fear that if the state does not have a central planning agency, the federal government will bypass the state and go directly to the cities and counties.

Also passed and sent to the House were bills to:

Give Missouri its first law to regulate the drilling of oil and gas wells.

Nine Injured in Car Collisions in Region

Six persons were injured in a two-car collision last night at 8:30 p.m. three miles north of Fruitland, on highway 61.

A 1963 Mercury, driven by Michael Haley, 17, Crystal City, passed another car on a yellow line, the highway patrol charged.

The Haley car struck a 1963 Oldsmobile, driven by Leon Tuschhoff, 27, Jackson, headon, injuring Tuschhoff, and the five occupants of the Haley car.

Haley, according to the patrol, will be arrested on a charge of careless and reckless driving.

The injured: Haley, cuts and bruises; Wanda Loesch, 15, Festus, cut on head and bruises; Mark Hayden, 16, Festus, back injury; Sharon Hayden, Festus, fractured jaw, legs and a chest injury, and John Portell, 19, Cape Girardeau, head cuts. They were taken to the Southeast Missouri Hospital, Cape Girardeau. Tuschhoff was treated by a Jackson physician.

Two persons were injured yesterday at 11:30 a.m. 10 miles east of Dexter on highway 153, when a 1965 Ford, driven by Don Zeller, 19, Jefferson City, pulled into the path of a 1960 two-ton truck, driven by Douglas Wilson, 21, route two, Boaz, Ky.

He was arrested for failure to yield the right of way.

Injured were two passengers in the Zeller car, Dorothy Dyson, 15, Doniphan, bruises and scratches; and Donna Zeller, 21, Jefferson City, pelvis injury. They were taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

A 1962 Rambler, driven by Judith McGee, 23, Dexter, was driven into the path of a 1964 Pontiac, driven by Riley Hester, 56, Bloomfield, yesterday at 4:30 p.m. causing a collision at the intersection of highways 25 and 114 in Dexter.

The driver of the Rambler was taken to the Lucy Lee Hospital, Poplar Bluff for treatment of minor injuries, and will be cited for failing to yield the right-of-way, the patrol said.

Hays to Run in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)— Former Congressman Brooks Hays today resigned as an adviser to President Johnson and announced as a Democratic candidate for governor of Arkansas.

Hays, 67, said he can carry the Democratic banner against Republican Winthrop Rockefeller better than any other candidate.

"I've never wavered in my loyalty to the Democratic party," he told a news conference.

Gov. Orval Faubus has announced that he will not seek re-election unless the Democratic party fails to find formidable opposition for Rockefeller, the GOP candidate.

Jim Johnson, who resigned earlier this month from the Arkansas Supreme Court, and State Rep. Kenneth Sulcer also have filed for the Democratic primary.

Hays' 16-year congressional career ended in 1958 when he lost to Dr. Dale Alford of Little Rock who ran on a segregationist platform during the Central High School racial troubles.

Maher Tells Of Progress

CHARLESTON -- Phillip V. Maher, head of the office of urban affairs and coordinator of Economic Opportunity, Jefferson City, speaker at a chamber of commerce dinner told of progress made to improve communities.

In a meeting held at the Charlestonian last night he pointed out how the Economic Development Act could be used to improve city streets and sewers, as well as the program of the Office of Economic Opportunity, which trains persons for services which would tie in with an industrial plan for the community.

Charles L. Brink Jr., membership chairman, announced 30 new members on a goal of 50 have been added to bring the total membership to 116.

Frank Bihr, chairman of merchants committee, reported a sidewalk sale will be held April 29-30, during regular store hours from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Friday and 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday.

Future Business Leaders to Meet

The Southeast Missouri district convention of future business leaders of America will be held at the high school Tuesday. Registration will begin at 6 p.m.

Business teachers and business students are invited to attend.

There will be exhibits of office machines and equipment. Information and displays about area industrial facilities will be available.

Funds Pledged For New Church

Trinity Baptist church members last night pledged funds sufficient to complete the first phase of their church building program.

A. J. Day is chairman of the finance committee. He reported the cost of the first building would be $260,000, and would be erected north of the Joel Montgomery property on a 20-acre tract of land.

Construction will begin June 15.

Buddhists Plea Heeded

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP-- Thousands of jubilant Buddhist demonstrators marched peacefully through Saigon today in a victory celebration after the military regime decreed elections for a civilian government in three to five months.

A ranking Buddhist leader said the junta's formal pledge "satisfies our main demands."

The willingness of the Buddhist hierarchy to accept the election pledge may mean the survival of the U. S. supported military government until the nationwide elections. On Sunday, the Buddhists had demanded the immediate resignation of the junta.

Lady Bird Tours Beauty Spots

WASHINGTON AP -- In a rainstorm, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson conducted a bus tour of beauty spots and eyesores in the nation's capital.

During the tour Wednesday, attended by scores of officials and prominent philanthropists, she planted a cherry tree while shielding herself with an umbrella.

She praised what she called "this tremendous desire of Americans to make their land more beautiful."

Liz' Condition Good

ROME AP -- Elizabeth Taylor's studio reported today that doctors at a Rome clinic found her in excellent condition during a 24-hour medical checkup.

Three Injured In Headon Crash Near Wyatt

A two car accident today at 9;25 a.m, two and one-half miles east of Wyatt on highway 60, sent three persons to the St. Marys Hospital, Cairo, Ill.

A 1963 Ford going west and driven by Roy Jacob Graber, 73, Paducah, attempted to pass a tractor-trailer, when he struck a 1965 Buick, traveling east, and driven by Clarence Carter, 69, East Prairie, head-on.

Injured were Carter, who received cuts on the face, right knee and possible chest injury, and his wife, Mamie Carter, 63, who received cuts on her scalp and right knee. Graber received cuts on his left hand.

Graber was arrested by the highway patrol for careless and reckless driving.

'Spun-Fiber' Soybean Diet May Prevent Heart Attacks

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Promising results were reported today with a "spun-fiber" diet designed to reduce blood fats under suspicion as contributors to heart attacks.

The diet — made up of predissolved soybean protein spun into fibers to give the product a meat-like texture —is designed to give Americans deemed needing it the low-fat properties of the average oriental diet, but one having "the appearance of Western food." The wispy fibers are compacted into tiny morsels, and flavored and colored for serving.

Dr. Robert Hodges of the University of Iowa, who described it at a scientific meeting here, said people in the Orient have long been known to have much lower rates of atherosclerosis- a form of hardening-of-the-arteries believed by many doctors to be the forerunner of heart attacks -- than Americans.

And he said that while other actors in addition to dietary ones may aid the Orientals in that respect, their low-fat diet is believed to play a signficant role.

Hodges indicated at a news conference at the annual convention of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology that the Orientals' dietary staple-- rice-- might serve the same purpose as the new diet. But he said the latter "is far more acceptable.

Beds in Hall Every Third Day at Delta Hospital

Every third day at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital during the past year, according to Harold Jones, administrater, patients were admitted to the corridors because of the lack of space in patient rooms.

He said every available space has been utilized to house patients.

Jones said that there were several occasions when no corridor space was available.

"At one time, there were 15 patient beds in the corridors," he said.

"This factor alone, is sufficient to express the tremendous need which exists for additional hospital facilities," he said.

He said the hospital continues to be operated at a lower average cost per patient day than the national average.

Nationally the median cost per patient day was $38.24. The Sikeston hospital is reported to have an average operating expense per patient day of $29.02.

Jones said that the hospital staff and administration is "doing all within their power" to keep costs at a minimum.

"This is a most important factor," Jones commented, "in continuing to make our hospital services available to the majority of the citizens of this area."

The hospital has 180 full-time employes with an annual payroll of $675,000.

The hospital has received federal grants of $923,499.55 to construct a new 55-bed wing.

These funds must be matched locally.

Local funds pledged now total $574,000 approximately $350,000 short of the amount required to match the allocation.

Car Insurance Premiums To Increase More Than $10

KANSAS CITY (AP)—An average increase of more than $10 a year on insurance premiums for Missouri motorists was announced by the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters and the National Automobile Underwriters Association.

The changes were approved by the Missouri insurance commissioner, an industry spokesman said.

In typical increases, fire and theft coverage is up about 14 per cent over the state, 16 per cent in Kansas City and 9 per cent in its Missouri suburbs. Collision premiums are up 15 per cent over the state and in Kansas City, 14 per cent in the Missouri suburbs of Kansas City.

The spokesman for major insurers in Kansas City said the new schedules provide broader protection under Missouri's financial responsibility law. The new minimums are $10,000 liability coverage for each person injured in an accident, $20,000 for any one such accident and $5,000 property damage. The old limits were $5,000, $10,000 and $5,000.

A good-risk driver with no violations who uses his car to drive to and from work and for limited personal use will pay about $109 for minimum coverage under the law, about $11.50 more than previously.

The base rate for automobile liability insurance for private passenger cars was reduced an average of 1.6 per cent on a statewide basis, according to the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters.

Rule Bars 4 Teachers

CHARLESTON -- Four teachers, who did not comply with a R-1 board of education ruling that all teachers must have a degree by the 1966-67 school year, will not receive contracts for the coming year.

This decision was made yesterday by the board.

The teachers are Bertha Harvey, Norma Powers, Easter Mae Hughes and Albertine Ennis.

The board approved purchasing three acres of land from Hunter Raffety for $1,000 per acre. The land adjoins the Wyatt Washington school.

The board approved accepting resignations from seven teachers: Maxine Loving, Dorothy Gibson, Murphy McKinney, Bessie McKinney, Curtiss Bingham, Golda Rhodes and Sandra Struwe.

A request made by Stephen T. Lewis for the use of the Lincoln school grounds for religious purposes for two months this summer was denied.

Iraq President Killed in Crash

BEIRUT, Lebanon AP -- President Abdel Salam Aref of Iraq, who survived repeated violent political upheavals in the past eight years, has been killed in a plane crash, Baghdad Radio announced today.

The Iraqi Radio said Interior Minister Maj. Gen. Abdel Latif Daraji and Industry Minister Mustafa Abdullah also were killed in the crash near the Persian Gulf port of Basra.

Premier Abdel Rahman Bazzaz will be acting president until Council of Ministers and the National Defense Council elect Aref's successor within a week, the broadcast said.

Germany's 'Sea Devil' Dies

MALMOE, Sweden (AP) — Count Felix Von Luckner, who sank 14 Allied ships in World War I without taking a life, is dead at 84.

Von Luckner's death Wednesday of an undisclosed illness ended a life of daring that earned him fame as the "Sea Devil."

During the World War I he commanded an innocent-looking windjammer which carried concealed guns and a powerful motor. Masquerading as a Norwegian freighter, Von Luckner's Sea Eagle scuttled $25 million worth of Allied ships, but he took their crews -- and even their pets -- off first and looked after them until he could put them ashore.

"I broke the British blockade with a clear conscience," he said. "No mother, wife, child or father lost a tear."

His ship roamed the Atlantic and Pacific with a 64-man crew, 27 of whom spoke Norwegian.

After sailing 35,000 miles, the Seeadler was wrecked on a South Sea coral reef in August 1917. Von Luckner and five of his crew sailed a lifeboat loaded with ammunition for 48 days to the Fiji Islands, where they hoped to seize another ship. Instead a British police officer and several native policemen captured them.

The British sent him to New Zealand, but he escaped in a motorboat and during six weeks of freedom seized a small sailing vessel. A British cruiser recaptured him and he spent the rest of the war in New Zealand.

Between the world wars he conducted cruises and lectured in several countries, including the United States. Lowell Thomas wrote two books about him: "Count Luckner, The Sea Devil" and "The Sea Devil's Fo'c's'le."

Von Luckner was married in 1924 to Ingeborg Vonengstroem, a wealthy owner of Swedish woolen mills.

Senators Flunk Vote Tests

WASHINGTON -- Senator Stuart Symington and Edward V. Long have flunked the voting test set up for members of congress by the conservative Americans for Constitutional Action.

Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett Democrat, has a passing score on the test.

Senator Symington was given the non-passing grade of 33 per cent for the past session and Senator Long the grade of 13 per cent.

Senator Symington has the average grade of 10 per cent on the votes since 1955 and Senator Long the average of four per cent since he has been in the Senator, according to the ACA report.

ACA claims that the votes on which they used to grade the members "were on issues which tend to safeguard or strengthen the rights and guarantees" of the constitution. Members of their board include such persons as actor John Wayne, Edgar Eisenhower, brother to the former president, and former Governor Charles Edison of New Jersey, son of the late inventor.

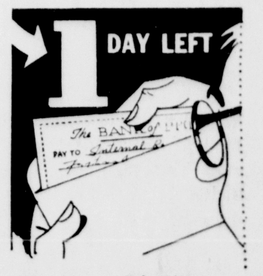

Both senators got plus credit for voting against foreign subsidies. Senator Long got the plus credit for voting against repeal of the poll tax. Senator Symington got one for voting against rent subsidies.

Jones is credited with a grade of 80 during the last session and an average of 60 during his term in the House.

"Plus" grades were given in the House for votes against the following: changing the rules to speed up legislation, reducing the gold backing of paper money, foreign subsidies, medicare, federal school aid programs, federal arts programs, debt limit hikes, new cabinet post voting rights bill, diluting the half dollar, quarter, and dime, the federal poverty program, public works for prosperity, agricultural subsidies, home rule for the District of Columbia, and aid to North Viet Nam.

Plus grades also were given for a vote to let the governor veto state poverty projects, to let the states pass right to work laws, and for bills that halt communism.

The ACA claims that their plus votes were for sound money, private competitive markets, local self government, private ownership, individual liberty, or for national sovereignty.

Marines Hunt for Enemy

SAIGON, South Viet Nam (AP) — Several thousand U.S. Marines opened a new search operation today in the rice paddies overlooking the South China Sea, while Air Force F105 Thunderchiefs caught a dozen trucks near the entrance to North Viet Nam's landslide-clogged Mu Gia Pass.

The Leathernecks killed 14 Viet Cong, captured five and took 67 suspects in tow at the outset of a multibattalion search and destroy operation 23 miles south of Chu Lai. The area has been in Viet Cong hands for years.

Ten Marines stripped to the waist and moved with pistols and flashlights through a network of tunnels where they seized 15 Vietnamese suspected of being Viet Cong. Some pajama-clad fighters were seen fleeing the maze beneath the hamlet of An Hai a short time before.

The Air Force jets returned Wednesday to the strategic pass on the Laotian frontier, 230 miles south of Hanoi, where B52s dropped 1.4 million pounds of bombs on Tuesday in the first raid by the stratofortresses on North Viet Nam. Military sources in Washington said some of the big bombs were rigged with delayed-action devices to explode days later, thereby discouraging Communist road clearing work.

The Thunderchiefs spotted 12 trucks on Route 15 at the entrance to the bottled-up pass. At least four were destroyed, an Air Force spokesman said. He also said aerial photographs confirmed that the pass was completely blocked by landslides.

The mountain roadway links up with the Ho Chi Minh Trail in neighboring Laos, the major infiltration route to South Viet Nam.

Bell City Board Shields Fund Vote

By DAN WHITTLE

BELL CITY -- No one will divulge who voted what way in Monday night's R-2 board of education's rejection of $80,107 in federal funds.

The board vote was split three to three. It requires a majority, consequently, the board could not accept federal funds for the coming year.

John T. Lawrence, coordinator of public law 89-10, Jefferson City, said that the Bell City district has compiled with the regulations of the program.

There are petitions circulating through the community asking people to sign their name in favor of acceptance of the funds.

Bennie Hesselrode, route one, said that he had 60 signatures and that several more petitions are being circulated in an attempt to get the board to change it's vote.

The petition reads:

"We do not feel that the vote of the school board on this issue represents the majority of the people."

Forrest Jackson, superintendent of schools, said that the decision must be made by the board of education.

The petitions will be presented to the board in an effort to obtain a straw vote of the people on the issue if the board does not change its vote. This vote would not be official.

Ronnie Weeks, board member, said yesterday that he favored accepting the funds since "our district, like all other districts, needs the services made available to our students by use of the federal funds."

Gene Wheeler, president of the school board, said:

"You aren't going to get any information out of me."

John Johnson, board member, said he favored accepting the federal money.

Shelby Dong, board member, said it wasn't anyone's business how he voted.

The other board members, Herman Vetter and Bill Watkins, could not be contacted.

Time Bill Signed

SAN ANTONIO, Tex. AP -- President Johnson has signed into law the bill establishing a uniform Daylight Saving Time system for the nation extending from April to October each year.

The vacation White House announced the signing today.

Starting next year, the measure puts the whole nation on the faster time from the last Sunday in April until the last Sunday in October except that a state can decide by action of its legislature to remain on standard time. But such a decision must apply to the entire state.

For this year, the bill provides that any state, city or other unit wishing to observe Daylight Saving Time must do it for the full period between April 24 and Oct. 30.

A uniform system of daylight time for the late spring, summer and early fall months has been sought for years by airlines, railroads, bus companies, radio and television networks and other businesses.

$100,000 Water System Loan for Anniston Okayed

Special to Daily Standard

WASHINGTON -- A $100,000 loan has been approved for Anniston in Mississippi county it was announced by Senators Symington and Edward V. Long, and Rep. Paul Jones, Kennett Democrat.

The funds will be used to improve the water system and to extend the water lines to accommodate 122 more homes. The lines also will be connected with a fire fighting system.

The town has a population of about 600.

Mayor Ray Davis applied for the loan under a program to bring better facilities to small towns and rural areas.

Elks Lodge Installs

Installation ceremonies were held last night for the new officers of the Elks lodge.

Bobby Ralph was installed as exalted ruler.

Others installed were Marshall "Windy" Blackman, esteemed leading knight; Allen Blanton, esteemed loyal knight; Charles David Springs, secretary, Bennie Walker, Jr., treasurer and Mike Blacker, titler.

Ray Hart was installed as a director for five years and Dwight Crader, a director for four years.

The Chaffee Elks Lodge performed the installation.

Three Shetland Ponies Struck by Truck, Killed

DEXTER -- Three Shetland ponies, belonging to the Churchill Nursery, were killed last night by a truck at 9:45 p.m., the junction of highway 60 and the business route, the highway patrol reports.

The ponies darted across the highway in front of a 1966 Mack trailer-tractor, driven by Donald Phillips, 34, St. Clair.

The driver of the truck was not injured.

Legislature Quits Until Wednesday

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri House went through the formalities of opening a morning session, but quickly adjourned with no business to conduct.

The Senate cleared its calendar Wednesday.

Both will return next Wednesday.

Only one bill has passed the legislature — an emergency appropriations bill. Only two weeks will remain in the special session when the legislature returns.

Sen. J. F. Pat Patterson, D-Caruthersville, chairman of the Senate Appropriations Committee, said he would work his committee day and night in an effort to get the budget ready for floor action next week.

Wednesday night, the House Roads and Highways Committee completed hearings on the controversial bills to regulate billboards and junkyards along major traffic arteries. But no action was taken.

Another meeting is scheduled next week to take up a third bill in the highway beautification package—one to authorize the State Highway Department to buy scenic spots for rest areas.

Representatives of the outdoor advertising industry and tourist business offered amendments to the Senate version of the billboard bill. There were indications some changes would be made.

The beautification bills are necessary if Missouri is to qualify for about $23 million in federal road funds, proponents argue.

The House Education Committee Wednesday night approved a bill to give school districts state aid for part time students.

The vote sending it to the floor for action was 17-5.

Rep. James I. Spainhower, D-Saline County, said his bill is intended as a companion measure to a so-called "shared time" bill that is stuck in a Senate committee.

The shared time measure would allow parochial and private school students to attend special courses at public schools. It has been opposed by those who charge it would violate the traditional separation of church and state.

Spainhower estimated the additional state aid cost of his bill would amount to only about $75.000.

Also approved by a House committee Wednesday was a Senate passed bill to let the state pay the first $40 hospitalization cost for old age assistance recipients after the Medicare program goes into effect July 1.

The state also could pay $10 a day for the 60th to 90th day of hospitalization. The net saving to the state as compared with the present medical aid program is estimated at $863,000.

The Senate is in recess until next Wednesday while its appriations committee completes work on the billion dollar budget bills.

A bill to set up a state and regional planning system passed the Senate yesterday 23-6, despite an outburst of opposition.

The bill was recommended by Gov. Warren E. Hearnes as a means of getting federal planning funds for local improvements such as sewer systems, water districts, educational and health facilities, recreational areas and so on.

It now goes to the House where further opposition is expected.

Sen. Albert M. Spradling, D-Cape Girardeau, expressed the fear that if the state does not have a central planning agency, the federal government will bypass the state and go directly to the cities and counties.

Also passed and sent to the House were bills to:

Give Missouri its first law to regulate the drilling of oil and gas wells.

Nine Injured in Car Collisions in Region

Six persons were injured in a two-car collision last night at 8:30 p.m. three miles north of Fruitland, on highway 61.

A 1963 Mercury, driven by Michael Haley, 17, Crystal City, passed another car on a yellow line, the highway patrol charged.

The Haley car struck a 1963 Oldsmobile, driven by Leon Tuschhoff, 27, Jackson, headon, injuring Tuschhoff, and the five occupants of the Haley car.

Haley, according to the patrol, will be arrested on a charge of careless and reckless driving.

The injured: Haley, cuts and bruises; Wanda Loesch, 15, Festus, cut on head and bruises; Mark Hayden, 16, Festus, back injury; Sharon Hayden, Festus, fractured jaw, legs and a chest injury, and John Portell, 19, Cape Girardeau, head cuts. They were taken to the Southeast Missouri Hospital, Cape Girardeau. Tuschhoff was treated by a Jackson physician.

Two persons were injured yesterday at 11:30 a.m. 10 miles east of Dexter on highway 153, when a 1965 Ford, driven by Don Zeller, 19, Jefferson City, pulled into the path of a 1960 two-ton truck, driven by Douglas Wilson, 21, route two, Boaz, Ky.

He was arrested for failure to yield the right of way.

Injured were two passengers in the Zeller car, Dorothy Dyson, 15, Doniphan, bruises and scratches; and Donna Zeller, 21, Jefferson City, pelvis injury. They were taken to the Missouri Delta Community Hospital.

A 1962 Rambler, driven by Judith McGee, 23, Dexter, was driven into the path of a 1964 Pontiac, driven by Riley Hester, 56, Bloomfield, yesterday at 4:30 p.m. causing a collision at the intersection of highways 25 and 114 in Dexter.

The driver of the Rambler was taken to the Lucy Lee Hospital, Poplar Bluff for treatment of minor injuries, and will be cited for failing to yield the right-of-way, the patrol said.

Hays to Run in Arkansas

LITTLE ROCK, Ark. (AP)— Former Congressman Brooks Hays today resigned as an adviser to President Johnson and announced as a Democratic candidate for governor of Arkansas.

Hays, 67, said he can carry the Democratic banner against Republican Winthrop Rockefeller better than any other candidate.

"I've never wavered in my loyalty to the Democratic party," he told a news conference.

Gov. Orval Faubus has announced that he will not seek re-election unless the Democratic party fails to find formidable opposition for Rockefeller, the GOP candidate.

Jim Johnson, who resigned earlier this month from the Arkansas Supreme Court, and State Rep. Kenneth Sulcer also have filed for the Democratic primary.

Hays' 16-year congressional career ended in 1958 when he lost to Dr. Dale Alford of Little Rock who ran on a segregationist platform during the Central High School racial troubles.

Maher Tells Of Progress

CHARLESTON -- Phillip V. Maher, head of the office of urban affairs and coordinator of Economic Opportunity, Jefferson City, speaker at a chamber of commerce dinner told of progress made to improve communities.

In a meeting held at the Charlestonian last night he pointed out how the Economic Development Act could be used to improve city streets and sewers, as well as the program of the Office of Economic Opportunity, which trains persons for services which would tie in with an industrial plan for the community.

Charles L. Brink Jr., membership chairman, announced 30 new members on a goal of 50 have been added to bring the total membership to 116.

Frank Bihr, chairman of merchants committee, reported a sidewalk sale will be held April 29-30, during regular store hours from 8 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. on Friday and 8 a.m. to 9 p.m., Saturday.

Funds Pledged For New Church

Trinity Baptist church members last night pledged funds sufficient to complete the first phase of their church building program.

A. J. Day is chairman of the finance committee. He reported the cost of the first building would be $260,000, and would be erected north of the Joel Montgomery property on a 20-acre tract of land.

Construction will begin June 15.

Buddhists Plea Heeded

SAIGON, South Viet Nam AP-- Thousands of jubilant Buddhist demonstrators marched peacefully through Saigon today in a victory celebration after the military regime decreed elections for a civilian government in three to five months.

A ranking Buddhist leader said the junta's formal pledge "satisfies our main demands."

The willingness of the Buddhist hierarchy to accept the election pledge may mean the survival of the U. S. supported military government until the nationwide elections. On Sunday, the Buddhists had demanded the immediate resignation of the junta.

Lady Bird Tours Beauty Spots

WASHINGTON AP -- In a rainstorm, Mrs. Lyndon B. Johnson conducted a bus tour of beauty spots and eyesores in the nation's capital.

During the tour Wednesday, attended by scores of officials and prominent philanthropists, she planted a cherry tree while shielding herself with an umbrella.

She praised what she called "this tremendous desire of Americans to make their land more beautiful."

Car Insurance Premiums To Increase More Than $10

KANSAS CITY (AP)—An average increase of more than $10 a year on insurance premiums for Missouri motorists was announced by the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters and the National Automobile Underwriters Association.

The changes were approved by the Missouri insurance commissioner, an industry spokesman said.

In typical increases, fire and theft coverage is up about 14 per cent over the state, 16 per cent in Kansas City and 9 per cent in its Missouri suburbs. Collision premiums are up 15 per cent over the state and in Kansas City, 14 per cent in the Missouri suburbs of Kansas City.

The spokesman for major insurers in Kansas City said the new schedules provide broader protection under Missouri's financial responsibility law. The new minimums are $10,000 liability coverage for each person injured in an accident, $20,000 for any one such accident and $5,000 property damage. The old limits were $5,000, $10,000 and $5,000.

A good-risk driver with no violations who uses his car to drive to and from work and for limited personal use will pay about $109 for minimum coverage under the law, about $11.50 more than previously.

The base rate for automobile liability insurance for private passenger cars was reduced an average of 1.6 per cent on a statewide basis, according to the National Bureau of Casualty Underwriters.

Three Injured In Headon Crash Near Wyatt

A two car accident today at 9:25 a.m, two and one-half miles east of Wyatt on highway 60, sent three persons to the St. Marys Hospital, Cairo, Ill.

A 1963 Ford going west and driven by Roy Jacob Graber, 73, Paducah, attempted to pass a tractor-trailer, when he struck a 1965 Buick, traveling east, and driven by Clarence Carter, 69, East Prairie, head-on.

Injured were Carter, who received cuts on the face, right knee and possible chest injury, and his wife, Mamie Carter, 63, who received cuts on her scalp and right knee. Graber received cuts on his left hand.

Graber was arrested by the highway patrol for careless and reckless driving.

'Spun-Fiber' Soybean Diet May Prevent Heart Attacks

ATLANTIC CITY, N.J. (AP) — Promising results were reported today with a "spun-fiber" diet designed to reduce blood fats under suspicion as contributors to heart attacks.

The diet — made up of predissolved soybean protein spun into fibers to give the product a meat-like texture —is designed to give Americans deemed needing it the low-fat properties of the average oriental diet, but one having "the appearance of Western food." The wispy fibers are compacted into tiny morsels, and flavored and colored for serving.

Dr. Robert Hodges of the University of Iowa, who described it at a scientific meeting here, said people in the Orient have long been known to have much lower rates of atherosclerosis-a form of hardening-of-the-arteries believed by many doctors to be the forerunner of heart attacks -- than Americans.

And he said that while other actors in addition to dietary ones may aid the Orientals in that respect, their low-fat diet is believed to play a signficant role.

Hodges indicated at a news conference at the annual convention of the Federation of American Societies for Experimental Biology that the Orientals' dietary staple-- rice-- might serve the same purpose as the new diet. But he said the latter "is far more acceptable.

Beds in Hall Every Third Day at Delta Hospital

Every third day at the Missouri Delta Community Hospital during the past year, according to Harold Jones, administrater, patients were admitted to the corridors because of the lack of space in patient rooms.

He said every available space has been utilized to house patients.

Jones said that there were several occasions when no corridor space was available.

"At one time, there were 15 patient beds in the corridors," he said.

"This factor alone, is sufficient to express the tremendous need which exists for additional hospital facilities," he said.

He said the hospital continues to be operated at a lower average cost per patient day than the national average.

Nationally the median cost per patient day was $38.24. The Sikeston hospital is reported to have an average operating expense per patient day of $29.02.

Jones said that the hospital staff and administration is "doing all within their power" to keep costs at a minimum.

"This is a most important factor," Jones commented, "in continuing to make our hospital services available to the majority of the citizens of this area."

The hospital has 180 full-time employes with an annual payroll of $675,000.

The hospital has received federal grants of $923,499.55 to construct a new 55-bed wing.

These funds must be matched locally.

Local funds pledged now total $574,000 approximately $350,000 short of the amount required to match the allocation.

Germany's 'Sea Devil' Dies

MALMOE, Sweden (AP) — Count Felix Von Luckner, who sank 14 Allied ships in World War I without taking a life, is dead at 84.

During the World War I he commanded an innocent-looking windjammer which carried concealed guns and a powerful motor. Masquerading as a Norwegian freighter, Von Luckner's Sea Eagle scuttled $25 million worth of Allied ships, but he took their crews -- and even their pets -- off first and looked after them until he could put them ashore.

"I broke the British blockade with a clear conscience," he said. "No mother, wife, child or father lost a tear."

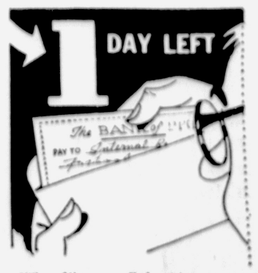

His ship roamed the Atlantic and Pacific with a 64-man crew, 27 of whom spoke Norwegian.

After sailing 35,000 miles, the Seeadler was wrecked on a South Sea coral reef in August 1917. Von Luckner and five of his crew sailed a lifeboat loaded with ammunition for 48 days to the Fiji Islands, where they hoped to seize another ship. Instead a British police officer and several native policemen captured them.

The British sent him to New Zealand, but he escaped in a motorboat and during six weeks of freedom seized a small sailing vessel. A British cruiser recaptured him and he spent the rest of the war in New Zealand.

POOR CHARLIE SAYS!

Thursday, April 14, 1195, Brick, Armenia: Baron Firdge Huk frees the serfs from Sunday dinner.

THE GREEN TIDE

Toward the end of April there comes a day when one suddenly realizes the bleached gray and drab brown have disappeared and the land is green again. The green tide comes slowly some years. It arrives almost overnight if a period of warm days and steady rain blesses the land.

One morning, crossing the farmyard to the barn, the green fields shine in the slanting rays. It may have been nearly a month ago when one noticed the first ripples of the tide. Along the south side of the woodlot a tinge of new color was mixed with the brown. Then the first thin strands were woven along the brook banks.

Now, suddenly, the countryside is green. The upland pasture has new color and the meadow mowings are glowing with a soft sheen. Lawns are green carpets and a man knows he has a summer's work ahead. The Master Planner has waved His wand and a new season is here.

Each has favorite signs to tell him when true spring has arrived. The heart is hungry for the resurrection and glad of the affirmation of a promise that has never failed. There is the music of birds at dawn and the opening of buds on the bough.

In a world of seething tension, ruthlessness and greed, it is sometimes difficult to anchor one's belief to the verities. But as year moves toward the fifth month and the green tide sweeps over the countryside, a man knows that the certainties still prevail.

The late Sen. Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi carried with him an impressive wardrobe.

When he reported a burglary, which was frequent, he gave reporters an itemized list, which invariably included two dozen silk shirts, as many striped silk shorts and an impressive array of other expensive, gaudy men's clothing.

In theft at least Bilbo ranked as one of the nation's best dressed men.

He needed to dress up because he was small of stature and his features bore no classical lines. His frame was lumpy and undistinguished.

Perhaps the reason that he was difficult to beat at the polls was because the average Mississippian envied that wardrobe and thought that it was exactly what he wanted if he had the money to pay for it.

This brings up the subject of burglaries and the aged.

They really should keep some non-depressing items around the house in plain view so that burglars wouldn't miss them.

Dancing pumps are an excellent choice.

If the oldster gets careless he is apt to read an itemized list of stolen goods such as:

One hearing aid, set of false teeth, bottle of denture cleaner, tube of sure grip denture paste, two way stretch girdle, wig, two pair of bifocals, three bottles of vitamins, 16 bottles of prescription pills, and pair of crutches and two canes.

Depressing isn't it?

The publication Oil Facts reports that U.S. oilmen have drilled more than 2 million holes searching for oil and gas in this country since the nation's first successful well was completed in 1859. In the industry's first year, the total U. S. production was only 2,000 barrels of crude oil, all from Pennsylvania. Estimated production for 1965 will exceed 2.9 billion barrels of crude oil along with 440 million barrels of natural gas liquids.

HE WAS BOUND TO BE A SUCCESS

Those of us who observed the vigor and intelligence of D. W. Gilmore back in the middle '30s at the University of Missouri knew that he would almost for a certainty become a genuine success in life.

He became an attorney, a prosecuting attorney, a circuit judge, a state senator and now he is senior vice president of the Kansas City Life Insurance Company.

Then this week Gov. Warren E. Hearnes tapped Gilmore to be a member of the Kansas City police board, an especially important post these days. It was unquestionably an appointment of merit and Gov. Hearnes, in choosing this Kansas Citian, again demonstrated that he wants men with ability, integrity and dependability. The Governor is to be commended for making this selection.

We are among the many who are happy to be aware that the new appointee is, as he puts it: ". . .I'm what you might call conservative by nature."

When we last saw D. W. Gilmore several months ago in the halls of the Missouri capitol, he had his unfailing drive, his affable personality and keen mind--just as we recall him as a young student 30 years ago. He's made good all right. And he will continue up the ladder of success.

Individuals and small business firms place some 350 million classified ads in newspapers in the United States each year. Cost of the want ads exceed a billion dollars annually.

These small advertisements are used in such astounding quantity for one reason only. They bring results. Often the results are constant and keep a steady flow of customers coming to a small shop. Often they are dramatic, resulting in profits a thousand times the cost of the advertisement.

It would be impossible to calculate the economic importance of the classified sections of newspapers. They help to stabilize employment. They salvage billions of dollars for owners and used goods by placing the goods where they are wanted and needed. Classified advertising has become the major real estate directory. It is the broker for the repairman, the babysitter, the gardener, and others with individual services to perform.

Significant from a long-range standpoint, the classified section is the best guarantee of a free and responsible press. The newspaper with a strong want ad section is never in danger of undue pressure from a few interests which might wish to control the press. For, a strong classified advertising section is more important to a newspaper than the business of any single large advertiser.

The classified section has been called "Democracy in action," because the users of the section are as diverse as the whole public.

Hal Boyle

NEW YORK (AP)—"Him? I didn't think you even knew he existed, Ellen."

"Really, Jason, I don't think you even know what love means."

These are a couple of remarks I heard my daughter, Tracy Ann, make recently over the telephone, an instrument which has become so firmly attached to her ear that I am thinking of having it removed by surgical means.

I am not a parent who believes in eavesdropping but kids today bellow their secrets into a phone so loud you can hear them all over the house.

What do 12-year-old kids talk about? Well, believe it or not, they talk about each other.

Does Judy like Rodger? What does Susie see in Spencer? And how about Dick and Christine?

The other night, with both a radio and television set turned on, my daughter sat and talked over the phone with a chum about the antics of a seventh-grade Romeo for exactly an hour and 15 minutes. Finally, I went into her room and broke up the conversation.

"What on earth are you doing?" I demanded.

Tracy Ann pointed at an American history book open on her lap.

"Studying the Monroe Doctrine," she replied.

"While listening to the radio, watching television, and talking on the phone?"

"Yup."

I noticed six boys' name written on her small blackboard, and asked who they were.

"My boy friends."

"Only six?" I inquired with heavy sarcasm.

"Oh, I've got lots more," she said airily. "But those are the ones I like best—now."

I went out and grumbled to my wife.

"Oh, dry up, Rover," said Frances. "Let her alone. She's still in the puppy love stage."

Puppy love? Oh, no. No, indeed. Whatever this jabberwocky over the telephone between small fry amounts to, it isn't puppy love.

Not real puppy love, anyway. Real puppy love isn't noisy and carefree and gossipy. Real puppy love is solidary, silent, soulful suffering—the spirit laid bare and shuddering and helpless to cure its own agony.

I remembered then my own case of puppy love in the seventh grade. I wrote not six names on a blackboard, but one in my heart.

She was a girl half a head taller than I, and I sold newspapers on the streets for days to save up enough to buy her a box of Valentine candy, and she promptly gave a piece to the tallest boy in the class.

This boy was my best friend and I sat in the row between him and her, and I had to pass back and forth the notes they wrote each other and I never read one. I have had to do some bitter chores in my life since then, but none that ever degraded me more or left me more forlorn.

Well, he grew up and died, and she grew up and married, and I grew up and moved away. And I never really told her that I loved her, and I never will.

All this happened back in 1918, and so far as I know puppy love has been going downhill ever since. They don't have men in the seventh grade anymore who can stand up to its torture.

Six names on a blackboard—Hal Child's play. But I guess it's better that way.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

SCIONS OF THE TIMES

Rockefeller and Scranton Building Labor Machines

Washington, D. C.: -- The wheel has turned.

Republican scions of legendary, wealthy families are wooing the new class -- the politically influential labor leaders.

For months now, Nelson Rockefeller and William Scranton, each in his own bailiwick, have met or have had their colleagues meet privately with local union chiefs.

So successful have been these "dialogues" that National Republican Chairman Ray Bliss has been insisting that confidential reports of those off-the-record sessions become part of every Republican "big city leaders" teach-in.

Ray Bliss' labor specialist--who appears to be doing quite well in Pennsylvania -- is the comparatively unknown "Pat" Jiuliano, deputy Secretary of Labor and Industry (for Labor) under Gov. Scranton.

There are those who will disagree with Jiuliano's politics, but who dare deny he had courage when for years he was an active Republican though an official of militant Mike Quill's Transport Workers Union. For four years Jiuliano sat on the TWU International Executive Board under "Mike's" chairmanship.

Jiuliano believes he has the formula -- and Ray Bliss agrees with him -- for cracking the Democrats' hold on the labor movement's political machinery. In synthesis, it adds up to wooing the local labor leaders, who in many areas rarely share the limelight with the national labor officials, nor have they ridden the televised campaign trains, nor sat on the much-photographed daises at the great fund-raising banquets.

During his off-the-record talk to the big city Republican leaders' conference here early in March, Jiuliano reported that there had been three friendly meetings between Pennsylvania labor leaders -- mostly from Pittsburgh and Philadelphia--and Governor Scranton, State Chairman Truax and other state GOP leaders.

The Governor attended the first such gathering with 19 union officials in the Harrisburger Hotel in Harrisburg, Pa. in February. Other Pennsylvania Republicans met with another 39 union men two weeks after that first session.

When Jiuliano reported on these meetings to Bliss' early March teach-in, he was buoyant:

"We Republicans in Pennsylvania have been making great strides in working with local labor leaders. And we will go much further. . .you can bet on that!

"There are thousands of labor union people like me. . . already registered Republican . . .or who are thinking seriously about joining our Republican Party. Many of them are right in your own backyard.

"For the past 30 years some labor leaders have been bragging that all labor union people are Democrats. Take it from me. . .that is a lot of bunk. . ."

Jiuliano told the big city leaders that the Harrisburg meetings were the first such sessions in 40 years. And there would be more right through the election campaign.

North of the border, up Albany way, Gov. Rockefeller has been building a labor "machine" of his own. His political mechanic is his old college companion and long-time labor adviser, the truly anonymous Victor Borella.

Soft-spoken Borella, a connoisseur of good cigars, wine and whimsical political stories, is so popular in some labor circles -- especially the construction trade -- he could probably get an honorary membership card and win an election in some union. There are few national labor leaders he does not know.

It is Borella who is heading up the Rockefeller labor "section." But much of the upstate traveling and door knocking will be done by Bob Gormley, who once worked closely with Pat Jiuliano as the labor team for Dwight Eisenhower.

Gormley ran the labor desk at the Republican National Committee until Senator Goldwater's people suggested he leave, since there was as much chance of getting labor leader support for Mr. Goldwater as for selling ice in the Arctic.

But Nelson Rockefeller himself is a pretty good business agent when it comes to getting labor backing now. He is a do-it-yourself man on this front these days. He meets regularly in the Rockefeller Center dining rooms with the labor people.

He calls them by their first names, corresponds faithfully with them and briefs himself intensely on the most complex industrial problems so he can sit with them during discussions of new laws, manpower problems and automation forums.

These little-reported efforts of Rockefeller and Scranton to build up cadres of labor leaders are not meant to stop at the state borders.

The Hudson and Susquehanna are great rivers, but there's something about the Potomac which still fascinates both liberal Republicans.

"Thirty Years That Shook Physics" by George Gamow. George Gamow is one of our wittiest science writers. In this chatty account of the development of quantum theory he demonstrates once again his ability to entertain the layman. Gamow was originally a student of paleontology in Russia (he learned "to tell a dinosaur from a cat by the shape of the little toes"). He went on to become a mathematical physicist celebrated for numerous esoteric theories including his development of the Big Bang idea of cosmic creation. His background is a cosmopolitan one and he worked closely with most of the big European names in quantum theory: Planck, Bohr, Pauli, De Broglie, Heisenberg, Dirac, Fermi, etc. Consequently he can expatiate on working habits and idiosyncrasies as well as theories. There's a hilarious version of "Faust" at the end, closely imitating the meters of the original but geared to the interests of the theoretical physicist. This is for those (and this includes most of us) who do not know what your younger educated elite is studying today.

WHAT TAXES WON'T BUY

You and 75 million other U.S. taxpayers this year are paying more taxes than any other people ever paid in any other land.

These taxes are used as the means to almost any end--from the ridiculous to the sublime.

Taxes pay for space capsules and relief checks, for the CIA and HEW, for hydrogen bombs and national parks and many more questionable goods and services, all of which will add up to more than $140 billion in the next fiscal year.

Yes, taxes can buy just about anything. Anything, that is, except integrity, self-reliance, morality, industry, ingenuity, vision and the courage to take risks--all the things that have built the great private enterprise civilization that is the United States of America.

MANGLED MASTERPIECES

One of the best remedies for world-weariness is to look at things through the eyes of kids.

In an issue of the Journal of the National Education Association, Ronald N. Wood, an author and former biology teacher in a Vermont high school, submits a few reasons why people keep on having children.

One of his pupils wrote on a test:

"When man eats, his food goes from his stomach into his small intentions."

Others endowed man with a "gaul blotter," "lunks" (for breathing) and "red constables" in his blood.

Some of his favorite definitions:

Asphyxiation - "When you indulge in too much carbon monoxide."

Mammal - "An animal that feeds its babies with mammy glands."

Smallpox - "A disease that was perfected by Edward Jenner."

Finally one that comes uncomfortably close to the truth:

Degeneration - "When you resemble your parents."

WHERE THE MAIN TAX BURDEN FALLS

Many Americans still nourish the illsuion that a large part of the tax revenue which finances our federal government comes from the wealthy. They like to think that the "free federal money" they hear so much about mostly comes from the rich.

Beyond question the men and women of wealth should pay their fair share of the tax burden, but the incentive to produce must not be destroyed. The simple fact is that there are not nearly enough unusually wealthy people in the United States to supply the money for spending at its present rate, even if all their wealth has to be confiscated.

By far the largest elements in federal revenue is the personal income and social security taxes paid by wage earners and middle-income families. It is on these families, making too little money to be called wealthy and too much to be called poor, that the main tax burden falls. The tragic fact is that most of these families do not know it. They think that the greater part of the burden is being borne by somebody else.

If this great group of people know that they are the major support of a gigantic institution like the Federal Government, they are likely to take much more interest in just how their money is collected, transferred and expanded.

When they learn it is their earnings, not somebody else's, which constitutes more than 80% of the personal income and social security taxes paid, they will find that no "federal money" is "free" and soon become wiser and better citizens. HLH

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The FBI has leaked out word that it intends to wind up its quickie probe of Sen. Tom Dodd and his unethical conduct by this weekend -- with a whitewash.

Members of the Senate Ethics committee, after much handwringing, has confided to friends that the protective club spirit will be maintained and that they will have a report out within 30 days upholding their colleague, the democratic senator from Connecticut.

Despite these reports, we can state that the surface has only been scratched regarding the financial manipulations and lobbying of the statuesque senator from Connecticut.

This column has already reported on the money raised by Dodd's 1961 campaign dinner and traced where the money went to. That dinner was supposed to pay off a 1958 campaign debt and raise money for his 1964 campaign -- even though it was three years before he would be up for election. Instead, all of the money went into Dodd's personal account.

Here is the inside story of another dinner, on Oct. 26, 1963, called "Dodd Day," and how the proceeds from the dinner were used, among other things, to repair the senator's summer home and pay liquor bill and the vacation expenses to his family.

LYNDON CAME TO DINNER

Actually three different meals were held on 1963 Dodd day, breakfast in Hartford, luncheon in Woodridge, and dinner in Bridgeport, with the Democratic faithful, including Lyndon B. Johnson, then vice president, leading the tribute. There could have been no doubt about the purpose of Dodd day. It was to raise funds for the senator's 1964 campaign, not pay his personal expenses. Dodd made this clear in a "Dear Lyndon" letter dated August 5, 1963.

"First of all," wrote the senator, "allow me to thank you again for your generous offer to come to Connecticut to assist me in my forthcoming campaign. I wish I could convey to you how enthusiastic everyone is about your visit and how much it will assist me in getting my campaign drive underway. . Your visit means more to me than I can say, Lyndon, and I shall never forget it."

The senator neglected to tell the vice president that most of the money he helped to raise would pay Dodd's personal bills. He also neglected to report this use of political contributions on his income tax returns, though the law clearly states that campaign funds diverted to personal use are taxable.

Dodd assigned several staff members, whose salaries are paid by the taxpayers, to sell tables for the Dodd day testimonials. One senate employee, Joe Flynn, was instructed to go through all the senator's case work files and list everyone whom Dodd had helped in Washington. More than 1,000 names were sent to Ed Sullivan, another senate employee, who directed the solicitation in Connecticut.

The senator later complained to friends that Dodd day had been "no howling financial success." He collected $22,000 in Hartford, $15,000 in Bridgeport, and $10,000 in Woodridge -- total $47,000.

Most of the money was deposited in Hartford's Connecticut Bank and Trust in a special account labeled "testimonial for U.S. Senator Thomas J. Dodd."

A check for $8,000, covering the net receipts from Woodridge, was mailed directly to Dodd in Washington. Somehow the check was misplaced and became the object of an intensive search. There is no trace of what finally happened to the $8,000.

LIQUOR BILLS PAID

After Dodd day, the senator suddenly began sending all his office bills to Hartford to be paid out of the testimonial account. These were mostly personal items, including his liquor and country club bills, which came to his office for payment.

They had amounted to $14,974.28 in 1961 and $11,075.12 in 1962. In 1963, all but $742.04 were paid out of political contributions.

The bills had been allowed to accumulate until after Dodd day. Then the senator's accountant, Michael O'Hare, began mailing the bills to Ed Sullivan in Hartford to be paid out of the testimonial dinner account.

"Enclosed are some of the bills," wrote O'Hare, "which the senator would like you to pay out of the Hartford account . . . The American Airlines bill ($3,018.43) is quite a bit overdue, so that should be paid as soon as possible."

This bill included a number of personal flights by Dodd and his family. Among them was the return fare from a Miami vacation on February 13, 1963 -- $78.12 for the senator's ticket, $56.39 for Mrs. Dodd's ticket, and $32.10 for excess baggage.

The senator's son, Tom, Jr., made a number of flights that were paid out of political contributions. These included trips from Washington to Akron on April 18 ($59.43). Washington to Chicago on June 24 ($91.77) and Washington to Asheville on June 26 ($68.36).

Dodd often collected from the taxpayers for his trips, then collected again from his political campaign fund. Sometimes he actually collected triple airline fare by charging private groups that had invited him to speak.

As we previously reported, Dodd paid $8,000 out of his Dodd day collections to ghostwriter Ed Lockett to write a book for him. Yet the senator put the $1,800 advance in his own pocket. The book still hasn't been published.

The senator also began extensive repairs on his North Stonington, Conn., country home after Dodd day.

It will be interesting to see whether the Senate Ethics committee considers Dodd's personal use of campaign funds and failure to pay taxes on them to be ethical.

SEN. DODD EDITORIALS

ST. LOUIS POST DISPATCH -- "The Senate committee on standards and conduct ought to be encouraged to get to the bottom of what it has termed 'charges of misconduct' against Senator Dodd of Connecticut. . .

"What is disturbing about the case is that the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Attorney General Katzenbach apparently are questioning some of Mr. Pearson's sources to determine how they obtained the information used by Mr. Pearson in his columns.

"Since Mr. Dodd has powerful friends in the White House and federal agencies there is bound to be the ugly suspicion that someone is trying to discredit Mr. Pearson's case by showing he obtained the evidence in an irregular manner. The point here is not how Mr. Pearson obtained his information, but whether his charges stand up. That is what the Senate committee is honor bound to determine. Any other inquiry is out of order at this time."

THE LOS ANGELES TIMES--"Grave charges of misconduct in office have been levelled against Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) by columnist Drew Pearson. Some of these accusations go far beyond alleged unethical practices. They involve charges that Dodd siphoned political campaign funds into his private bank account.

"With obvious reluctance, the senate's permanent select committee on standards and conduct, established in the wake of the Bobby Baker scandals, has undertaken a probe of these accusations.

"Their problem, say Washington observers, is compounded by the fact that the committee as yet hasn't even drawn up a yardstick for measuring misconduct.

"This strikes us as a weak alibi, in the Dodd case, for not pressing vigorously ahead with their investigation. If true, Pearon's charges against the senator go beyond any borderline aspects of unethical behavior. If false, they constitute a serious breach of journalistic conduct on the part of Pearson himself.

"Newspapers throughout the country, including the times, have reported the bulk of Pearson's charges. His sharp attack against Dodd is too widely known, and too detailed, for the ethics committee to sweep the matter under the rug of a closed hearing room.

"The Bobby Baker case gives melancholy proof that the senate has no stomach for policing itself. Aside from election frauds, it has acted to censure only two senators in the last 100 years.

". . . The senate must resolve this present situation, promptly, cleanly, and without equivocation. Unless it does, a shameful shadow will fall across a great legislative institution, which no amount of pious double-talk can drive away."

THE MILWAUKEE JOURNAL -- "Between Jan. 24 and Mar. 1 columnist Drew Pearson published some 13 documented reports on alleged activities of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) and his relations with Gen. Julius Klein, lobbyist and a registered agent for West German interests.

"Surely this is a matter for serious attention and some action. Dodd himself deserves the opportunity to clear his name if the charges are untrue. The senate itself should want to know whether they are true.

"Two facts, however, indicate how little the congress likes to look into such matters. Rep. Resnick (D-N.Y.) took the house floor to discuss the charges against Dodd and was gavelled down by speaker McCormack. One does not criticize a member of the opposite house. The ethics committee did not even meet until Dodd's statement that he would show it his files. By tradition it doesn't meet unless a senator asks that it investigate him -- perhaps the major reason it meets so seldom. Yet the ethics committee is empowered to meet and act on its own and reportedly one formal request for action on Dodd was filed.

"Dodd is an important senator. His reputation and that of the senate itself require that these serious charges by fully investigated.

THE HARTFORD COURANT -- ". . . There is a larger question raised by the series of claims made against the senator: That is, the senate itself, and its unwillingness either to establish ethical standards or to enforce them.

"The Bobby Baker inquiry was a shameful whitewash, and there was a general feeling that many senators were afraid that the waters of the inquiry were lapping at their own feet. Mr. Baker has since been indicted on a series of alleged criminal acts. The consensus is that his case will not go to trial before the next election.

"Not only is the senate unwilling to establish a code of ethics, or even to inquire fully into alleged misconduct, but it has not moved to renovate the election laws.

"The Senate Ethics committee has thus far displayed more interest in how the documents on which the accusations are based fell into the hand of these two columnists. But the criticism having been made, Mr. Dodd certainly should be given the chance to put the public record in order. Summary judgment would be most unfair."

THE GREEN TIDE

Toward the end of April there comes a day when one suddenly realizes the bleached gray and drab brown have disappeared and the land is green again. The green tide comes slowly some years. It arrives almost overnight if a period of warm days and steady rain blesses the land.

One morning, crossing the farmyard to the barn, the green fields shine in the slanting rays. It may have been nearly a month ago when one noticed the first ripples of the tide. Along the south side of the woodlot a tinge of new color was mixed with the brown. Then the first thin strands were woven along the brook banks.

Now, suddenly, the countryside is green. The upland pasture has new color and the meadow mowings are glowing with a soft sheen. Lawns are green carpets and a man knows he has a summer's work ahead. The Master Planner has waved His wand and a new season is here.

Each has favorite signs to tell him when true spring has arrived. The heart is hungry for the resurrection and glad of the affirmation of a promise that has never failed. There is the music of birds at dawn and the opening of buds on the bough.

In a world of seething tension, ruthlessness and greed, it is sometimes difficult to anchor one's belief to the verities. But as year moves toward the fifth month and the green tide sweeps over the countryside, a man knows that the certainties still prevail.

The late Sen. Theodore Bilbo of Mississippi carried with him an impressive wardrobe.

When he reported a burglary, which was frequent, he gave reporters an itemized list, which invariably included two dozen silk shirts, as many striped silk shorts and an impressive array of other expensive, gaudy men's clothing.

In theft at least Bilbo ranked as one of the nation's best dressed men.

He needed to dress up because he was small of stature and his features bore no classical lines. His frame was lumpy and undistinguished.

Perhaps the reason that he was difficult to beat at the polls was because the average Mississippian envied that wardrobe and thought that it was exactly what he wanted if he had the money to pay for it.

This brings up the subject of burglaries and the aged.

Depressing isn't it?

KNOW WHAT YOU'RE TALKING ABOUT -- READ. . .

"Thirty Years That Shook Physics" by George Gamow. George Gamow is one of our wittiest science writers. In this chatty account of the development of quantum theory he demonstrates once again his ability to entertain the layman. Gamow was originally a student of paleontology in Russia (he learned "to tell a dinosaur from a cat by the shape of the little toes"). He went on to become a mathematical physicist celebrated for numerous esoteric theories including his development of the Big Bang idea of cosmic creation. His background is a cosmopolitan one and he worked closely with most of the big European names in quantum theory: Planck, Bohr, Pauli, De Broglie, Heisenberg, Dirac, Fermi, etc. Consequently he can expatiate on working habits and idiosyncrasies as well as theories. There's a hilarious version of "Faust" at the end, closely imitating the meters of the original but geared to the interests of the theoretical physicist. This is for those (and this includes most of us) who do not know what your younger educated elite is studying today.

WHAT TAXES WON'T BUY

You and 75 million other U.S. taxpayers this year are paying more taxes than any other people ever paid in any other land.

These taxes are used as the means to almost any end--from the ridiculous to the sublime.

Taxes pay for space capsules and relief checks, for the CIA and HEW, for hydrogen bombs and national parks and many more questionable goods and services, all of which will add up to more than $140 billion in the next fiscal year.

Yes, taxes can buy just about anything. Anything, that is, except integrity, self-reliance, morality, industry, ingenuity, vision and the courage to take risks--all the things that have built the great private enterprise civilization that is the United States of America.

MANGLED MASTERPIECES

One of the best remedies for world-weariness is to look at things through the eyes of kids.

In an issue of the Journal of the National Education Association, Ronald N. Wood, an author and former biology teacher in a Vermont high school, submits a few reasons why people keep on having children.

One of his pupils wrote on a test:

"When man eats, his food goes from his stomach into his small intentions."

Others endowed man with a "gaul blotter," "lunks" (for breathing) and "red constables" in his blood.

Some of his favorite definitions:

Asphyxiation - "When you indulge in too much carbon monoxide."

Mammal - "An animal that feeds its babies with mammy glands."

Smallpox - "A disease that was perfected by Edward Jenner."

Finally one that comes uncomfortably close to the truth:

Degeneration - "When you resemble your parents."

A plane coming in for a landing at a small airport thumped the runway, bounced high, smacked the airstrip again and bounced a second time. After the third bounce it finally stayed down. Having taxied to the hanger, the pilot radioed the control tower for the time of his landing to enter in the log. A quiet voice replied, "Which one, sir?"

H. L. Hunt Says

WHERE THE MAIN TAX BURDEN FALLS

Many Americans still nourish the illsuion that a large part of the tax revenue which finances our federal government comes from the wealthy. They like to think that the "free federal money" they hear so much about mostly comes from the rich.

Beyond question the men and women of wealth should pay their fair share of the tax burden, but the incentive to produce must not be destroyed. The simple fact is that there are not nearly enough unusually wealthy people in the United States to supply the money for spending at its present rate, even if all their wealth has to be confiscated.

By far the largest elements in federal revenue is the personal income and social security taxes paid by wage earners and middle-income families. It is on these families, making too little money to be called wealthy and too much to be called poor, that the main tax burden falls. The tragic fact is that most of these families do not know it. They think that the greater part of the burden is being borne by somebody else.

If this great group of people know that they are the major support of a gigantic institution like the Federal Government, they are likely to take much more interest in just how their money is collected, transferred and expanded.

When they learn it is their earnings, not somebody else's, which constitutes more than 80% of the personal income and social security taxes paid, they will find that no "federal money" is "free" and soon become wiser and better citizens. HLH

"Really, Jason, I don't think you even know what love means."

These are a couple of remarks I heard my daughter, Tracy Ann, make recently over the telephone, an instrument which has become so firmly attached to her ear that I am thinking of having it removed by surgical means.

I am not a parent who believes in eavesdropping but kids today bellow their secrets into a phone so loud you can hear them all over the house.

What do 12-year-old kids talk about? Well, believe it or not, they talk about each other.

Does Judy like Rodger? What does Susie see in Spencer? And how about Dick and Christine?

The other night, with both a radio and television set turned on, my daughter sat and talked over the phone with a chum about the antics of a seventh-grade Romeo for exactly an hour and 15 minutes. Finally, I went into her room and broke up the conversation.

"What on earth are you doing?" I demanded.

Tracy Ann pointed at an American history book open on her lap.

"Studying the Monroe Doctrine," she replied.

"While listening to the radio, watching television, and talking on the phone?"

"Yup."

I noticed six boys' name written on her small blackboard, and asked who they were.

"My boy friends."

"Only six?" I inquired with heavy sarcasm.

"Oh, I've got lots more," she said airily. "But those are the ones I like best—now."

I went out and grumbled to my wife.

"Oh, dry up, Rover," said Frances. "Let her alone. She's still in the puppy love stage."

Puppy love? Oh, no. No, indeed. Whatever this jabberwocky over the telephone between small fry amounts to, it isn't puppy love.

Not real puppy love, anyway. Real puppy love isn't noisy and carefree and gossipy. Real puppy love is solidary, silent, soulful suffering—the spirit laid bare and shuddering and helpless to cure its own agony.

I remembered then my own case of puppy love in the seventh grade. I wrote not six names on a blackboard, but one in my heart.

She was a girl half a head taller than I, and I sold newspapers on the streets for days to save up enough to buy her a box of Valentine candy, and she promptly gave a piece to the tallest boy in the class.

This boy was my best friend and I sat in the row between him and her, and I had to pass back and forth the notes they wrote each other and I never read one. I have had to do some bitter chores in my life since then, but none that ever degraded me more or left me more forlorn.

Well, he grew up and died, and she grew up and married, and I grew up and moved away. And I never really told her that I loved her, and I never will.

All this happened back in 1918, and so far as I know puppy love has been going downhill ever since. They don't have men in the seventh grade anymore who can stand up to its torture.

Six names on a blackboard—Hal Child's play. But I guess it's better that way.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

SCIONS OF THE TIMES

Rockefeller and Scranton Building Labor Machines

Washington, D. C.: -- The wheel has turned.

Republican scions of legendary, wealthy families are wooing the new class -- the politically influential labor leaders.

For months now, Nelson Rockefeller and William Scranton, each in his own bailiwick, have met or have had their colleagues meet privately with local union chiefs.

So successful have been these "dialogues" that National Republican Chairman Ray Bliss has been insisting that confidential reports of those off-the-record sessions become part of every Republican "big city leaders" teach-in.

Ray Bliss' labor specialist--who appears to be doing quite well in Pennsylvania -- is the comparatively unknown "Pat" Jiuliano, deputy Secretary of Labor and Industry (for Labor) under Gov. Scranton.

There are those who will disagree with Jiuliano's politics, but who dare deny he had courage when for years he was an active Republican though an official of militant Mike Quill's Transport Workers Union. For four years Jiuliano sat on the TWU International Executive Board under "Mike's" chairmanship.

Jiuliano believes he has the formula -- and Ray Bliss agrees with him -- for cracking the Democrats' hold on the labor movement's political machinery. In synthesis, it adds up to wooing the local labor leaders, who in many areas rarely share the limelight with the national labor officials, nor have they ridden the televised campaign trains, nor sat on the much-photographed daises at the great fund-raising banquets.

During his off-the-record talk to the big city Republican leaders' conference here early in March, Jiuliano reported that there had been three friendly meetings between Pennsylvania labor leaders -- mostly from Pittsburgh and Philadelphia--and Governor Scranton, State Chairman Truax and other state GOP leaders.

The Governor attended the first such gathering with 19 union officials in the Harrisburger Hotel in Harrisburg, Pa. in February. Other Pennsylvania Republicans met with another 39 union men two weeks after that first session.

When Jiuliano reported on these meetings to Bliss' early March teach-in, he was buoyant:

"We Republicans in Pennsylvania have been making great strides in working with local labor leaders. And we will go much further. . .you can bet on that!

"There are thousands of labor union people like me. . . already registered Republican . . .or who are thinking seriously about joining our Republican Party. Many of them are right in your own backyard.

"For the past 30 years some labor leaders have been bragging that all labor union people are Democrats. Take it from me. . .that is a lot of bunk. . ."

Jiuliano told the big city leaders that the Harrisburg meetings were the first such sessions in 40 years. And there would be more right through the election campaign.

North of the border, up Albany way, Gov. Rockefeller has been building a labor "machine" of his own. His political mechanic is his old college companion and long-time labor adviser, the truly anonymous Victor Borella.

Soft-spoken Borella, a connoisseur of good cigars, wine and whimsical political stories, is so popular in some labor circles -- especially the construction trade -- he could probably get an honorary membership card and win an election in some union. There are few national labor leaders he does not know.

It is Borella who is heading up the Rockefeller labor "section." But much of the upstate traveling and door knocking will be done by Bob Gormley, who once worked closely with Pat Jiuliano as the labor team for Dwight Eisenhower.

Gormley ran the labor desk at the Republican National Committee until Senator Goldwater's people suggested he leave, since there was as much chance of getting labor leader support for Mr. Goldwater as for selling ice in the Arctic.

But Nelson Rockefeller himself is a pretty good business agent when it comes to getting labor backing now. He is a do-it-yourself man on this front these days. He meets regularly in the Rockefeller Center dining rooms with the labor people.

He calls them by their first names, corresponds faithfully with them and briefs himself intensely on the most complex industrial problems so he can sit with them during discussions of new laws, manpower problems and automation forums.

These little-reported efforts of Rockefeller and Scranton to build up cadres of labor leaders are not meant to stop at the state borders.

The Hudson and Susquehanna are great rivers, but there's something about the Potomac which still fascinates both liberal Republicans.

Washington Merry - Go - Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The FBI has leaked out word that it intends to wind up its quickie probe of Sen. Tom Dodd and his unethical conduct by this weekend -- with a whitewash.

Members of the Senate Ethics committee, after much handwringing, has confided to friends that the protective club spirit will be maintained and that they will have a report out within 30 days upholding their colleague, the democratic senator from Connecticut.

Despite these reports, we can state that the surface has only been scratched regarding the financial manipulations and lobbying of the statuesque senator from Connecticut.

This column has already reported on the money raised by Dodd's 1961 campaign dinner and traced where the money went to. That dinner was supposed to pay off a 1958 campaign debt and raise money for his 1964 campaign -- even though it was three years before he would be up for election. Instead, all of the money went into Dodd's personal account.

Here is the inside story of another dinner, on Oct. 26, 1963, called "Dodd Day," and how the proceeds from the dinner were used, among other things, to repair the senator's summer home and pay liquor bill and the vacation expenses to his family.

LYNDON CAME TO DINNER

Actually three different meals were held on 1963 Dodd day, breakfast in Hartford, luncheon in Woodridge, and dinner in Bridgeport, with the Democratic faithful, including Lyndon B. Johnson, then vice president, leading the tribute. There could have been no doubt about the purpose of Dodd day. It was to raise funds for the senator's 1964 campaign, not pay his personal expenses. Dodd made this clear in a "Dear Lyndon" letter dated August 5, 1963.

"First of all," wrote the senator, "allow me to thank you again for your generous offer to come to Connecticut to assist me in my forthcoming campaign. I wish I could convey to you how enthusiastic everyone is about your visit and how much it will assist me in getting my campaign drive underway. . Your visit means more to me than I can say, Lyndon, and I shall never forget it."

The senator neglected to tell the vice president that most of the money he helped to raise would pay Dodd's personal bills. He also neglected to report this use of political contributions on his income tax returns, though the law clearly states that campaign funds diverted to personal use are taxable.

Dodd assigned several staff members, whose salaries are paid by the taxpayers, to sell tables for the Dodd day testimonials. One senate employee, Joe Flynn, was instructed to go through all the senator's case work files and list everyone whom Dodd had helped in Washington. More than 1,000 names were sent to Ed Sullivan, another senate employee, who directed the solicitation in Connecticut.

The senator later complained to friends that Dodd day had been "no howling financial success." He collected $22,000 in Hartford, $15,000 in Bridgeport, and $10,000 in Woodridge -- total $47,000.

Most of the money was deposited in Hartford's Connecticut Bank and Trust in a special account labeled "testimonial for U.S. Senator Thomas J. Dodd."

A check for $8,000, covering the net receipts from Woodridge, was mailed directly to Dodd in Washington. Somehow the check was misplaced and became the object of an intensive search. There is no trace of what finally happened to the $8,000.

LIQUOR BILLS PAID

After Dodd day, the senator suddenly began sending all his office bills to Hartford to be paid out of the testimonial account. These were mostly personal items, including his liquor and country club bills, which came to his office for payment.

They had amounted to $14,974.28 in 1961 and $11,075.12 in 1962. In 1963, all but $742.04 were paid out of political contributions.

The bills had been allowed to accumulate until after Dodd day. Then the senator's accountant, Michael O'Hare, began mailing the bills to Ed Sullivan in Hartford to be paid out of the testimonial dinner account.

"Enclosed are some of the bills," wrote O'Hare, "which the senator would like you to pay out of the Hartford account . . . The American Airlines bill ($3,018.43) is quite a bit overdue, so that should be paid as soon as possible."

This bill included a number of personal flights by Dodd and his family. Among them was the return fare from a Miami vacation on February 13, 1963 -- $78.12 for the senator's ticket, $56.39 for Mrs. Dodd's ticket, and $32.10 for excess baggage.

The senator's son, Tom, Jr., made a number of flights that were paid out of political contributions. These included trips from Washington to Akron on April 18 ($59.43), Washington to Chicago on June 24 ($91.77) and Washington to Asheville on June 26 ($68.36).

Dodd often collected from the taxpayers for his trips, then collected again from his political campaign fund. Sometimes he actually collected triple airline fare by charging private groups that had invited him to speak.

As we previously reported, Dodd paid $8,000 out of his Dodd day collections to ghostwriter Ed Lockett to write a book for him. Yet the senator put the $1,800 advance in his own pocket. The book still hasn't been published.

The senator also began extensive repairs on his North Stonington, Conn., country home after Dodd day.

It will be interesting to see whether the Senate Ethics committee considers Dodd's personal use of campaign funds and failure to pay taxes on them to be ethical.

SEN. DODD EDITORIALS

ST. LOUIS POST DISPATCH -- "The Senate committee on standards and conduct ought to be encouraged to get to the bottom of what it has termed 'charges of misconduct' against Senator Dodd of Connecticut. . .

"What is disturbing about the case is that the Federal Bureau of Investigation and Attorney General Katzenbach apparently are questioning some of Mr. Pearson's sources to determine how they obtained the information used by Mr. Pearson in his columns.

"Since Mr. Dodd has powerful friends in the White House and federal agencies there is bound to be the ugly suspicion that someone is trying to discredit Mr. Pearson's case by showing he obtained the evidence in an irregular manner. The point here is not how Mr. Pearson obtained his information, but whether his charges stand up. That is what the Senate committee is honor bound to determine. Any other inquiry is out of order at this time."

THE LOS ANGELES TIMES--"Grave charges of misconduct in office have been levelled against Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) by columnist Drew Pearson. Some of these accusations go far beyond alleged unethical practices. They involve charges that Dodd siphoned political campaign funds into his private bank account.

"With obvious reluctance, the senate's permanent select committee on standards and conduct, established in the wake of the Bobby Baker scandals, has undertaken a probe of these accusations.

"Their problem, say Washington observers, is compounded by the fact that the committee as yet hasn't even drawn up a yardstick for measuring misconduct.

"This strikes us as a weak alibi, in the Dodd case, for not pressing vigorously ahead with their investigation. If true, Pearon's charges against the senator go beyond any borderline aspects of unethical behavior. If false, they constitute a serious breach of journalistic conduct on the part of Pearson himself.

"Newspapers throughout the country, including the times, have reported the bulk of Pearson's charges. His sharp attack against Dodd is too widely known, and too detailed, for the ethics committee to sweep the matter under the rug of a closed hearing room.

"The Bobby Baker case gives melancholy proof that the senate has no stomach for policing itself. Aside from election frauds, it has acted to censure only two senators in the last 100 years.

". . . The senate must resolve this present situation, promptly, cleanly, and without equivocation. Unless it does, a shameful shadow will fall across a great legislative institution, which no amount of pious double-talk can drive away."

THE MILWAUKEE JOURNAL -- "Between Jan. 24 and Mar. 1 columnist Drew Pearson published some 13 documented reports on alleged activities of Sen. Thomas J. Dodd (D-Conn.) and his relations with Gen. Julius Klein, lobbyist and a registered agent for West German interests.

"Surely this is a matter for serious attention and some action. Dodd himself deserves the opportunity to clear his name if the charges are untrue. The senate itself should want to know whether they are true.

"Two facts, however, indicate how little the congress likes to look into such matters. Rep. Resnick (D-N.Y.) took the house floor to discuss the charges against Dodd and was gavelled down by speaker McCormack. One does not criticize a member of the opposite house. The ethics committee did not even meet until Dodd's statement that he would show it his files. By tradition it doesn't meet unless a senator asks that it investigate him -- perhaps the major reason it meets so seldom. Yet the ethics committee is empowered to meet and act on its own and reportedly one formal request for action on Dodd was filed.

"Dodd is an important senator. His reputation and that of the senate itself require that these serious charges by fully investigated.

THE HARTFORD COURANT -- ". . . There is a larger question raised by the series of claims made against the senator: That is, the senate itself, and its unwillingness either to establish ethical standards or to enforce them.

"The Bobby Baker inquiry was a shameful whitewash, and there was a general feeling that many senators were afraid that the waters of the inquiry were lapping at their own feet. Mr. Baker has since been indicted on a series of alleged criminal acts. The consensus is that his case will not go to trial before the next election.

"Not only is the senate unwilling to establish a code of ethics, or even to inquire fully into alleged misconduct, but it has not moved to renovate the election laws.

"The Senate Ethics committee has thus far displayed more interest in how the documents on which the accusations are based fell into the hand of these two columnists. But the criticism having been made, Mr. Dodd certainly should be given the chance to put the public record in order. Summary judgment would be most unfair."

Miss Judy Deal Is Bride Of Carl Marvin Lynch

CHARLESTON -- Miss Judy Deal, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Loran Deal and Carl Marvin Lynch of Bertrand, son of Mrs. Helen Dale of Bertrand, were married at her parents' home, 1204 Charleston Ave., Thursday at 8 p.m. The brides father married the young couple using the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a two piece navy blue linen suit with matching accessories and a corsage of white mums with blue ribbon. Miss Gail Hurley of Bertrand served as maid of honor. She wore a white lace dress and a corsage of white mums. Max Bannister of Bertrand served as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held for the friends and relatives that attended the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white lace tablecloth and centered with the wedding cake. Light blue candles were used in decorating the table. Coffee and punch were poured by Mrs. Paul Graham and her daughter, Carla, served the cake.

The bride is a senior at Charleston high school where she will continue until her graduation in May. The groom is employed as a construction worker for Parker and McTigue in East Prairie. They are making their home at 1105 S. Main St.

Girl Scout Leaders Meet

The Junior, Cadette and Senior Girl Scout Neighborhood leaders met Wednesday morning, April 6, at the home of Mrs. Loomis Mayfield, Jr., with Mrs. Joe Dye, neighborhood chairman, presiding.

Appreciation was expressed to the troops for their cooperation during Girl Scout Week and for participation in the Safety Daisy Campaign. It was decided that this campaign was worthwhile and that it should be continued in some form next year. The cookie sale was determined to have been highly successful in securing funds for the winterized camping quarters at Latonka.

Parents consent forms to be used for any Scout trip were distributed as was information on Day Camps and troop bridging schedules.

The group discussed troop arrangements for the coming year and ceremonies for this spring, which will include fly-up from Brownie to Junior; rededication, Junior to Cadette and capping, Cadette to Senior.

A reminder for application for camperships was given and regulations for registration were repeated. For Camp Latonka, they are to be made through May 10. A partial fee must accompany the registration with the balance due June 1 in the Girl Scout Office.

Day camp registration begun April 1 and will continue through May 15. Registration for the Cotton Boll Roundup was to be completed by Monday, April 11.

For new members who prefer summer basic training sessions to those regularly held in the fall, a tentative program has been set up. Those interested should contact Mrs. Dye.

Troop No. 13 reported a successful hamburger day and Troop No. 141 a successful bake sale. This money will be used toward their Promise in Action projects.

Announcement was made of a Memorial Fund set up by the Cotton Boll Council to which contributions can be made toward the operating expenses of Camp Latonka.

Mrs. Parker Is Honored With Shower

Housewives Can Bring Home Bacon Again

NEW YORK (AP) -- Housewives can start bringing home the bacon again.

Meat prices are leveling off at many of the nation's food stores.

Bacon climbed to $1.19 a pound in some areas in January, but now has dropped 10 to 30 per cent.

Hams are down 2 to 4 cents a pound this week in San Francisco, and beef ribs are down 3 to 4 cents in Southern California.

Choice grade steer beef chucks, trimmed loins and cured hams are headed lower in the Pacific Northwest.

A major New York area supermarket chain has dropped fryer prices 16 cents a pound to the lowest levels since December.

Wholesale food prices, which were 15 per cent higher than a year ago during the winter, now are running 10.3 per cent higher.

Fresh strawberries are beginning to move to market, and warm weather has pushed the asparagus crop along rapidly in California.

Artichokes, green beans, cabbage, corn and lettuce also are plentiful in most areas.

In canned foods, stocks of peas, okra, mixed vegetables, succotash, peas and carrots, snap beans, chili sauce, apples, applesauce, apricot, grapegruit segments, grapefruit juice, orange juice and blended juices are greater than last year.

Mrs. Galemore Is President of Study Club

CHARLESTON -- The 20th Century Study Club held its regular monthly meeting at the County Library Monday. A panel discussion was held by the members on the problems of mental health. Those participating were the president, Mrs. Press Berry, Jr.; Mrs. Ronnie Knight, Mrs. Ralph Carr, Jr., Mrs. Larry Hine and Mrs. Albert Goodin IV. One of the most interesting facts brought up during the discussion was that there are more mentally ill than there are persons with cancer, heart disease and the other major illnesses combined.

The following slate of officers were presented to the members and approved for the 1966-67 year: Mrs. Jerry Galemore, president; Mrs. Chuck Jordan, vice president; Mrs. Andy French, Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Bud Jones, recording secretary; and Mrs. Paul Hill, corresponding secretary.

Plans were made for the banquet, which is to be the last meeting of the year, to be held at the Charcoal House in Sikeston, on May 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Harrison Is Hostess to Class Meeting

The Kings Daughter Class of the First Baptist church met at 2 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Gerda Harrison with 10 members present.

Mrs. E. T. Freeman, president, was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Jim Nickell led the opening prayer.

Mrs. Waid Moore gave the devotion from Psalms 23. Mrs. Moore read a poem, "Don't Find Fault." Mrs. Thomas Mathis gave the secretary's report and Mrs. Moore gave the treasurer's report.

The group captains reported and all were approved.

Old and new business was discussed by members. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Mathis.

The hostess served refreshments and the class enjoyed a fellowship hour.

O fill me with Thy fullness, Lord,
Until my very heart o'erflow
In kindling thought and glowing word,
Thy love to tell, Thy praise to show.

O use me, Lord, use even me,
Just as Thou wilt, and when, and where;
Until Thy blessed face I see,
Thy rest, Thy joy, Thy glory share.

THE NEWS in Brief

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Marshall and daughters, Ann and Florence, of Ste. Genevieve, spent the Easter holidays visiting with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred A. Kaullen, and his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ben F. Marshall, Jr., of Blodgett. They also visited other relatives and friends.

Arriving today to visit with their mother, Mrs. Henrietta Beal, of this city, is Major and Mrs. Arnold R. Collins of Kemah, Texas. They stopped off here on their way back from several weeks at Engineering School in Indianapolis, Indiana. Major Collins is retired from the Air Force. Mrs. Beal plans on returning to Kemah, with them for an indefinite time.

Home this past weekend to spend some time with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Osby Brewer, and his sister, Mrs. James Brewer, was Private William Higdon from Sikeston, who is stationed now in Aberdeen, Maryland.

Mrs. Clare Brown and daughter, Sharon, and Mrs. Ruth Summers, all of Sikeston, just returned from a three day trip to St. Louis, Mo.

This past week, Mrs. Bonnie Jackson, and her children, Sheila, and Preston Arnold, from Rockford, Illinois, visited at the home of her mother, Mrs. Pearl Buchanan at 511 Hart Street. Mrs. Buchanan went for a short trip to see her son in Blytheville, Arkansas, Mr. and Mrs. Joe Buchanan, of that city.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bryant of this city, have as guests in their home for the next several days, her sister, Mr. and Mrs. Wayne Lynn from Odessa, Texas. They brought with them, Mrs. Jesse Prayer, their mother who will be staying.

Home for Easter vacation was Miss Judy Grimes who's attending Southwestern University at Springfield, Missouri. Miss Grimes stayed at the home of her mother, Mrs. Lou Grimes, 137 Fifth Street.

Mr. and Mrs. Dale Burke and their children, Debbie and Randy, spent several days this past week at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. William R. Burke who reside at 627 Taylor Street.

Visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Frank Burnett and their five children, and with Mr. and Mrs. Paul Ruff, both of this city, are two of Mr. Burnett's brothers. Here for the weekend were Mr. and Mrs. Leaford Burnett and their two children from Colonial, Illinois, and here for this week, leaving tomorrow, are Mr. and Mrs. Ray Burnett and their four children from Silvis, Illinois. They are staying with Mr. and Mrs. James B. Burnett at their residence at 331 Gladys Street.

Leaving yesterday after a week's Spring Vacation spent at the home of her parents, is Miss Bonnie Bush, a sophomore at Cape College, at Cape Girardeau. Miss Bush's parents are Mr. and Mrs. S. T. Bush who resides at 207 Powers.

Recently returned from a four month vacation spent touring the southern part of California, is Mrs. Fred Butler of this city. Mrs. Butler spent part of her time with her daughter Mrs. James Taylor of Riverside, California, and also, part of her time she was a guest of her grandson, Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Lesieur and their three children. She plans on returning to California sometime this summer.

Mrs. H. H. Harper had her grandson and family, Sgt. and Mrs. Jack Harper and son Gilbert, as guests from Wednesday to Friday of last week. Sgt. Harper is a former resident. He has just returned from a tour of duty in South Viet Nam. The family was enroute to Fort Bragg, N.C.

Sikeston Chapter No. 137, Order of the Eastern Star, met March 10 in the Masonic Temple at 7:30 p.m. with Mrs. Floyd Reed, worthy matron, presiding.

After the opening of the chapter, the flag of the United States was presented by the associate patron, C. E. Sadler, and the pledge of allegiance was repeated under the leadership of the worthy patron, August Butler. All present joined in singing "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The chapter had out-of-town visitors from Morley, Charleston, Advance, Lilbourn and New Madrid.

The worthy matron and worthy patron welcomed the visitors.

The next order of business was the initiation of Mrs. Bernice D. DuSablon and Mrs. Dessie Allen into the order.

The committees gave reports of their work. The report of sickness was given.

The charter was draped in memory of Sister Lisa Davis who served the chapter as worthy matron in 1937 and Brother I. G. Lewis who served the chapter as worthy patron in 1935, 1940, 1941 and 1942 and was a faithful member as long as his health would permit.

The worthy matron expressed words of sympathy for their passing.

The worthy matron thanked her secret pal or pals for the gift of a cup and saucer of her china and for the corsage from her flower friend. She also thanked her protems for the evening.

She invited all to the dining room for refreshments. The tables were decorated in green and white in carrying out the St. Patrick's Day theme. The hosts and hostesses were Chairman Mrs. Emma Butler, August Butler, Mrs. Ila Underhill, Mrs. Naomi Davis, Mrs. Vivian Harris, Mrs. Byrdine Mills, Joe Mills and Mrs. Myrtle Carrington.

"Make out my income tax return

My spouse blighely says to me
And leaves me with that rubble!

About "Page 2" instructions.

The dividends and interest rates
Leave me quite befuddled
With credits and adjustments
I'm really getting muddled.

Now I've reached the computation
I'm so very much annoyed,
I almost wish . . . I really wish. . . .

Mrs. Carl Marvin Lynch

Miss Judy Deal Is Bride Of Carl Marvin Lynch

CHARLESTON -- Miss Judy Deal, daughter of the Rev. and Mrs. Loran Deal and Carl Marvin Lynch of Bertrand, son of Mrs. Helen Dale of Bertrand, were married at her parents' home, 1204 Charleston Ave., Thursday at 8 p.m. The brides father married the young couple using the double ring ceremony.

The bride wore a two piece navy blue linen suit with matching accessories and a corsage of white mums with blue ribbon. Miss Gail Hurley of Bertrand served as maid of honor. She wore a white lace dress and a corsage of white mums. Max Bannister of Bertrand served as best man.

After the ceremony a reception was held for the friends and relatives that attended the ceremony. The bride's table was covered with a white lace tablecloth and centered with the wedding cake. Light blue candles were used in decorating the table. Coffee and punch were poured by Mrs. Paul Graham and her daughter, Carla, served the cake.

The bride is a senior at Charleston high school where she will continue until her graduation in May. The groom is employed as a construction worker for Parker and McTigue in East Prairie. They are making their home at 1105 S. Main St.

Girl Scout Leaders Meet

The Junior, Cadette and Senior Girl Scout Neighborhood leaders met Wednesday morning, April 6, at the home of Mrs. Loomis Mayfield, Jr., with Mrs. Joe Dye, neighborhood chairman, presiding.

Appreciation was expressed to the troops for their cooperation during Girl Scout Week and for participation in the Safety Daisy Campaign. It was decided that this campaign was worthwhile and that it should be continued in some form next year. The cookie sale was determined to have been highly successful in securing funds for the winterized camping quarters at Latonka.

Parents consent forms to be used for any Scout trip were distributed as was information on Day Camps and troop bridging schedules.

The group discussed troop arrangements for the coming year and ceremonies for this spring, which will include fly-up from Brownie to Junior; rededication, Junior to Cadette and capping, Cadette to Senior.

A reminder for application for camperships was given and regulations for registration were repeated. For Camp Latonka, they are to be made through May 10. A partial fee must accompany the registration with the balance due June 1 in the Girl Scout Office.

Day camp registration begun April 1 and will continue through May 15. Registration for the Cotton Boll Roundup was to be completed by Monday, April 11.

For new members who prefer summer basic training sessions to those regularly held in the fall, a tentative program has been set up. Those interested should contact Mrs. Dye.

Troop No. 13 reported a successful hamburger day and Troop No. 141 a successful bake sale. This money will be used toward their Promise in Action projects.

Announcement was made of a Memorial Fund set up by the Cotton Boll Council to which contributions can be made toward the operating expenses of Camp Latonka.

Housewives Can Bring Home Bacon Again

NEW YORK (AP) -- Housewives can start bringing home the bacon again.

Meat prices are leveling off at many of the nation's food stores.

Bacon climbed to $1.19 a pound in some areas in January, but now has dropped 10 to 30 per cent.

Hams are down 2 to 4 cents a pound this week in San Francisco, and beef ribs are down 3 to 4 cents in Southern California.

Choice grade steer beef chucks, trimmed loins and cured hams are headed lower in the Pacific Northwest.

A major New York area supermarket chain has dropped fryer prices 16 cents a pound to the lowest levels since December.

Wholesale food prices, which were 15 per cent higher than a year ago during the winter, now are running 10.3 per cent higher.

Fresh strawberries are beginning to move to market, and warm weather has pushed the asparagus crop along rapidly in California.

Artichokes, green beans, cabbage, corn and lettuce also are plentiful in most areas.

In canned foods, stocks of peas, okra, mixed vegetables, succotash, peas and carrots, snap beans, chili sauce, apples, applesauce, apricot, grapefruit segments, grapefruit juice, orange juice and blended juices are greater than last year.

Mrs. Galemore Is President of Study Club

CHARLESTON -- The 20th Century Study Club held its regular monthly meeting at the County Library Monday. A panel discussion was held by the members on the problems of mental health. Those participating were the president, Mrs. Press Berry, Jr.; Mrs. Ronnie Knight, Mrs. Ralph Carr, Jr., Mrs. Larry Hine and Mrs. Albert Goodin IV. One of the most interesting facts brought up during the discussion was that there are more mentally ill than there are persons with cancer, heart disease and the other major illnesses combined.

The following slate of officers were presented to the members and approved for the 1966-67 year: Mrs. Jerry Galemore, president; Mrs. Chuck Jordan, vice president; Mrs. Andy French, Jr., treasurer; Mrs. Bud Jones, recording secretary; and Mrs. Paul Hill, corresponding secretary.

Plans were made for the banquet, which is to be the last meeting of the year, to be held at the Charcoal House in Sikeston, on May 9 at 7:30 p.m.

Mrs. Harrison Is Hostess to Class Meeting

The Kings Daughter Class of the First Baptist church met at 2 p.m. Monday at the home of Mrs. Gerda Harrison with 10 members present.

Mrs. E. T. Freeman, president, was in charge of the meeting. Mrs. Jim Nickell led the opening prayer.

Mrs. Waid Moore gave the devotion from Psalms 23. Mrs. Moore read a poem, "Don't Find Fault." Mrs. Thomas Mathis gave the secretary's report and Mrs. Moore gave the treasurer's report.

The group captains reported and all were approved.

Old and new business was discussed by members. The meeting was dismissed with prayer by Mrs. Mathis.

The hostess served refreshments and the class enjoyed a fellowship hour.

O fill me with Thy fullness, Lord,
Until my very heart o'erflow
In kindling thought and glowing word,
Thy love to tell, Thy praise to show.

O use me, Lord, use even me,
Just as Thou wilt, and when, and where;
Until Thy blessed face I see,
Thy rest, Thy joy, Thy glory share.

Braves Ordered Back to Milwaukee

By KEN HARTNETT
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The National League faced the threat today of a forced uprooting from its potentially rich new territory in Atlanta unless it bowed to a Wisconsin court order and restored baseball to Milwaukee.

The ruling by Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller Wednesday night struck at the protective coating that has shielded baseball from antitrust laws since 1922 and left the young 1966 season under long legal shadows.

Roller, 64, found the Atlanta Braves and the National League in violation of Wisconsin antitrust law for pulling the Braves out of Milwaukee while refusing to grant the city a replacement team.

The judge said the Braves must return to Milwaukee, their home from 1953 through 1965, if the league fails to submit by noon May 16 a 1967 expansion plan that would include Milwaukee.

Baseball's reaction to the ruling, which climaxed a 38-day trial, was cautious.

A spokesman for Commissioner William Eckert issued a statement saying baseball intended t o file an immediate appeal to the Wisconsin Supreme Court.

Later, Eckert telephoned The Associated Press and asked that the statement be withdrawn.

"I have no comment now," Eckert said. "I will take it under advisement."

Walter O'Malley, president of the Los Angeles Dodgers, said, "It seems to be utterly impossible to comply with the court's decision, but we'll be guided by the attorneys who have represented us in the litigation."

Wisconsin officials were delighted by Roller's decision, which gave the state precisely what it had sought.

Not only did Roller order the Braves' return in the absence of expansion agreement, but he assessed the National League and its 10 members fines of $5,000 each.

The judge also ruled that the state is entitled to "costs and disbursments." State costs in the case could run into hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Atty. Gen. Bronson La Follette hailed the decision and said Wisconsin "will have the benefit of a major league franchise operating in full compliance with the laws of this state."

La Follette did not say how this would be done, nor did Willard S. Stafford, chief counsel for the state in the case.

But Wisconsin is expected to seek contempt citations against the defendants should baseball ignore the May 16th deadline.

Contempt machinery would allow Wisconsin to seek support of states with National League teams in enforcing Roller's order.

Should even one of eight such states agree to comply, the National League schedule could be in shambles.

"The next move is up to baseball," said Stafford, who stalked the courthouse corridors through a nerve-wracking day of waiting Wednesday. "If they can live with it, so can we," he said.

Roller, who worked 37 consecutive hours to put the final judgement in shape, said the delay in completing the 176-page document Wednesday was significant.

The judge would not elaborate on what he meant by significant but said settlement offers had been received both "before and during" the trial which ended April 6.

"All I can say is that there was discussion but no consummation," Roller said.

The judge said no baseball officials had contacted him recently to discuss a possible solution to the legal tangle.

Hawks Blast Lakers 131-127 Even Series

ST. LOUIS (AP) — If there were any disappointed St. Louis Hawks after Wednesday night's rousing 131-127 victory over the Los Angeles Lakers, it probably was Bill Bridges. He kept moaning about the rebound shortage.

"I can't believe I got only 11," he said.

But the way the Western Division playoffs of the National Basketball Association heated up the reason was clear. Almost everything that went up, went in.

To prolong the best-of-seven series to a seventh game, the Hawks had to overcome the Lakers' 50.5 per cent shooting from the field with 52.5 per cent of their own. "There weren't many baskets given away," said Hawks' Coach Richie Guerin, who hit eight of 16 himself, "although you wouldn't think so from the score."

Laker Coach Fred Schaus agreed.

"I was disgusted after we lost Sunday," he said, "but I thought we played well in this game. We made the Hawks take the shots we wanted them to take, but they hit them. They're not usually an outcourt shooting team."

"I told my boys at the quarter and again at the half that the Lakers are shooting the heck out of the basket, but couldn't keep that up," Guerin said. His club managed a 36-36 first quarter tie and a 69-68 halftime lead, although the Lakers shot better than 60 per cent and the Hawks "only" 56 per cent.

The torrid pace continued in the third period with the Hawks still ahead by one, but Guerin proved a prophet in the final period. The Lakers cooled off enough for the Hawks to go on a 17-2 spree behind Zelmo Beaty and Joe Caldwell that gave them a 126-114 lead. The Lakers couldn't catch up in spite of Jerry West's efforts.

Bridges himself hit 13 of 22 shots for 29 points, only outdone by West's 14 of 25 for 38 markers.

Koufax Hit for Five Hits And Five Runs in 7-6 Loss

By MURRAY CHASS
Associated Press Sports Writer

Sandy Koufax must have had stage fright.

What else could account for his fumbling performance in his first start of the 1966 baseball season?

Koufax, who ended his 32-day holdout and his movie career at the same time two weeks ago, was battered from the mound in the fourth inning Wednesday night in Houston's 7-6 victory over Los Angeles.

The brilliant left-hander glittered in the first inning, but there was nothing award-winning about his performance after that. He gave up five runs on five hits and two walks and was around long enough only to pitch to one batter in the fourth inning.

Although Koufax encountered such games last season — however rare — he never made an error. He did against the Astros, though, and that's what led him off the stage.

After Sonny Jackson beat out an infield single with one out in the third inning, Jim Wynn grounded to the mound. Koufax fumbled the ball for an error, and the Astros had two runners on.

Dave Nicholson struck out for what would have been the third out, but Bob Aspromonte singled for one run and Joe Morgan clouted a homer for three more.

Koufax finally retired the side only to have John Bateman lead off the next inning with a triple and retire Koufax.

The Dodger ace, who last year won his first start plus 25 more, thus departed with a fielding average of .000, a mere 1,000 points below his showing in 1965 when he accepted 46 chances flawlessly.

The Dodgers will settle for a little more flawless pitching.

In other National League games, Pittsburgh whipped Atlanta 6-0, and San Francisco defeated Chicago 4-0. Rain washed out New York at Cincinnati for the third straight day.

After Morgan's homer gave the Astros a 5-3 lead, John Roseboro tied it with a two-run homer. The Astros finally won it in the ninth when Chuck Harrison signled, was sacrificed to second and raced home as Rusty Staub singled.

Vernon Law and Bob Bolin each pitched four-hitters and didn't walk anyone in the Pirates' and Giants' victories.

Law stopped Atlanta while Willie Stargell and Donn Clendenon each hit two-run homers. Stargell added two other hits and drove in another run.

Bolin allowed the Cubs to get more than one man on base only once. The Giants, meanwhile, put the game away with three runs in the third inning, two on Tito Fuentes' single that got through left fielder George Altman's legs.

John Herrnstein's pinch-hit, run-scoring single in the 12th inning carried Philadelphia past St. Louis. Rich Allen singled with two out and stole second before Herrnstein signled. Allen also figured in the Phillies' other two runs with a single and a double.

PITTSBURG, Kan. AP - Roy Oldperson of Haskell Institute set a meet record of 4:20.2 in the mile and won the two-mile in 9:41.3 Tuesday as his school finished third in the junior college division of the Pittsburg State Relays.

Competition in the high school division will be held Friday.

Pittsburg State's freshmen won Tuesday with 71 1/2 points. Hutchinson Junior College finished second with 66 points, followed by Haskell 26, Arkanses City 20, Parsons 19, Coffeyville 18, Joplin 17, Fort Scott 16, Chanute 6, Miami, Okla., 4 and Ozark Bible 3.

MILWAUKEE AP - A Milwaukee judge who missed his opening day deadline for a verdict in Wisconsin's antitrust battle against the Braves and baseball struggled again today to complete the decision and set 9 a.m. for the announcement.

There was no assurance, however, that this timetable would be met either as the courtroom crew pressed past midnight, still trying to put the finishing touches on a document that ran an estimated 200 pages.

Wisconsin has asked Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller to order the Braves returned to Milwaukee unless the city is given an expansion team. The Braves opened in Atlanta Tuesday night with a 3-2 loss in 14 innings to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Atlanta Braves' drew an opening day high of 50,671 for their Dixie debut Tuesday, pushing major league baseball's opening day attendance to a total of 272,844.

The attendance figured to be higher but was held down by rain that forced the postponement of two National League openers, New York at Cincinnati and Philadelphia at St. Louis.

With the Braves showing the way, three National League openers attracted 126,151. Both the Cleveland at Washington and Detroit at New York openers drew more than 40,000, giving the American League a total of 146,693 for five games.

WEST POINT, N.Y. AP - Bobby Dobbs, 43-year-old head football coach at Texas Western College, may decide today whether to become the new Army coach or remain in his present post at the El Paso Tex. school.

The only thing definite, however, is that Dobbs came here Tuesday to confer with Col. Raymond P. Murphy, director of athletics at Army.

"I talked with him Tuesday and will talk with him again today," said Col. Murphy who first conferred with Dobbs in El Paso Saturday after Army had received permission from Texas Western officials to negotiate with him.

Col. Murphy admitted that Dobbs is a leading candidate to succeed Paul Dietzel who resigned as Army coach last week to become coach and athletic director at South Carolina.

Cards Lose In Twelfth 3-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The name of the game is frustration for the St. Louis Cardinals and the Kansas City Athletics.

The Cardinals tied the Philadelphia Phillies 2-2 in the eighth inning Wednesday night when speedy Lou Brock singled, stole second and sprinted home on a sharp single from Curt Flood. Then, the Cardinals hung around until the 12th inning when a pinch hitter named John Herrnstein singled Rich Allen home and Philadelphia won 3-2.

Things were just as bad for the A's who were playing the American League champion twins at Minneapolis - St. Paul. Kansas City relief pitcher Paul Lindblad, a rookie, had stopped the muscled twins for four innings and the aJs were tied 3-3. Zoilo Versalles and Sandy Valdespino led off the eighth with two straight singles. Tony Oliva then stepped to the plate and taught the rookie his manners by ripping the ball into the right centerfield bullpin to give the Twins a 5-3 victory.

Maybe Redbird manager Red Schoendienst had a point when he objected before the game to playing night baseball in the first week of the baseball season.

"By April 18th or so, they could play night games," Schoendienst said. "But, they should forget about them the first week."

The excuse wouldn't work for Kansas City though. They played in the daytime.

Valdespino's two-run homer in the first for Minnesota was erased when Kansas City scored two unearned runs in the fourth. The Athletics got their other run in the third.

Larry Jaster, 3-0 last year, faces Jim Bunning, 19-9 as Jaster tries to put the Cardinals on the winning side of the ledger for the first time tonight at St. Louis.

Fred Talbot, 10-12, will start for Kansas City against the Twins' Jim Kaat, 18-11, at Minnesota today.

Oran to Host Sub-State Baseball Tourney

ORAN -- Oran high school will host the State Sub-District baseball tournament starting Monday, April 18th.

Oran and Bell City will get things started at 1 p.m. in what should prove to be a very good ball game, as each team is well matched for the game, with Bell City having good pitching, and Oran good hitting behind All-State Basketball guard Don Metz.

Sikeston's mighty Bulldogs meet Bloomfield following the Oran-Bell City clash. The Bulldogs will be in top shape for this tournament and have a very good chance of taking first place honors.

Tuesday's schedule will pit Richland against Scott County Central in a 1 p.m. game and Advance and Matthews will round out first round play at 3:30 p.m.

The winners of Mondays games will advance to Semi-Finals Wednesday and play at 1 p.m. and the winners of the Tuesday's games will meet in the second game of the semi-finals at 3:30.

In the event of inclement weather the games will be moved forward one day.

Clay May Meet Cooper Next Month in London

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) -- Negotiations are in progress for Cassius Clay to defend his heavyweight title against British champion Henry Cooper next month in London.

The likely date for the fight is May 21, said Gordon B. Davidson, an attorney for Clay's Louisville sponsoring group.

Davidson said Wednesday arrangements for the bout might be completed within 10 days.

"Assuming that we can get a contract --and permission from the draft board-- it seems likely that Clay will fight at least one more time before he goes into the Army," Davidson said.

Clay, who has appealed his 1-A draft classification, is expected to be called to active duty in late May if the appeal is rejected, Davidson said.

Athletics Fall To Twins 5-3

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore is doing the Robinson Rock, a swinging new step that could make a lot of American League pitchers look like monkeys before this season is over.

It's really a simple step. First Frank Robinson works over an opposing pitcher. If the hurler still shows any signs of fight, Brooks Robinson steps in and finishes the job.

The Robinson boys continued their steady tattoo against the Boston Red Sox Wednesday as the Orioles completed a two-game sweep 8-1. In the only other American League game played, Minnesota used an eighth inning home run by Tony Oliva to get past Kansas City 5-3.

Rain and cold weather postponed Cleveland's game at Washington and Detroit's date at New York.

The Robinsons practiced their thunder and lightning routine on Dave Morehead after the Red Sox starter had struck out the first two batters he faced. Then Frank pounded his second homer of the season and Brooks followed with his No. 2.

That was enough for Jim Palmer, who limited the Red Sox to five hits and walloped a two-run homer of his own in the second. Paul Blair ripped a bases-loaded double for three more runs in the eighth.

The homers brought the Robinsons' two-day haul in Fenway Park to a combined 7-for-18 including four homers and six runs batted in.

Minnesota was trailing Kansas City 3-2 with Athletics' rookie Paul Lindblad working on four shutout innings of relief in the eighth when the Twins rallied.

With two out, Zoilo Versalles singled and moved up on Sandy Valdespino's hit. Then Oliva walloped his first homer into the bullpen in right center field, 420 feet away.

Valdespino had connected with a mate aboard for Minnesota's first two runs in the first inning.

Kansas City had taken advantage of some shoddy Minnesota fielding for two runs against starter Camilo Pascual in the fourth. Ken Harrelson singled and came all the way around on Ed Charles' hit when Harmon Killebrew let a throw from the outfield skip past him. Charles then stole third and scored when Earl Battey's throw went into left field.

Wife Seeks To Have Clay Held In Contempt

MIAMI (AP) -- Cassius Clay's divorced wife, Sonji, petitioned Wednesday to have the boxer held in contempt for failing to post a $25,000 bond to guarantee alimony payments.

Counsel for Mrs. Clay said the divorce decree signed in January stipulated the posting of the bond. Circuit Court Judge Harold Spaet set April 26 for hearing on the contempt request.

Clay escaped being jailed last week when he paid up back alimony. By the terms of the divorce, he is to pay Sonji $1250 a month for 121 months.

Mays One Shy of Magic 1000 Extra-Base Club

CINCINNATI AP -- The home run Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants hit Tuesday against the Chicago Cubs was the 999th extra-base hit of his career.

National League statisticians said it moved Mays into eleventh place in the all-time major-league list for extra-base hits. He figures soon to move into the ninth spot ahead of Honus Wagner, who had 1004, and Rogers Hornsby, who had 1011.

By the season's end he also could be ahead of Mel Ott, who had 1071.

Mays also needs only two more runs scored to have a career record of 1500.

Why did Colonel Taylor make his Bourbon in a castle?

In 1887, Col. Edmund H. Taylor, Jr., set out to find a special kind of water to make Bourbon with: limestone spring water.

This water has an incredibly tantalizing flavor that it acquires naturally by bubbling up through the limestone ground-rock.

He found a spring near Frankfort, Kentucky. The water here ran forth so pure, so plentiful that he knew he would never want to make Bourbon anywhere else.

So, next to his spring, he built his distillery. And since he was there to stay, he built it to last. Built it in the form of a castle made of the same limestone that was to give his water its intriguing flavor.

Does the Colonel's castle make a better Bourbon?

Braves Ordered Back to Milwaukee

By KEN HARTNETT
Associated Press Writer

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP) — The National League faced the threat today of a forced uprooting from its potentially rich new territory in Atlanta unless it bowed to a Wisconsin court order and restored baseball to Milwaukee.

The ruling by Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller Wednesday night struck at the protective coating that has shielded baseball from antitrust laws since 1922 and left the young 1966 season under long legal shadows.

Roller, 64, found the Atlanta Braves and the National League in violation of Wisconsin antitrust law for pulling the Braves out of Milwaukee while refusing to grant the city a replacement team.

The judge said the Braves must return to Milwaukee, their home from 1953 through 1965, if the league fails to submit by noon May 16 a 1967 expansion plan that would include Milwaukee.

Baseball's reaction to the ruling, which climaxed a 38-day trial, was cautious.

A spokesman for Commissioner William Eckert issued a statement saying baseball intended t o file an immediate appeal to the Wisconsin Supreme Court.

Later, Eckert telephoned The Associated Press and asked that the statement be withdrawn.

"I have no comment now," Eckert said. "I will take it under advisement."

Walter O'Malley, president of the Los Angeles Dodgers, said, "It seems to be utterly impossible to comply with the court's decision, but we'll be guided by the attorneys who have represented us in the litigation."

Wisconsin officials were delighted by Roller's decision, which gave the state precisely what it had sought.

Wisconsin has asked Circuit Judge Elmer W. Roller to order the Braves returned to Milwaukee unless the city is given an expansion team. The Braves opened in Atlanta Tuesday night with a 3-2 loss in 14 innings to the Pittsburgh Pirates.

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The Atlanta Braves' drew an opening day high of 50,671 for their Dixie debut Tuesday, pushing major league baseball's opening day attendance to a total of 272,844.

The attendance figured to be higher but was held down by rain that forced the postponement of two National League openers, New York at Cincinnati and Philadelphia at St. Louis.

With the Braves showing the way, three National League openers attracted 126,151. Both the Cleveland at Washington and Detroit at New York openers drew more than 40,000, giving the American League a total of 146,693 for five games.

WEST POINT, N.Y. AP - Bobby Dobbs, 43-year-old head football coach at Texas Western College, may decide today whether to become the new Army coach or remain in his present post at the El Paso Tex. school.

The only thing definite, however, is that Dobbs came here Tuesday to confer with Col. Raymond P. Murphy, director of athletics at Army.

"I talked with him Tuesday and will talk with him again today," said Col. Murphy who first conferred with Dobbs in El Paso Saturday after Army had received permission from Texas Western officials to negotiate with him.

Col. Murphy admitted that Dobbs is a leading candidate to succeed Paul Dietzel who resigned as Army coach last week to become coach and athletic director at South Carolina.

Cards Lose In Twelfth 3-2

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

The name of the game is frustration for the St. Louis Cardinals and the Kansas City Athletics.

The Cardinals tied the Philadelphia Phillies 2-2 in the eighth inning Wednesday night when speedy Lou Brock singled, stole second and sprinted home on a sharp single from Curt Flood. Then, the Cardinals hung around until the 12th inning when a pinch hitter named John Herrnstein singled Rich Allen home and Philadelphia won 3-2.

Things were just as bad for the A's who were playing the American League champion twins at Minneapolis - St. Paul. Kansas City relief pitcher Paul Lindblad, a rookie, had stopped the muscled twins for four innings and the aJs were tied 3-3. Zoilo Versalles and Sandy Valdespino led off the eighth with two straight singles. Tony Oliva then stepped to the plate and taught the rookie his manners by ripping the ball into the right centerfield bullpin to give the Twins a 5-3 victory.

Maybe Redbird manager Red Schoendienst had a point when he objected before the game to playing night baseball in the first week of the baseball season.

"By April 18th or so, they could play night games," Schoendienst said. "But, they should forget about them the first week."

The excuse wouldn't work for Kansas City though. They played in the daytime.

Valdespino's two-run homer in the first for Minnesota was erased when Kansas City scored two unearned runs in the fourth. The Athletics got their other run in the third.

Larry Jaster, 3-0 last year, faces Jim Bunning, 19-9 as Jaster tries to put the Cardinals on the winning side of the ledger for the first time tonight at St. Louis.

Fred Talbot, 10-12, will start for Kansas City against the Twins' Jim Kaat, 18-11, at Minnesota today.

Athletics Fall To Twins 5-3

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

Baltimore is doing the Robinson Rock, a swinging new step that could make a lot of American League pitchers look like monkeys before this season is over.

It's really a simple step. First Frank Robinson works over an opposing pitcher. If the hurler still shows any signs of fight, Brooks Robinson steps in and finishes the job.

The Robinson boys continued their steady tattoo against the Boston Red Sox Wednesday as the Orioles completed a two-game sweep 8-1. In the only other American League game played, Minnesota used an eighth inning home run by Tony Oliva to get past Kansas City 5-3.

Rain and cold weather postponed Cleveland's game at Washington and Detroit's date at New York.

The Robinsons practiced their thunder and lightning routine on Dave Morehead after the Red Sox starter had struck out the first two batters he faced. Then Frank pounded his second homer of the season and Brooks followed with his No. 2.

That was enough for Jim Palmer, who limited the Red Sox to five hits and walloped a two-run homer of his own in the second. Paul Blair ripped a bases-loaded double for three more runs in the eighth.

The homers brought the Robinsons' two-day haul in Fenway Park to a combined 7-for-18 including four homers and six runs batted in.

Minnesota was trailing Kansas City 3-2 with Athletics' rookie Paul Lindblad working on four shutout innings of relief in the eighth when the Twins rallied.

With two out, Zoilo Versalles singled and moved up on Sandy Valdespino's hit. Then Oliva walloped his first homer into the bullpen in right center field, 420 feet away.

Valdespino had connected with a mate aboard for Minnesota's first two runs in the first inning.

Kansas City had taken advantage of some shoddy Minnesota fielding for two runs against starter Camilo Pascual in the fourth. Ken Harrelson singled and came all the way around on Ed Charles' hit when Harmon Killebrew let a throw from the outfield skip past him. Charles then stole third and scored when Earl Battey's throw went into left field.

PITCHING -- Vernon Law, Pittsburgh, pitched a four-hitter and didn't walk anyone as the Pirates defeated Atlanta 6-0.

BATTING -- Tony Oliva, Minnesota, hit a three-run homer in the eighth inning that gave the Twins a 5-3 victory over Kansas City.

Wife Seeks To Have Clay Held In Contempt

MIAMI (AP) -- Cassius Clay's divorced wife, Sonji, petitioned Wednesday to have the boxer held in contempt for failing to post a $25,000 bond to guarantee alimony payments.

Counsel for Mrs. Clay said the divorce decree signed in January stipulated the posting of the bond. Circuit Court Judge Harold Spaet set April 26 for hearing on the contempt request.

Clay escaped being jailed last week when he paid up back alimony. By the terms of the divorce, he is to pay Sonji $1250 a month for 121 months.

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- When pitcher John O'Donoghue of the Kansas City A's was traded recently to the Cleveland Indians, he rejoined an old college teammate.

Pitcher Sonny Siebert of the Indians and O'Donoghue played together on Mizzou's 1958 team that was beaten in the College World Series finals by Southern California. Siebert at that time was a first-baseman for the Tigers.

Oran to Host Sub-State Baseball Tourney

ORAN -- Oran high school will host the State Sub-District baseball tournament starting Monday, April 18th.

Oran and Bell City will get things started at 1 p.m. in what should prove to be a very good ball game, as each team is well matched for the game, with Bell City having good pitching, and Oran good hitting behind All-State Basketball guard Don Metz.

Sikeston's mighty Bulldogs meet Bloomfield following the Oran-Bell City clash. The Bulldogs will be in top shape for this tournament and have a very good chance of taking first place honors.

Tuesday's schedule will pit Richland against Scott County Central in a 1 p.m. game and Advance and Matthews will round out first round play at 3:30 p.m.

The winners of Mondays games will advance to Semi-Finals Wednesday and play at 1 p.m. and the winners of the Tuesday's games will meet in the second game of the semi-finals at 3:30.

In the event of inclement weather the games will be moved forward one day.

Clay May Meet Cooper Next Month in London

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) -- Negotiations are in progress for Cassius Clay to defend his heavyweight title against British champion Henry Cooper next month in London.

The likely date for the fight is May 21, said Gordon B. Davidson, an attorney for Clay's Louisville sponsoring group.

Davidson said Wednesday arrangements for the bout might be completed within 10 days.

"Assuming that we can get a contract --and permission from the draft board-- it seems likely that Clay will fight at least one more time before he goes into the Army," Davidson said.

Clay, who has appealed his 1-A draft classification, is expected to be called to active duty in late May if the appeal is rejected, Davidson said.

Mays One Shy of Magic 1000 Extra-Base Club

CINCINNATI AP -- The home run Willie Mays of the San Francisco Giants hit Tuesday against the Chicago Cubs was the 999th extra-base hit of his career.

National League statisticians said it moved Mays into eleventh place in the all-time major-league list for extra-base hits. He figures soon to move into the ninth spot ahead of Honus Wagner, who had 1004, and Rogers Hornsby, who had 1011.

By the season's end he also could be ahead of Mel Ott, who had 1071.

Mays also needs only two more runs scored to have a career record of 1500.

Why did Colonel Taylor make his Bourbon in a castle?

In 1887, Col. Edmund H. Taylor, Jr., set out to find a special kind of water to make Bourbon with: limestone spring water.

This water has an incredibly tantalizing flavor that it acquires naturally by bubbling up through the limestone ground-rock.

He found a spring near Frankfort, Kentucky. The water here ran forth so pure, so plentiful that he knew he would never want to make Bourbon anywhere else.

So, next to his spring, he built his distillery. And since he was there to stay, he built it to last. Built it in the form of a castle made of the same limestone that was to give his water its intriguing flavor.

Does the Colonel's castle make a better Bourbon?

Buy a bottle of Old Taylor... and taste for yourself.

COMMON -- BUT UNCOMMON --FISHING

Bass, brim and trout get all the angling headlines, but there are a lot of lesser known species that attract a loyal following among members of the angling fraternity.

Take the common sucker, for instance.

Here's a lowly breed of fish that is frequently disdained as fertilizer in some circles. Yet, during his spring spawning runs, you may have trouble finding elbow room around many streams. Why? Because smoked sucker is a delicacy that rivals expensive salmon.

If you're partial towards big fish, then rig up a heavy salt-water outfit with a treble hook that appears more suitable for grappling than fishing, and go after the huge spoonbills that are migrating in many areas right now.

Hook one of these 50 or 60-pound brutes, and you'll not only appreciate a healthy application of liniment that night, but you'll also be able to feed the whole neighborhood.

If fast action appeals, and you're in the right part of the country at the time, try fly-rodding for ciscoes. Ordinarily, a commercial species that gets little notice in sportsfishing annals, ciscoes move inshore for the May fly season on the Great Lakes. During a hatch, you'll be kept so busy catching these small "lake herring" torpedos you'll forget they're not considered sporting.

Keep your ears tuned to reports on the "off-beat" species, and broaden your angling horizons.

At the very least, you'll discover new sport and acquire new tastes in the process.

Fishing boats now travel thousands of miles at sea because they are equipped to process and freeze the catch without returning to the home base.

Charles Pardon To Be Richland High Coach

Charles Pardon, present coach at Scott County Central high school has accepted the head coaching job at Richland high school for the coming year, it was announced today.

Pardon had a very successful year at Scott Central this past season as he coached his basketball team to second place in the state regional tournament and led his track team to second place in the state class S indoor track meet.

Pardon will replace Bob Cradic who has resigned to take over the head coaching job at Salem high school.

Football Cards To Meet Chicago In Final Pre-Season Game

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- The Football Cardinals will round out their pre-season schedule when they oppose the Chicago Bears in the annual Armed Forces Classic on Friday, September 2,

Game time is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Soldier Field in Chicago.

The Big Red won three previous Armed Forces clashes, defeating the Bears 17-14 in 1963 and edging the Chicagoans 7-3 in 1964. They whipped the Bears 25-3 in last year's contest.

In other pre-season competition, the Cardinals will host the Atlanta Falcons on Saturday night, August 6, in the annual Glennon Hospital benefit game. They will also face the Lions at Detroit on Thursday night, August 11; the Colts in the St. Louis Symphony benefit game on Friday evening, August 19, and the Rams at Los Angeles on Saturday night, August 27.

Malden Leaders To Conference

MALDEN -- Members of the Malden Chamber of Commerce will attend the Eighth Annual Missouri Industrial Development Conference in Jefferson City on April 20 and 21.

Those planning to attend the clinic are Veryl L. Riddle, chairman of the Chamber's industrial committee; Dr. Fred G. Davis, member of the industrial committee; Joe Brasher, president of the Chamber; and Ronnie Borders, president of the Jaycees and member of the Chamber's board of directors.

Landowners to Beautify I-55

JACKSON -- Six landowners along Highway I-55 in Cape County have signed agreements with the Cape County ASC office to participate in a highway beautification program here.

Norman Weiss, ASC office manager, said the program is a special project under the Agricultural Conservation Program and at this time is very limited. Cape County is one of three in southeast Missouri participating in the program, he said.

Weiss said the ASC County Committee met with landowners along the interstate highway last week to explain provisions of the project and so far six have signed their intent to participate.

The program provides funds up to 80 per cent of cost for brush eradication, but not clearing, and for pasture seeding. Landowners must maintain the improvement for five years.

Weiss said only landowners adjacent to Highway I-55 are eligible under the special project. He added that he expects the principal benefit will be to small plots of ground isolated by the interstate from the rest of a farm, which because of their small size would not be economical to keep up by the landowners alone.

Pre-School Roundup Set

PORTAGEVILLE -- The pre-school roundup for the North Pemiscot school district will be held according to the following schedule:

April 21, Concord, 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.

April 21, Hayward, 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

April 26, Wardell Elem. 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.

April 26, Hodgen, 1:00 to 2:30 p.m.

April 29, Ross Central 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.

If a child will have reached the age of six (6) on or before Sept. 30, 1966, he should be brought in for the roundup.

The Pemiscot County Health Department will have a staff present to test children's vision, hearing, and to take their height and weight.

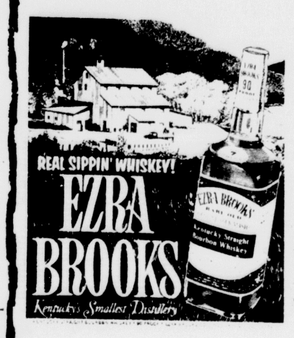

A child's birth certificate and immunization record must be brought.

Charles Pardon To Be Richland High Coach

Charles Pardon, present coach at Scott County Central high school has accepted the head coaching job at Richland high school for the coming year, it was announced today.

Pardon had a very successful year at Scott Central this past season as he coached his basketball team to second place in the state regional tournament and led his track team to second place in the state class S indoor track meet.

Pardon will replace Bob Cradic who has resigned to take over the head coaching job at Salem high school.

Football Cards To Meet Chicago In Final Pre-Season Game

ST. LOUIS, Mo. -- The Football Cardinals will round out their pre-season schedule when they oppose the Chicago Bears in the annual Armed Forces Classic on Friday, September 2,

Game time is scheduled for 8 p.m. at Soldier Field in Chicago.

The Big Red won three previous Armed Forces clashes, defeating the Bears 17-14 in 1963 and edging the Chicagoans 7-3 in 1964. They whipped the Bears 25-3 in last year's contest.

In other pre-season competition, the Cardinals will host the Atlanta Falcons on Saturday night, August 6, in the annual Glennon Hospital benefit game. They will also face the Lions at Detroit on Thursday night, August 11; the Colts in the St. Louis Symphony benefit game on Friday evening, August 19, and the Rams at Los Angeles on Saturday night, August 27.

Malden Leaders To Conference

MALDEN -- Members of the Malden Chamber of Commerce will attend the Eighth Annual Missouri Industrial Development Conference in Jefferson City on April 20 and 21.

Those planning to attend the clinic are Veryl L. Riddle, chairman of the Chamber's industrial committee; Dr. Fred G. Davis, member of the industrial committee; Joe Brasher, president of the Chamber; and Ronnie Borders, president of the Jaycees and member of the Chamber's board of directors.

Landowners to Beautify I-55

JACKSON -- Six landowners along Highway I-55 in Cape County have signed agreements with the Cape County ASC office to participate in a highway beautification program here.

Norman Weiss, ASC office manager, said the program is a special project under the Agricultural Conservation Program and at this time is very limited. Cape County is one of three in southeast Missouri participating in the program, he said.

Weiss said the ASC County Committee met with landowners along the interstate highway last week to explain provisions of the project and so far six have signed their intent to participate.

The program provides funds up to 80 per cent of cost for brush eradication, but not clearing, and for pasture seeding. Landowners must maintain the improvement for five years.

Weiss said only landowners adjacent to Highway I-55 are eligible under the special project. He added that he expects the principal benefit will be to small plots of ground isolated by the interstate from the rest of a farm, which because of their small size would not be economical to keep up by the landowners alone.

Pre-School Roundup Set

PORTAGEVILLE -- The pre-school roundup for the North Pemiscot school district will be held according to the following schedule:

April 21, Concord, 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.

April 21, Hayward, 1:00 to 3:00 p.m.

April 26, Wardell Elem. 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.

April 26, Hodgen, 1:00 to 2:30 p.m.

April 29, Ross Central 9:00 to 11:00 a.m.

If a child will have reached the age of six (6) on or before Sept. 30, 1966, he should be brought in for the roundup.

The Pemiscot County Health Department will have a staff present to test children's vision, hearing, and to take their height and weight.

A child's birth certificate and immunization record must be brought.

Florida is the Everglade State.

One million acres of farmlands in the Imperial Valley, Calif., have been irrigated to increase the efficiency of crop production.

SPORTS IN BRIEF

MINNEAPOLIS AP -- Ed (Baker Boy) Hurley won an eight-round decision over Ron Marsh in a bloody clash of Minneapolis heavyweights Tuesday night. Murley weighed 181 and Marsh 188.

JEFFERSON CITY, Mo. AP--Wayne Seymour, 34, has been hired as head basketball coach for Jefferson City High School succeeding Jim Gibbs, who resigned recently.

Seymour has coached at Tonganoxie, Kan., the past seven years, compiling a 111-52 record.

Dwight Turner, To Coach at Greenville

GREENVILLE--Dwight Turner, former All-State basketball player from Clarkton high school will accept head coaching duties this fall after graduation from SEMO State college.

When I Was A Boy

B.F. "Pappy" Blanton

As compiled by Ralph Gregory, Curator of the Mark Twain Shrine, Florida, from the writings of the founder of the Appeal, B. F. "Pappy" Blanton, in 1919-20. A contemporary of Mark Twain, "Pappy" Blanton wrote of the times and customs that were so dear to Twain, and about which Twain wrote so many interesting and humorous anecdotes.

(Verbatim copy, with some questions and guesses as to missing words)

August 27, 1920

When I was a boy there was no such thing as a prolonged drought such as we have just had in northeast Missouri. If there was I have no recollection of it. The land in cultivation was new and very fertile and when a farmer planted his seed he had no doubt of reaping a bountiful harvest. It is true and farming was done on a much smaller scale than it is at present, but the yield was greater per acre.

I am of the opinion that there has been as much improvement in farming since I was a boy as there has been in arts and science or mechanical engineering, and there is a wonderful difference in the farmer of ful difference in the farmer of today and the tiller of the soil of 70 years ago. Then the farmer did not know very much of what was going on in the world but now the farmer is well informed on all questions of the day and as well read and as well posted as his city brother, and as a general thing is a much more far seeing and better man than most men in the large cities.

When I was a boy whiskey could be bought for 25 cents a gallon anywhere and by the barrel it could be bought for 18 cents a gallon. Most of the stores in country sold whiskey as they had no license to pay and their customers all liked a dram when in town. That one dram cost only 5 cents and often nothing. There were two distilleries in our neighborhood but for all that there was very little drunkenness. We knew of one old soak who often got drunk and raised the devil at home, and caused his wife to shed a bushel of tears, but she broke him finally. He came home one time so drunk that he just fell on the floor and went to sleep. His wife tied him head and foot to a great tall bedpost and kept him there until he got sober. In the meantime she had all the neighbors to come in and when he sobered up and saw the house full of people he swore he would never drink again - and he kept his word.

When I was a boy about all the diseases we had were chills and fever, stone bruises and colic. Then no one had ever heard of adernolds, tonsils, appendicitis, neuritis or any of the diseases that are now so fashionable with the doctors and the hospitals all over the country. If baby got ill the good old ladies gave it some catnip tea and maybe a drop or two of paragoric. These remedies generally got good results. Children in those days were not only lousy but wormy. There were none in the country that were exempt. They all had e'm. The great remedy for worms was Fahnestock's Vermifrize, the vilest stuff that ever children had rammed down their throats. But it got results. Gosh, I can almost taste that stuff now! It was awful and if any of my readers ever took any of it they know that I am telling the truth.

When I was a boy it was a rare thing to find a farmer who took a newspaper. The only paper that I can remember seeing when I was ten years old was the old St. Louis Republican, a great nine column paper and a strong Democratic paper. It was taken by my grandfather McCrary, who hated the Whigs worse than the devil hates holy water. You see, away back there two political parties were the Whig and Democrat and feeling ran high during campaign. Now look at the farmers. They take hundreds of daily papers in every county in the state and thousands of county papers. He is well posted and not the greenhorn he was when I was a boy. And the time is coming when the farmer will be looked up to more than men in other callings. He is the coming man.

THE SUPREME COURT OF THE UNITED STATES

Several of the Court members, although ardent foes of racial discrimination, began to reflect growing misgivings in the 1964 term about the methods used by militant "civil rights" workers. Mr. Justice Black reiterated his opposition to "sit ins" expressed the previous year in Bell v. Maryland. Long as adamantly in favor of freedom of speech and as against racial discrimination as any member of the Court, he was not prepared to concede that the end justifies any means used to obtain it. He wrote:

"I do not understand from what the Court says that it interprets those provisions of the Civil Rights Act which give a right to be served without discrimination in an establishment which the Act covers as also authorizing persons who are unlawfully refused service a "right" to take the law into their own hands by sitting down and occupying the premises for as long as they choose to stay."

Mr. Justice White's impatience with the asserted right of anyone to break the law to put across his particular point of view was even more evident. He said:

"Finally, had Congress intended to ratify massive disobedience to the law, so often attended by violence, I feel sure it would have said so in unmistakable language. The truth is that it is only judical rhetoric to blame this result on Congress . . . Whether persons or groups should engage in nonviolent disobedience to laws with which they disagree perhaps defies any categorical answer for the guidance of every individual in every circumstance. But whether a court should give it wholesale sanction is a wholly different question which calls for only one answer."

In spite of the paucity of Congressional authorization and the dangers inherent in allowing uninhibited "sit-in" demonstrations, five members of the Court demonstrated that racial nondiscrimination was such a summa bona as to blot out all other considerations, and to warrant stretching the law as well. If ever there were total commitment, the Court demonstrated it on this issue.

The Court also was not above stretching the facts, in race relations cases, where necessary to save some overzealous demonstrator from the penalty for his own excesses, as shown by two companion cases where the Court freed a picket line leader whom the Louisiana courts had convicted of disturbing the peace, obstructing public passages, and picketing a courthouse while a court was in session. The defendant in this case, a minister named Cox, was the leader of 2,000 angry demonstrators who converged on the Baton Rouge courthouse to protest the arrest of several of their members the previous day. Mr. Cox's army filled an entire sidewalk for a block, and refused to move when their leader had finished speaking at the request of the police to clear the sidewalk.

Hope Not So Funny

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope is such a fine generous man and associated with such good causes that it almost seems ungrateful to be less than enchanted with any of his television programs.

But the truth is that sometimes — and Wednesday night was one of them — the "Bob Hope Comedy Specials" on NBC are not terribly amusing and seem to have been tossed together as casually as a salad.

The program Wednesday night was taped for broadcast four weeks ago but that was the night when the TV networks devoted the entire evening to covering the Gemini 8 splashdown and the recovery of the astronauts.

Hope's opening monologue, usually the brightest part of the show, is so current and topical that the original one was discarded and a new one substituted.

Favorite subject of Hope sketches over the years seems to be a burlesque of a current movie or television show. Wednesday night there was a comedy sequence based on a movie, "The Magnificent Seven" and called "The Putrid Six." This involved a lot of slapstick gun play between Hope, playing a Mexican bandit, and Lee Marvin as a bounty hunter. This may have been mighty funny to those who have seen the movie but it was pretty well lost on those of us who had not.

"I Spy," NBC's jaunty secret agent series, has been renewed for another season, which it certainly deserves for it is one of the seasons better entertainment efforts. It concerned itself with brainwashing and hypnosis Wednesday night, and the opening portion of the show contained a long and most unpleasant sequence in which good agent Robert Culp was tortured and beaten by a bad enemy scientist. For the rest of the show he staggered around like a drugged man trying to kill his fellow agent, Bill Cosby.

Despite the sophisticated dialogue and the slick production of the show, the big climax came in a very familiar television setting — the deserted warehouse.

Several of the Court members, although ardent foes of racial discrimination, began to reflect growing misgivings in the 1964 term about the methods used by militant "civil rights" workers. Mr. Justice Black reiterated his opposition to "sit ins" expressed the previous year in Bell v. Maryland. Long as adamantly in favor of freedom of speech and as against racial discrimination as any member of the Court, he was not prepared to concede that the end justifies any means used to obtain it. He wrote:

"I do not understand from what the Court says that it interprets those provisions of the Civil Rights Act which give a right to be served without discrimination in an establishment which the Act covers as also authorizing persons who are unlawfully refused service a "right" to take the law into their own hands by sitting down and occupying the premises for as long as they choose to stay."

Mr. Justice White's impatience with the asserted right of anyone to break the law to put across his particular point of view was even more evident. He said;

"Finally, had Congress intended to ratify massive disobedience to the law, so often attended by violence, I feel sure it would have said so in unmistakable language. The truth is that it is only judical rhetoric to blame this result on Congress . . . Whether persons or groups should engage in nonviolent disobedience to laws with which they disagree perhaps defies any categorical answer for the guidance of every individual in every circumstance. But whether a court should give it wholesale sanction is a wholly different question which calls for only one answer."

In spite of the paucity of Congressional authorization and the dangers inherent in allowing uninhibited "sit-in" demonstrations, five members of the Court demonstrated that racial nondiscrimination was such a summa bona as to blot out all other considerations, and to warrant stretching the law as well. If ever there were total commitment, the Court demonstrated it on this issue.

The Court also was not above stretching the facts, in race relations cases, where necessary to save some overzealous demonstrator from the penalty for his own excesses, as shown by two companion cases where the Court freed a picket line leader whom the Louisiana courts had convicted of disturbing the peace, obstructing public passages, and picketing a courthouse while a court was in session. The defendant in this case, a minister named Cox, was the leader of 2,000 angry demonstrators who converged on the Baton Rouge courthouse to protest the arrest of several of their members the previous day. Mr. Cox's army filled an entire sidewalk for a block, and refused to move when their leader had finished speaking at the request of the police to clear the sidewalk.

HAM BAKE

RONCO recipe of the month

1 10 oz. pkg. frozen broccoli
4 oz. Ronco Elbow Macaroni
1 10 oz. can cream of mushroom soup
1 6 oz. can evaporated milk
½ cup grated American cheese
2 cups diced cooked ham
3 tbsp. melted butter or margarine
½ cup fine bread crumbs

Cook broccoli according to package directions until barely tender. Cook macaroni according to directions on package. Combine mushroom soup, milk, cheese, ham and macaroni. Spoon half of mixture into 2½ qt. casserole. Arrange broccoli over layer, reserving one stalk. Cover with remaining macaroni mixture. Combine butter or margarine and crumbs. Border edge with crumbs. Bake in 350° oven 30 minutes. Garnish top with broccoli. Serves 4.

Hope Not So Funny

By CYNTHIA LOWRY

NEW YORK (AP) — Bob Hope is such a fine generous man and associated with such good causes that it almost seems ungrateful to be less than enchanted with any of his television programs.

But the truth is that sometimes — and Wednesday night was one of them — the "Bob Hope Comedy Specials" on NBC are not terribly amusing and seem to have been tossed together as casually as a salad.

The program Wednesday night was taped for broadcast four weeks ago but that was the night when the TV networks devoted the entire evening to covering the Gemini 8 splashdown and the recovery of the astronauts.

Hope's opening monologue, usually the brightest part of the show, is so current and topical that the original one was discarded and a new one substituted.

Favorite subject of Hope sketches over the years seems to be a burlesque of a current movie or television show. Wednesday night there was a comedy sequence based on a movie, "The Magnificent Seven" and called "The Putrid Six." This involved a lot of slapstick gun play between Hope, playing a Mexican bandit, and Lee Marvin as a bounty hunter. This may have been mighty funny to those who have seen the movie but it was pretty well lost on those of us who had not.

"I Spy," NBC's jaunty secret agent series, has been renewed for another season, which it certainly deserves for it is one of the seasons better entertainment efforts. It concerned itself with brainwashing and hypnosis Wednesday night, and the opening portion of the show contained a long and most unpleasant sequence in which good agent Robert Culp was tortured and beaten by a bad enemy scientist. For the rest of the show he staggered around like a drugged man trying to kill his fellow agent, Bill Cosby.

Despite the sophisticated dialogue and the slick production of the show, the big climax came in a very familiar television setting — the deserted warehouse.

Plural Wives Lead To Plural Problems

LOBAMBA, Swaziland AP -- This British protectorate adjoining South Africa is getting its independence in 1969, and its tribal monarch, King Sobhuza, faces a king-size problem.

Which one of his uncountable tribal wives gets the title of Swaziland's First Lady?

Down at the mud-hutted royal kraal-village-of Lobamba a lot of wifely bickering is going on. Some of the king's elder spouses maintain that tribal seniority gives them first choice for the coveted title. But few of the wives can agree on who is the senior.

King Sobhuza, like most African chiefs, has been practicing the age-old tribal custom of polygamy for nearly 40 years. That adds up to a lot of wives.

And, according to tribal law, the senior wife doesn't necessarily have to be the oldest.

During the years of traditional tribal rule it hasn't seemed to matter much which wife was singled out for priority rating. But as Swaziland moves into independence, with social functions coming up that will require the presence of a woman at the king's side, choice of a First Lady assumes importance.

In Swazi tribal life polygamy is a status symbol. The more wives a Swazi can boast the higher his social standing.

Sobhuza at 67 ranks about tops on the political and social ladder. Swaziland's 270,000 tribespeople refer to him as the "ngwenyama" -- Lion.

"He has scores of wives and hundreds of children," ventured one royal courtier. "The king certainly doesn't remember many of their names -- who would with a family of that size?"

The final choice of First Lady will probably be left to the elderly queen mother and the country's top political advisers.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: Three months ago my husband brought a trampy-looking girl to the house, introduced her as the woman he wanted to marry and asked for a divorce. I managed to keep my composure although I thought I would die right then and there. I agreed to a divorce and they left.

The next day my husband came for his clothes, kissed the children goodbye and said I'd be hearing from his lawyer. I received no call.

In a week my husband was back -- furious. He said I had let him down. He was shocked that I agreed to the divorce. He insists he gave me all sorts of signals to say "No" in front of the girl. Now he is begging to come home. He promises never to fail me again.

The children love their dad and need him, but I can't get over the hurt and humiliation. If he could do such a terrible thing once, why couldn't he do it again? I need your counsel. --NOT RECOVERED

Dear Not: Your husband sounds like a four-door, brass-plated heel, but give another chance.

And let this be a lesson to you, students. Men, like children, don't want everything they ask for.

Dear Ann Landers: I'm a high school junior who thinks there must be something drastically wrong with me. I am so envious of everyone I can hardly stand it. Although I get good grades and have won many honors I still get green when something good happens to my friends.

Yesterday my best friend won an essay contest. I couldn't have won it because I didn't even enter but when I heard she had won I was awfully unhappy. Naturally, I put on a false face and told her I was thrilled.

Why can't I be gracious and really rejoice when other people get honors?--HATE MYSELF

Dear Friend: Maybe you hate yourself, but I like you -- because you are honest.

Each of us is our own first choice for everything good that happens. This is normal but it's not realistic -- because life doesn't work that way. Nobody can win everything all the time.

It will help you feel less guilty if you tone down the compliments when you are congratulating others. Be pleasant but don't go into ecstasy about how "thrilled" you are.

Dear Ann Landers: I have seen several letters in your column over the years from people who want to know how to get rid of pesty relatives. It is amazing that this problem is so widespread because it means the gutty folks are taking over and the meek and the mild are trapped simply because they ARE meek and mild.

Why don't you tell people who are imposed on to use the Irvin S. Cobb approach? He said, "The best way to get rid of spongers is to say, 'You are getting on my nerves. Please get the hell out of here.' "

You'll probably be amused by this letter, but I'll bet you won't print it. -- DR. W. G. R.

Dear Doc: I'm not amused and I hope you didn't bet your stethoscope.

Mr. Cobb's approach is one I recommend only if you want to get rid of the visitors permanently.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents. . .if you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

The Prayer
For Today From The Upper Room

Thursday, April 14, 1966

Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life. (John 4:14)

PRAYER: Our Father, we praise Thee for giving us Thy Son, our Lord. We thank Thee that Thou dost offer us eternal life. Help us to accept Thy gift and thereby drink of the water which satisfied the soul. In His name. Amen.

Yesterday my best friend won an essay contest. I couldn't have won it because I didn't even enter but when I heard she had won I was awfully unhappy. Naturally, I put on a false face and told her I was thrilled.

Why can't I be gracious and really rejoice when other people get honors?--HATE MYSELF

Dear Friend: Maybe you hate yourself, but I like you -- because you are honest.

Each of us is our own first choice for everything good that happens. This is normal but it's not realistic -- because life doesn't work that way. Nobody can win everything all the time.

It will help you feel less guilty if you tone down the compliments when you are congratulating others. Be pleasant but don't go into ecstasy about how "thrilled" you are.

Dear Ann Landers: I have seen several letters in your column over the years from people who want to know how to get rid of pesty relatives. It is amazing that this problem is so widespread because it means the gutty folks are taking over and the meek and the mild are trapped simply because they ARE meek and mild.

Why don't you tell people who are imposed on to use the Irvin S. Cobb approach? He said, "The best way to get rid of spongers is to say, 'You are getting on my nerves. Please get the hell out of here.' "

You'll probably be amused by this letter, but I'll bet you won't print it. -- DR. W. G. R.

Dear Doc: I'm not amused and I hope you didn't bet your stethoscope.

Mr. Cobb's approach is one I recommend only if you want to get rid of the visitors permanently.

If you have trouble getting along with your parents. . .If you can't get them to let you live your own life, send for Ann Landers' booklet, "Bugged By Parents? How To Get More Freedom." Send 50¢ in coin with your request and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

LETTERS to the EDITOR

To the Editor:
Dear Sir

I prefer to advertise in the Standard because I feel more people read the Standard than any other paper in this vicinity. Need I say more?

Mrs. M. H. Davis
404 Hunter St.
Sikeston, Mo.

To the Editor:

Do you remember those wonderful days of a "do - nothing" Congress? Or even a President who spent most of his time in a golf course instead of dreaming up more fantastic give-away bills to satisfy his "Fairy Godfather" complex?

Since it seems impossible to become rich, we've decided to quit work. Then we'll get some of the government handouts. We know someone has to pay, but we're tired of being on the paying end.

The Prayer
For Today From The Upper Room

Thursday, April 14, 1966

Whosoever drinketh of the water that I shall give him shall never thirst; but the water that I shall give him shall be in him a well of water springing up into everlasting life. (John 4:14)

PRAYER: Our Father, we praise Thee for giving us Thy Son, our Lord. We thank Thee that Thou dost offer us eternal life. Help us to accept Thy gift and thereby drink of the water which satisfied the soul. In His name. Amen.

Know Your Newspaper Better

News from Every Community . . .

. . . that's what you get every day in the Daily Standard. . . . . Our correspondents send in a news letter every week, telling you in detail what's going on in the section where they live. Some of the news may at times seem trivial . . .

But Isn't It Interesting?

. . . of course it is. What our friends and neighbors do is always interesting. Who gets married, who is born, who dies, who goes where . . . who made the school honor roll—don't you like to know? Sure you do . . . good people make the best news!

Our Paper Brings You That Information

. . . day after day . . . reliably reported by correspondents who are your neighbors . . . who are best fitted to report the news of you and your activities . . . they "cover" you for this newspaper from birth to death . . . correctly, sensitively. That's the way we like it—and we think you like it that way, too.

W. T. Jones sold his cattle to a man in North Missouri last week, about half of them for $7.60 per hundred and the balance for $8. This shows that the Sikeston district is making pretty good cattle to get such prices at home.

G. S. Ball and family and C. H. Ball family left Monday for Gideon to make their home.

40 Years Ago
April 14, 1926

Bill Baker, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. C. Baker, was most pleasantly surprised by 26 of his friends, last Monday night, the occasion being that of his 16th birthday.

Roy V. Ellise, superintendent of Sikeston schools, will deliver an address to the graduating class at Eminence, Mo., on May 14.

Building in Sikeston. The Gerhardt Construction Co., of Cape Girardeau was on the grounds Tuesday morning to start excavating preparatory to the erection of the large store buildings and oil station on the Matthews Estate property on the corner of Malone avenue and Kingshighway.

Marion Duncan is building a home on the corner of Daniel and Scott streets. John Husher also has a home on Daniel, almost ready to move into. Loomis Mayfield has purchased the Joe Parker home on Center street and after some remodeling will move into his future home. W. E. Derris and Orlando Arthur are to build homes in the near future.

Israel in the Fashion Swim

by Helen Hennessy
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

TEL AVIV—(NEA)—It is difficult to think of this land of sun, citrus groves, blue sea and desert in terms of silk, mohair, Dacron, Acrilan and handsome fashions.

But the recent second annual Israel Fashion Week held here in Tel Aviv proved that the land of milk and honey is fast emerging as an important export fashion center. Nearly 400 buyers from 14 nations attended the event, led by a delegation of 75 from leading American stores.

The fashions ran the gamut —formals and furs, rainwear, knitwear, leather and beachwear — all beautifully cut, sewn and designed. There is news in Israeli fashions, but it can't be covered in one fell swoop.

Beachwear seems a good place to start. It's so natural a product to originate in this country where the Mediterranean sparkles and the sun shines.

There are all kinds of clever wrap-ups, multipiece beach suits and bikinis. But the best looking beachwear I've seen in a long time is the handiwork of Lea Goldberg, a woman who came to Israel 16 years ago and today, with her husband, is co-owner and designer for the Gottex firm, fast becoming a name to be reckoned with in swimwear.

Israel boasts beautiful beaches and a sunny clime and so it is no surprise that this country also produces handsome swimwear. From the firm of Gottex in Tel Aviv come the black cotton lace one-piece suit (left) over pale shantung and gaily printed Helanca knit bikini (right) with scoop-necked, sleeved top.

Her color range and combinations of fabrics are almost as varied as her designs. Smocking, pleats, ruffles and crocheted touches add eye-catching appeal to even the simplest suits. And speaking of eye-appeal the cut and fit of her bikinis make others I've seen look like school uniforms.

There were exciting sarong skirts and pants and halter teams as well in gay, colorful cotton prints.

As an aside, so you'll know what is being worn across the Atlantic this season in the sun, Mrs. Goldberg reports that pink and turquoise are color favorites for swimwear in Europe. The United States favors white.

There is much more to report about other types of fashion hailing from Israel. But with summer approaching it seemed best to begin at the beach.

Buddhist Story Not Disclosed

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the full story behind the Buddhists' maneuvering in South Viet Nam comes out it may prove to be one of the slickest pieces of Machiavellianism in our time.

The Buddhists are trying to overthrow their government. The U.S. government doesn't seem well-informed on what's going on among the Buddhists and what's driving them or, if it is, it's keeping the information to itself.

For that reason no one seems able to say whether the Buddhist leaders are in a deal with the North Vietnamese Communists to seize the South Vietnamese government, ask the Americans to leave, and let the Reds take over.

It might appear at first, if this is what the Buddhists have in mind, that they are operating on sheer gall since this country is backing the government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and has enormous forces in Viet Nam.

But they might be banking on something else to help them carry the day: divided American opinion.

When the history of these days is written the effect of what has happened here in the field of one of America's most prized possessions--freedom of speech — may appear as a strong factor in the Buddhists' thinking.

President Johnson's policy on Viet Nam has been under attack from many quarters in this country — particularly in the Senate and the academic world — and perhaps he can't gauge its full effect on him.

For instance: Would he have pursued the war harder, been less reluctant to bomb North Viet Nam more extensively if the critics weren't on his back? But any effect on Johnson is only part of the total possible effect of the criticism.

For example: What has been the effect of Americans' criticism of their own government on the thinking of the North Vietnamese Communists about continuing to fight?

Or on the South Vietnamese Buddhists about their chances of overturning their American-backed government and getting away with it?

Johnson apparently has felt confident, despite the criticism, that he had the support of a majority of Americans for his Viet Nam policy.

But the criticism here at home could leave no doubt in the minds of the Vietnamese, North and South, that American thinking was divided not only about how to wage the war but even about continuing it at all.

For instance, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said the American people are going to "repudiate this administration and they should. You just can't justify our being in war over there."

He called the U.S. position in Viet Nam "shockingly immoral" and said that if the South Vietnamese were ever to choose freely a Communist government, the United States should support it.

If you were a Vietnamese and heard that — and much more — you wouldn't be under any illusion the Americans were 100 per cent behind Johnson in trying to crush the Communists or at least force them to seek peace.

And if you were a Vietnamese, American division might seem to you a symbol of uncertainty and hesitation and therefore an inducement to action which otherwise might have seemed hopeless to you.

The hydroelectric potential of Africa exceeds that of any other continent, even if estimates of future developments are taken reservedly. One estimate puts the potential water power at 190 million horse power, that is three times the estimated potential of Europe. Another estimate credits Africa with 2 5ths of the world's potential or four times that of North America; one-quarter of this is stated to be in the Congo basin alone. As yet, only 0.1 per cent is used.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of concrete curb and gutters on each side of Helen Street from Kingshighway to Main Street in accordance with plans & specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: SECTION 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. SECTION 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. SECTION 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $1.75 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. SECTION 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. SECTION 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. SECTION 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 6th day of April, 1966. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk. 169 inc 175

Israel in the Fashion Swim

by Helen Hennessy
Women's Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

TEL AVIV—(NEA)—It is difficult to think of this land of sun, citrus groves, blue sea and desert in terms of silk, mohair, Dacron, Acrilan and handsome fashions.

But the recent second annual Israel Fashion Week held here in Tel Aviv proved that the land of milk and honey is fast emerging as an important export fashion center. Nearly 400 buyers from 14 nations attended the event, led by a delegation of 75 from leading American stores.

The fashions ran the gamut —formals and furs, rainwear, knitwear, leather and beachwear — all beautifully cut, sewn and designed. There is news in Israeli fashions, but it can't be covered in one fell swoop.

Beachwear seems a good place to start. It's so natural a product to originate in this country where the Mediterranean sparkles and the sun shines.

There are all kinds of clever wrap-ups, multipiece beach suits and bikinis. But the best looking beachwear I've seen in a long time is the handiwork of Lea Goldberg, a woman who came to Israel 16 years ago and today, with her husband, is co-owner and designer for the Gottex firm, fast becoming a name to be reckoned with in swimwear.

Israel boasts beautiful beaches and a sunny clime and so it is no surprise that this country also produces handsome swimwear. From the firm of Gottex in Tel Aviv come the black cotton lace one-piece suit (left) over pale shantung and gaily printed Helanca knit bikini (right) with scoop-necked, sleeved top.

Her color range and combinations of fabrics are almost as varied as her designs. Smocking, pleats, ruffles and crocheted touches add eye-catching appeal to even the simplest suits. And speaking of eye-appeal the cut and fit of her bikinis make others I've seen look like school uniforms.

There were exciting sarong skirts and pants and halter teams as well in gay, colorful cotton prints.

As an aside, so you'll know what is being worn across the Atlantic this season in the sun, Mrs. Goldberg reports that pink and turquoise are color favorites for swimwear in Europe. The United States favors white.

There is much more to report about other types of fashion hailing from Israel. But with summer approaching it seemed best to begin at the beach.

Buddhist Story Not Disclosed

By JAMES MARLOW
AP News Analyst

WASHINGTON (AP) — When the full story behind the Buddhists' maneuvering in South Viet Nam comes out it may prove to be one of the slickest pieces of Machiavellianism in our time.

The Buddhists are trying to overthrow their government. The U.S. government doesn't seem well-informed on what's going on among the Buddhists and what's driving them or, if it is, it's keeping the information to itself.

For that reason no one seems able to say whether the Buddhist leaders are in a deal with the North Vietnamese Communists to seize the South Vietnamese government, ask the Americans to leave, and let the Reds take over.

It might appear at first, if this is what the Buddhists have in mind, that they are operating on sheer gall since this country is backing the government of Premier Nguyen Cao Ky and has enormous forces in Viet Nam.

But they might be banking on something else to help them carry the day: divided American opinion.

When the history of these days is written the effect of what has happened here in the field of one of America's most prized possessions--freedom of speech — may appear as a strong factor in the Buddhists' thinking.

President Johnson's policy on Viet Nam has been under attack from many quarters in this country — particularly in the Senate and the academic world — and perhaps he can't gauge its full effect on him.

For instance: Would he have pursued the war harder, been less reluctant to bomb North Viet Nam more extensively if the critics weren't on his back? But any effect on Johnson is only part of the total possible effect of the criticism.

For example: What has been the effect of Americans' criticism of their own government on the thinking of the North Vietnamese Communists about continuing to fight?

Or on the South Vietnamese Buddhists about their chances of overturning their American-backed government and getting away with it?

Johnson apparently has felt confident, despite the criticism, that he had the support of a majority of Americans for his Viet Nam policy.

But the criticism here at home could leave no doubt in the minds of the Vietnamese, North and South, that American thinking was divided not only about how to wage the war but even about continuing it at all.

For instance, Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., said the American people are going to "repudiate this administration and they should. You just can't justify our being in war over there."

He called the U.S. position in Viet Nam "shockingly immoral" and said that if the South Vietnamese were ever to choose freely a Communist government, the United States should support it.

If you were a Vietnamese and heard that — and much more — you wouldn't be under any illusion the Americans were 100 per cent behind Johnson in trying to crush the Communists or at least force them to seek peace.

And if you were a Vietnamese, American division might seem to you a symbol of uncertainty and hesitation and therefore an inducement to action which otherwise might have seemed hopeless to you.

The hydroelectric potential of Africa exceeds that of any other continent, even if estimates of future developments are taken reservedly. One estimate puts the potential water power at 190 million horse power, that is three times the estimated potential of Europe. Another estimate credits Africa with 2 5ths of the world's potential or four times that of North America; one-quarter of this is stated to be in the Congo basin alone. As yet, only 0.1 per cent is used.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MISSOURI
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of concrete curb and gutters on each side of Helen Street from Kingshighway to Tomahawks, Bird in accordance with plans & specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: SECTION 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. SECTION 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. SECTION 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $1.75 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. SECTION 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. SECTION 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. SECTION 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 6th day of April, 1966. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk. 169 inc 175

Guideposts also Have Escalated

By JOHN T. CUNNIFF

NEW YORK AP -- The war in Viet Nam is not the only thing that has escalated dramatically in the past few years. The administration's voluntary guideposts have also.

The guideposts, first proposed in 1962 as "aids to public understanding," now sometimes have the practical power of laws.

Voluntary restraints are asked on a variety of economic endeavors. But the best known and most specifically stated restraints are the age - price guideposts, whose aim is avoidance of inflation.

In the name of guideposts, industry has been forced to rescind price increases, unions have been urged to lower wage demands and both companies and unions have been chastised publicly.

The guideposts tie wage and prices to the average gain in output per man hour - estimated at 3.2 per cent in recent years. Wage increases above that figure are considered inflationary. And industries with good profits and a productivity gain in excess of that figure aren't expected to raise prices.

When the President's Council of Economic Advisers introduced guideposts it described them as a "guide rather than a rule," a "contribution" to public discussion.

By 1964, however, they were referred to as a "standard."

Aluminum allegedly crossed the standard in October 1965 by raising the price of primary aluminum ½ cent a pound to 25 cents, bringing on another stage in the escalation; enforcement by government stockpile.

Stockpiles were designed to assure an adequate supply of materials in case of war. There are some 98 materials stockpiled, a reserve valued at more than $8 billion.

Secretary of Defense Robert McNamara announced Nov. 6 that the administration would sell 200,000 tons of aluminum from its stockpile in the next year, a move which could undercut the increase.

Leon Hickman, an executive of Aluminum Co. of America, replied that Alcoa had "no intention" of rescinding.

The next day, Nov. 8, the administration strengthened its hand: 100,000 tons of aluminum would be sold immediately and another 200,000 tons in 1966.

Aluminum had little choice.

John Harper, Alcoa president, went to Washington, spoke with McNamara and gave in on the evening of Nov. 9. McNamara made the announcement; Alcoa's came five minutes later. The stockpile threat was retracted. The guideposts had escalated.

Copper then met a similar confrontation. But copper was in short supply, the industry welcomed the stockpile and gave up its increase.

The power of the guideposts still was not clear, however. On New Year's Day Bethlehem Steel Co., apparently without consulting the administration, raised the price of structural steel $5 a ton.

Company officials were invited to Washington, the increase was rolled back and then compromised at a much smaller figure. The industry acted differently the next time it sought an increase.

U.S. Steel did not await a summons to Washington. An executive rode down and discussed a proposed increase in advance of its announcement, a recognition once more of the increasing power of the guideposts.

The U.S. Steel executive told the administration the company wished to raise prices on some products $2.92 a ton and decrease them on others. The arrangement seemed within the guideposts and was cleared. Gardner Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, applauded the move.

In submitting to administration pressure, some businessmen felt private industry had tossed away a basic right. Business was permitting government management of its affairs, they said.

Others wonder, however, if business had submitted at all — or whether it merely had learned to win its way within the escalated guidelines.

Johnson Avoids Shooting Matches

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has a simple technique for staying out of a shouting match.

He stays out, unless getting in is necessary. Otherwise, he keeps quiet until the noise goes away or has someone else, with his blessing, do the talking.

He has demonstrated the technique on some very crucial problems.

Earlier this year when Sens. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., and Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and others rather loudly assailed Johnson's Viet Nam policy, the President played mum.

The storm blew harder. He let it blow, confident he had the support of most Americans. In time the storm pretty well blew itself out. But if Johnson had gone after Morse and Fulbright they would have obtained far more publicity for their views than they could hope to get by themselves.

Meanwhile, he kept right on with his Viet Nam policy.

He did the same thing last September when Fulbright made a Senate speech attacking the extent of Johnson's use of troops in the Dominican Republic when he, the President, considered Communists there a danger.

Johnson kept quiet and Fulbright's attack was a one-day wonder, soon forgotten.

Johnson ran into a different problem with French President Charles de Gaulle who had been a pain to other presidents with his arrogance and his endless theme of French nationalism and independence.

NATO, the Western military alliance set up in 1949, has 15 members, including the United States and France. It was the great shield which stopped Stalin's Soviet Union from any ideas it might have had about taking over Europe.

Last September De Gaulle first hinted he didn't see much reason for NATO any more. At that time, faced with the fear that French withdrawal from NATO might wreck it, Johnson made a mild speech about the need for it.

He couldn't have said less, since the NATO members look to this country for leadership, which is one of the facts irking De Gaulle. Last March De Gaulle made good on his September hint.

He said France was withdrawing its remaining forces from NATO's command — he suggested that to be under NATO command was like being a vassal — and warned NATO bases and forces in France, mostly American, must be withdrawn no later than April 1, 1967.

But, just as in September, Johnson avoided a head-on clash with the Frenchman. He hardly said more than that the United States and the other NATO allies were determined to keep the organization alive.

Tuesday the United States finally rammed headon into De Gaulle but Johnson still stayed in the background, letting Secretary of State Dean Rusk and the State Department do the talking.

Said Rusk: "Fourteen nations, comprising 450 million people and possessing massive military power, will not be paralyzed by the attitude of France."

And the American government rejected De Gaulle's April 1, 1967 deadline for getting U.S. NATO forces out of France. It set a two-year time for the pull-out.

Further, this country warned France that French NATO units in West Germany stood to lose quickly their access to American nuclear arms. This was about the toughest treatment De Gaulle ever got from this country.

Still, Johnson himself was nowhere to be seen although De Gaulle knew that what Rusk and the State Department said had to be cleared with Johnson and could never have been said without his approval.

This has been the Johnson style for years.

Teacher to Take Part in Institute

PORTAGEVILLE -- Raymond E. Hart, mathematics teacher in the public school system, has been accepted as a participant in the Summer Mathematics Institute at Kirksville.

This institute for mathematics teachers is being sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the Northeast Missouri State Teachers college.

The mathematics teacher's grant provides for a stipend and additional expenses involved with the summer's program. Hart will be taking courses in algebra, geometry, probability, and a seminar for mathematics teachers.

In addition to the regular staff of the College, there will be a series of special lectures by outstanding mathematicians and mathematics educators.

Hart graduated in 1951 from University of Arkansas at Fayetteville with a major in mathematics. He has since done graduate work at University of Arkansas.

Leon Hickman, an executive of Aluminum Co. of America, replied that Alcoa had "no intention" of rescinding.

The next day, Nov. 8, the administration strengthened its hand: 100,000 tons of aluminum would be sold immediately and another 200,000 tons in 1966.

Aluminum had little choice.

John Harper, Alcoa president, went to Washington, spoke with McNamara and gave in on the evening of Nov. 9. McNamara made the announcement; Alcoa's came five minutes later. The stockpile threat was retracted. The guideposts had escalated.

Copper then met a similar confrontation. But copper was in short supply, the industry welcomed the stockpile and gave up its increase.

The power of the guideposts still was not clear, however. On New Year's Day Bethlehem Steel Co., apparently without consulting the administration, raised the price of structural steel $5 a ton.

Company officials were invited to Washington, the increase was rolled back and then compromised at a much smaller figure. The industry acted differently the next time it sought an increase.

U.S. Steel did not await a summons to Washington. An executive rode down and discussed a proposed increase in advance of its announcement, a recognition once more of the increasing power of the guideposts.

The U.S. Steel executive told the administration the company wished to raise prices on some products $2.92 a ton and decrease them on others. The arrangement seemed within the guideposts and was cleared. Gardner Ackley, chairman of the Council of Economic Advisers, applauded the move.

In submitting to administration pressure, some businessmen felt private industry had tossed away a basic right. Business was permitting government management of its affairs, they said.

Others wonder, however, if business had submitted at all—or whether it merely had learned to win its way within the escalated guidelines.

Johnson Avoids Shooting Matches

By JAMES MARLOW

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson has a simple technique for staying out of a shouting match.

He stays out, unless getting in is necessary. Otherwise, he keeps quiet until the noise goes away or has someone else, with his blessing, do the talking.

He has demonstrated the technique on some very crucial problems.

Earlier this year when Sens. J. W. Fulbright, D-Ark., and Wayne Morse, D-Ore., and others rather loudly assailed Johnson's Viet Nam policy, the President played mum.

The storm blew harder. He let it blow, confident he had the support of most Americans. In time the storm pretty well blew itself out. But if Johnson had gone after Morse and Fulbright they would have obtained far more publicity for their views than they could hope to get by themselves.

Meanwhile, he kept right on with his Viet Nam policy.

He did the same thing last September when Fulbright made a Senate speech attacking the extent of Johnson's use of troops in the Dominican Republic when he, the President, considered Communists there a danger.

Johnson kept quiet and Fulbright's attack was a one-day wonder, soon forgotten.

Johnson ran into a different problem with French President Charles de Gaulle who had been a pain to other presidents with his arrogance and his endless theme of French nationalism and independence.

NATO, the Western military alliance set up in 1949, has 15 members, including the United States and France. It was the great shield which stopped Stalin's Soviet Union from any ideas it might have had about taking over Europe.

Last September De Gaulle first hinted he didn't see much reason for NATO any more. At that time, faced with the fear that French withdrawal from NATO might wreck it, Johnson made a mild speech about the need for it.

He couldn't have said less, since the NATO members look to this country for leadership, which is one of the facts irking De Gaulle. Last March De Gaulle made good on his September hint.

He said France was withdrawing its remaining forces from NATO's command — he suggested that to be under NATO command was like being a vassal — and warned NATO bases and forces in France, mostly American, must be withdrawn no later than April 1, 1967.

But, just as in September, Johnson avoided a head-on clash with the Frenchman. He hardly said more than that the United States and the other NATO allies were determined to keep the organization alive.

Tuesday the United States finally rammed headon into De Gaulle but Johnson still stayed in the background, letting Secretary of State Dean Rusk and the State Department do the talking.

Said Rusk: "Fourteen nations, comprising 450 million people and possessing massive military power, will not be paralyzed by the attitude of France."

And the American government rejected De Gaulle's April 1, 1967 deadline for getting U.S. NATO forces out of France. It set a two-year time for the pull-out.

Further, this country warned France that French NATO units in West Germany stood to lose quickly their access to American nuclear arms. This was about the toughest treatment De Gaulle ever got from this country.

Still, Johnson himself was nowhere to be seen although De Gaulle knew that what Rusk and the State Department said had to be cleared with Johnson and could never have been said without his approval.

This has been the Johnson style for years.

Teacher to Take Part in Institute

PORTAGEVILLE -- Raymond E. Hart, mathematics teacher in the public school system, has been accepted as a participant in the Summer Mathematics Institute at Kirksville.

This institute for mathematics teachers is being sponsored by the National Science Foundation and the Northeast Missouri State Teachers college.

The mathematics teacher's grant provides for a stipend and additional expenses involved with the summer's program. Hart will be taking courses in algebra, geometry, probability, and a seminar for mathematics teachers.

In addition to the regular staff of the College, there will be a series of special lectures by outstanding mathematicians and mathematics educators.

Hart graduated in 1951 from University of Arkansas at Fayetteville with a major in mathematics. He has since done graduate work at University of Arkansas.

Today In U. S. History

Today is Thursday, April 14, the 104th day of 1966. There are 261 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1865, President Abraham Lincoln was shot as he sat in a box at Ford's Theater in Washington.

On this date

In 1828, the first edition of Noah Webster's American Dictionary of the English Language was published.

In 1890, delegates to the Washington Conference of American States created what was to become the Pan American Union.

In 1912, the liner Titanic, on its maiden voyage from Liverpool to New York, struck an iceberg and sank and 1,300 of those aboard were lost.

In 1931, King Alfonso of Spain went into exile and the Spanish Republic was proclaimed.

In 1945, funeral rites for President Franklin D. Roosevelt were held at the White House.

Ten years ago -- A new aircraft carrier, the Saratoga, then the world's largest and mightiest warship, was commissioned at the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Five years ago -- A mammoth demonstration was staged in Red Square in Moscow for the first man to go into space, Maj. Yuri Gagarin.

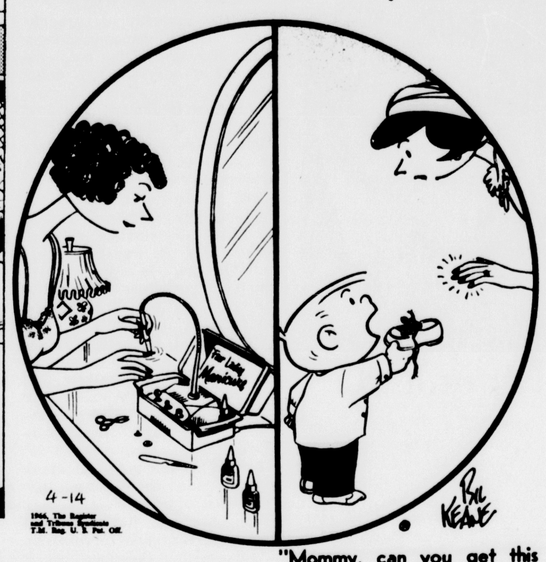

One year ago - An airliner crashed in a fog in the Channel Islands, killing 26 of 27 aboard.

STRENGTH FOR THESE DAYS From The Bible

There is no power but of God.—(Rom. 1:1)

Jesus told us that if we have faith we can move mountains. But we must never let the desire to do the greater works and mighty miracles obscure the everyday opportunities around us. Speak a kind word to replace fear with confidence. Be understanding and move mountains of despair. Offer words of praise to help make miracles happen.

Malden Girl Dies From Crash Hurts

MALDEN -- A nine-year-old Malden girl died Wednesday of internal injuries received in an automobile collision Monday morning near Piggott, Ark.

She is Kim Massie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Massie.

The child died about 3 a.m. Wednesday on the operating table of a Memphis hospital after undergoing surgery for an injury to her small intestine.

She had been treated at the Piggott hospital on Monday for shock and possible broken ribs.

Her condition worsened Tuesday and the internal injury was discovered. She developed pneumonia and it was decided to remove her to Memphis for surgery.

Her body is at the Landess Funeral Home. Her death was the 29th this year in Southeast Missouri and was the fifth this month.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Mrs. Betty Miles of Malden which was involved in a head-on collision about 9:50 a.m. on highway 51 one-half mile north of the Missouri-Arkansas state line.

Four other persons were injured. They were Mrs. Miles; her daughter, Nancy Lee Miles, 8; her mother, Mrs. Maxine Tiley, 63, all of Malden and Mrs. Ellen Wells, 46, of Piggott, driver of the other car.

Mrs. Miles suffered a broken rib and other possible chest injuries, as well as cuts and bruises.

She was knocked unconscious.

Nancy Lee Miles suffered a broken rib, cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Tiley reportedly suffered a broken jaw, cuts and bruises.

They were admitted to the hospital at Piggott for treatment and Mrs. Tiley was transferred to a hospital at Memphis.

Their condition is reported as satisfactory and they are expected to be released in a few days.

Mrs. Wells sustained face cuts and is undergoing treatment at a Poplar Bluff hospital. A passenger in the Wells car was not injured.

According to the state highway patrol, Mrs. Miles was driving a 1966 Dodge south and Mrs. Wells was traveling north in a 1960 Ford.

According to the investigating officer Mrs. Miles said she saw a car parked on the highway, applied her brakes and skidded into the path of the other car.

Ray Dean Berry, Painton, Dies

ADVANCE -- Ray Dean Berry, 41, Painton route 1, died Tuesday.

He was born April 24, 1924, at Leora and married Martha Tipsword Aug. 26, 1944.

Surviving are his wife; two daughters, Mrs. Bill Townsend, St. Charles, and Mrs. Bernard Bechtold, Alton, Ill.; a brother, Eugene Berry, Advance; two sisters, Mrs. Novelle Spangler, Jackson, Mich., and Mrs. Jack Blankenship, Advance; his mother, Mrs. Lottie Dublin Berry, Advance; his paternal grandmother, Mrs. Altha Berry, Advance; his maternal grandfather, Tom Dublin, Puxico, and one grandchild.

Berry was a member of the Order of the Eastern Star, Lodge 412; Advance Lodge 590, AF and AM and the Scottish Rite at St. Louis.

Services will be held Friday at 2 p.m. at the Advance Assembly of God Church by the Rev. Frank Heitman of Advance. Burial will be in Morgan Memorial Park.

Masonic services were held Wednesday at 7:30 p.m. at the Morgan Funeral Home.

More Jobs in Government

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — More than a seventh of Missouri's non-farm employment is in government, the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey reported today.

The report noted 225,381 persons are employed by local, state or federal governments. State and local government employment increased five times faster than the population in recent years.

"Governments," the survey said, "are attempting to provide more and more social services and facilities for individuoals, but government itself often lags behind the rest of the economy in efficiency of organization, improving productivity and effective utilization of personnel."

The survey recommended a central personnel agency for state government and more competitive examinations for employment. It also recommended reorganization of local government to do away with some of the 3,000 political subdivisions in Missouri.

Pressman Hurt In Collision

POPLAR BLUFF -- Charles Harris, a pressman for the Daily American Republic, suffered head and back injuries in a three-car collision at 5:20 p.m. Tuesday at D. and East Pine.

He was taken to Doctors Hospital and was reported doing well.

According to city police, Harris who was in a 1966 Plymouth, was following Ted Fuller in a 1965 Mustang. Fuller stopped for a left turn and Harris stopped behind him. The third car, a 1963 Ford, driven by Jonathan Haney, 605 Cynthia, struck the rear of Harris' car.

All three vehicles were damaged.

Shell Blast Hurts Soldier

POPLAR BLUFF -- Mr. and Mrs. Marvin Zoll of Rombauer have been notified by the Red Cross that their son, Spec. 4 Ronald Zoll, 23, who is serving with the U.S. Army in Germany was injured when a 155mm howitzer shell fell short of the target and exploded.

Zoll and three others were injured when a German gun crew miscalculated their firing by about one mile and the shell fell about 36 yards behind the forward observer's post manned by Zoll and three other soldiers. They are all serving with the 8th Infantry Division, Headquarters Company, First Battalion, 13th Infantry.

Fragments of the shell struck Zoll in the right elbow and right thigh. Also injured were Sgt. Gerald Massengill, Spec. 4. Albert Fuentes and Pfc. Jimmy R. Arnold.

Zoll, the grandson of Mrs. Maude Zoll of Rombauer, is expected to be hospitalized in Germany for about two months.

He is married and he and his wife, Shirlene, have a six-month-old son named Kevin.

Employe of Hospital Hangs Self

POPLAR BLUFF -- Carl Vieth, 47-year-old resident and an employe of the Poplar Bluff hospital, was found hanged in the Madison County jail at Fredericktown Wednesday morning.

According to the state patrol, trooper R. C. Caldwel arrested Vieth at 6:30 Tuesday night for driving while intoxicated and peace disturbance. He was placed in the Madison County jail and was in a cell block alone.

His body was discovered by Sheriff N. F. Whitener at 6:30 Wednesday morning. He had used his belt to hang himself. Coroner Roy Wilson stated that he had been dead several hours.

He had been employed at the hospital several months and was described by hospital officials as being an excellent worker.

The body was taken to the Wilson Funeral Home at Fredericktown.

A sister, Mrs. Ted Adams of Poplar Bluff, survives.

Sailor Leaves For Viet Nam

GRAY RIDGE -- David A. Wethington, 19, graduate of Richland high school who is in the navy, has completed 38 weeks training at Treasure Island, Calif., electronics school.

Following a two weeks leave, he left today to board the USS Whitfield County, to sail for Viet Nam.

Bernie Rejects Cotton Vacation

MALDEN -- The annual cotton vacation in the Bernie school district will be discontinued.

The decision was made by the board of education Thursday.

Bernie schools will open August 29, and will close May 29.

Holidays include two days at Thanksgiving, a week at Christmas, Good Friday, Monday after Easter, and Washington's Birthday.

MILWAUKEE, Wis. AP -- The National League Braves faced the possibility today of being the only major league baseball team in history to be welcomed in two cities in the same season.

"If the Braves return to Milwaukee they will be mobbed," said Willard Stafford, the attorney who had let Wisconsin's forces in successful prosecution of the state's antitrust suit against baseball.

"I don't mean it will be an angry mob," the silver-haired lawyer said. "It would be more of a second honeymoon."

Stafford said, "I think this trial has purged the ill feeling of the average fan -- and one thing is sure -- we can do better than 10,000 attendance on the second night."

The remark referred to the 12,721 fans the Braves drew at their second game in Atlanta Wednesday night.

Meat Plus Fruit Gives Elegance To Short Ribs

Sugar and spice and all things nice go with one of the meat cuts favored strongly by men. These are beef short ribs which, in this instance, are carefully spiced and fruited.

Plentiful prunes along with dried apricots give high style to these "ends" of the famous beef standing rib roasts. Beef short ribs are rectangular cuts, explains Reba Staggs, meat authority, composed of alternating layers of fat and lean. They're best cooked by braising.

Rich in flavor and well-browned in color when cooked in this way, short ribs are highly compatible with the light spicing and fruit which goes with them.

Spiced Short Ribs

- 3 pounds beef short ribs
- ¼ cup flour
- 1½ teaspoons salt
- ¼ teaspoon pepper
- 2 tablespoons lard or drippings
- 1 cup water
- 1 cup dried prunes
- 1 cup dried apricots
- ¼ cup sugar
- ½ teaspoon cinnamon
- ½ teaspoon allspice
- ¼ teaspoon ground cloves
- 3 tablespoons vinegar

Combine flour, salt and pepper. Dredge meat with seasoned flour. Brown meat on all sides in lard or drippings. Cover tightly and simmer 1½ hours. Pour off drippings. Add water, prunes, apricots, sugar, cinnamon, allspice, cloves and vinegar. Cover tightly and continue simmering 1 hour or until tender. Serve fruit over short ribs. Thicken cooking liquid, with remaining seasoned flour, for gravy, if desired. 6 servings.

"Saboteurs at Work"

FROM "THE WALL STREET JOURNAL

To the majority of Americans who uncomplainingly work day in and day out, the antics of strike-happy union leaders must seem an aggravated case of adult delinquency. So much so that perhaps it is time to re-examine the right to strike in the context of mid-Twentieth Century America.

The Newspaper Guild strike against the New York Times, entailing the closing down of practically all the other local newspapers, is only one in a series of senseless acts of sabotage. The beleaguered maritime industry is just pulling out of a long ordeal and last week was threatened with yet another walkout. In the midst of the Vietnam war the Machinists Union slashes out at a leading defense producer.

Like other disputes, the attack on the Times has elements that would be almost funny in other circumstances. Thus the Guild demands the right to veto any automation developments it thinks might affect its jurisdiction. Yet, according to the Times, the equipment for one of the devices the union is worrying about hasn't even been invented.

Not at all amusing is the fact that, again as in many similar troubles, the Times strike involves a power struggle between two unions, the locals of the Guild and of the International Typographical Union. Since New York newspapers are saddled with some seven additional labor organizations, the opportunities for that sort of mischief are manifold.

Plainly then, in the newspaper and certain other industries there are too many unions too obsessed with petty jurisdictional jealousies and led by men of the narrowest possible interests, men to whom their own power apparently is the paramount consideration. It is little over a couple of years' ago that New York City emerged from a 114-day news blackout by means of which unions succeeded in killing one newspaper and maiming others and consequently causing unemployment -- quite a testament to the leaders' concern for their members.

Various possibilities for limiting the abuse of union power have been suggested over the years, notably ending the special privileges and legal exemptions that give unions a status enjoyed by no other segment of the population. But what, in the light of repeated and flagrant union disregard of the public's convenience and the members' welfare, is to be said of the right to strike itself?

To begin with the individual employee, his right to quit a job is undisputed in a free society, although the unions take the Neanderthal position that, in organized industries, a worker must join a union to keep his job. When individuals long ago banded together to put collective pressure on managements, the strike was often the only effective weapon, albeit a weapon of last resort.

Anything resembling those conditions simply does not exist today. Thanks largely to capital investment and the advancing technology the unions continually fight, the contemporary American workingman has a high income -- wages are not even an issue in the Times conflict -- a lot of leisure and a generally comfortable job environment.

That being so, it is hard to discern an ethical justification for a right to strike on whim, over niggling or non-existent issues or as a means of interunion battling. There is no more inherent right to such behavior, it seems to us, than there is a right to steal from an employer or anyone else. As a dispute-settling vehicle in a complex, competitive modern economy, the strike, except in extreme circumstances, is hopelessly archaic.

For our part, we have upheld the right to strike when no other course seems possible. We do not see, though, how Congress and the public can indefinitely countenance it as an unlimited right, as a heavy bludgeon to smash against the public any time a union official feels like it.

If union leaders are incapable of demonstrating a greater degree of maturity, it may be necessary to consider legal redefinition and limitation of the right to strike. Certainly no society is required to have its interest, its well-being and even its safety constantly menaced by heedless wreckers.

CANTON, Mo. AP -- William H. Trumbo, whose team compiled a 23-5 record last season at a high school in Garden Grove, Calif., has been named head basketball coach at Culver-Stockton College. He also will serve as baseball coach.

Trumbo, a native Californian, attended Chapman College and was freshman coach there in the 1961-62 season.

Hunters in Hawaii seek wild boar as a major sport. Some are as big as 300 pounds.

The oddest boat ride ever taken was a 37-mile voyage to the center of New York City through a water pipe. It was no ordinary pipe, admittedly. When completed in 1842, the Croton Aqueduct was the world's biggest conduit: seven feet wide and eight and one-half feet high in horseshoe-arched cross-section. Built of cemented masonry, it started from Westchester's dammed-up Croton River, ran at ground level beneath mounded earth, and sloped gently -- 1.1 feet per mile--to the city, where parched New Yorkers had only smelly wells to drink from. One June morning at 5 a.m., a dam gate was opened and water flowed into the dry aqueduct 18 inches deep. Immediately four men in a specially built small boat, the Croton Maid, lit torches and floated on the current into the dark tube. It was an eerie trip, monotonously unscenic, and slow. Thirty-three miles away, a welcoming crowd waited all day and into the night. At 3 a.m. -- after 22 hours, at 1 1/2 mph -- the tumbling crest of water emerged and, right behind, the tired but triumphant boatmen. A few days later, they portaged across and re-embarked in the final four miles of aqueduct through upper Manhattan. At a newly dug reservior, the tunnel spewed out the Croton Maid on a spreading pool as thousands cheered, bands played and guns saluted. New Yorkers at last had plenty of good water -- a whole navigable river of it, as the Maid had proved by her unique voyage.

The Japanese consume 140 million U.S. gallons of sake, their national beverage, annually. This is 40 per cent of the total yearly consumption of alcoholic beverages in Japan. Sake is rice beer. Its brewing dates back to antiquity. It is sometimes mistakenly called wine because of its high alcoholic content, which is usually 17 per cent to 18 per cent. Sake is served warm in tiny porcelain bowls holding little more than an ounce.

The body is at the Sparks Funeral Home.

Malden Girl Dies From Crash Hurts

MALDEN -- A nine-year-old Malden girl died Wednesday of internal injuries received in an automobile collision Monday morning near Piggott, Ark.

She is Kim Massie, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jim Massie.

The child died about 3 a.m. Wednesday on the operating table of a Memphis hospital after undergoing surgery for an injury to her small intestine.

She had been treated at the Piggott hospital on Monday for shock and possible broken ribs.

Her condition worsened Tuesday and the internal injury was discovered. She developed pneumonia and it was decided to remove her to Memphis for surgery.

Her body is at the Landess Funeral Home. Her death was the 29th this year in Southeast Missouri and was the fifth this month.

She was a passenger in a car driven by Mrs. Betty Miles of Malden which was involved in a head-on collision about 9:50 a.m. on highway 51 one-half mile north of the Missouri-Arkansas state line.

Four other persons were injured. They were Mrs. Miles; her daughter, Nancy Lee Miles, 8; her mother, Mrs. Maxine Tiley, 63, all of Malden and Mrs. Ellen Wells, 46, of Piggott, driver of the other car.

Mrs. Miles suffered a broken rib and other possible chest injuries, as well as cuts and bruises.

She was knocked unconscious.

Nancy Lee Miles suffered a broken rib, cuts and bruises.

Mrs. Tiley reportedly suffered a broken jaw, cuts and bruises.

They were admitted to the hospital at Piggott for treatment and Mrs. Tiley was transferred to a hospital at Memphis.

Their condition is reported as satisfactory and they are expected to be released in a few days.

Mrs. Wells sustained face cuts and is undergoing treatment at a Poplar Bluff hospital. A passenger in the Wells car was not injured.

According to the state highway patrol, Mrs. Miles was driving a 1966 Dodge south and Mrs. Wells was traveling north in a 1960 Ford.

According to the investigating officer Mrs. Miles said she saw a car parked on the highway, applied her brakes and skidded into the path of the other car.

More Jobs in Government

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — More than a seventh of Missouri's non-farm employment is in government, the Missouri Public Expenditure Survey reported today.

The report noted 225,381 persons are employed by local, state or federal governments. State and local government employment increased five times faster than the population in recent years.

"Governments," the survey said, "are attempting to provide more and more social services and facilities for individuals, but government itself often lags behind the rest of the economy in efficiency of organization, improving productivity and effective utilization of personnel."

The survey recommended a central personnel agency for state government and more competitive examinations for employment. It also recommended reorganization of local government to do away with some of the 3,000 political subdivisions in Missouri.

It is little over a couple of years' ago that New York City emerged from a 114-day news blackout by means of which unions succeeded in killing one newspaper and maiming others and consequently causing unemployment -- quite a testament to the leaders' concern for their members.

Various possibilities for limiting the abuse of union power have been suggested over the years, notably ending the special privileges and legal exemptions that give unions a status enjoyed by no other segment of the population. But what, in the light of repeated and flagrant union disregard of the public's convenience and the members' welfare, is to be said of the right to strike itself?

To begin with the individual employee, his right to quit a job is undisputed in a free society, although the unions take the Neanderthal position that, in organized industries, a worker must join a union to keep his job. When individuals long ago banded together to put collective pressure on managements, the strike was often the only effective weapon, albeit a weapon of last resort.

Anything resembling those conditions simply does not exist today. Thanks largely to capital investment and the advancing technology the unions continually fight, the contemporary American workingman has a high income -- wages are not even an issue in the Times conflict -- a lot of leisure and a generally comfortable job environment.

That being so, it is hard to discern an ethical justification for a right to strike on whim, over niggling or non-existent issues or as a means of interunion battling. There is no more inherent right to such behavior, it seems to us, than there is a right to steal from an employer or anyone else. As a dispute-settling vehicle in a complex, competitive modern economy, the strike, except in extreme circumstances, is hopelessly archaic.

For our part, we have upheld the right to strike when no other course seems possible. We do not see, though, how Congress and the public can indefinitely countenance it as an unlimited right, as a heavy bludgeon to smash against the public any time a union official feels like it.

If union leaders are incapable of demonstrating a greater degree of maturity, it may be necessary to consider legal redefinition and limitation of the right to strike. Certainly no society is required to have its interest, its well-being and even its safety constantly menaced by heedless wreckers.

The Japanese consume 140 million U.S. gallons of sake, their national beverage, annually. This is 40 per cent of the total yearly consumption of alcoholic beverages in Japan. Sake is rice beer. Its brewing dates back to antiquity. It is sometimes mistakenly called wine because of its high alcoholic content, which is usually 17 per cent to 18 per cent. Sake is served warm in tiny porcelain bowls holding little more than an ounce.

In a travel bureau, a clerk was trying to convince a nervous woman of the safety of air travel. She was unconvinced until he said, "Madam, if it wasn't save, would we be using the fly-now-pay-later plan?"

GO TO CHURCH SUNDAY

CANTON, Mo. AP -- William H. Trumbo, whose team compiled a 23-5 record last season at a high school in Garden Grove, Calif., has been named head basketball coach at Culver-Stockton College. He also will serve as baseball coach.

Trumbo, a native Californian, attended Chapman College and was freshman coach there in the 1961-62 season.

Hunters in Hawaii seek wild boar as a major sport. Some are as big as 300 pounds.

The oddest boat ride ever taken was a 37-mile voyage to the center of New York City through a water pipe. It was no ordinary pipe, admittedly. When completed in 1842, the Croton Aqueduct was the world's biggest conduit: seven feet wide and eight and one-half feet high in horseshoe-arched cross-section. Built of cemented masonry, it started from Westchester's dammed-up Croton River, ran at ground level beneath mounded earth, and sloped gently -- 1.1 feet per mile--to the city, where parched New Yorkers had only smelly wells to drink from. One June morning at 5 a.m., a dam gate was opened and water flowed into the dry aqueduct 18 inches deep. Immediately four men in a specially built small boat, the Croton Maid, lit torches and floated on the current into the dark tube. It was an eerie trip, monotonously unscenic, and slow. Thirty-three miles away, a welcoming crowd waited all day and into the night. At 3 a.m. -- after 22 hours, at 1 1/2 mph -- the tumbling crest of water emerged and, right behind, the tired but triumphant boatmen. A few days later, they portaged across and re-embarked in the final four miles of aqueduct through upper Manhattan. At a newly dug reservior, the tunnel spewed out the Croton Maid on a spreading pool as thousands cheered, bands played and guns saluted. New Yorkers at last had plenty of good water -- a whole navigable river of it, as the Maid had proved by her unique voyage.
